A MILLION INVOLVED IN PROPERTY CHANGES MADE AT SEBRING

Property of Sebring Pottery Company and Land Company Distributed Among the Stockholders.

If well authenticated rumors be correct, Sebring is about to undergo a revolution of gigantic proportions. The fact that the members who compose the Sebring Pottery company and the Sebring Land company have held daily sessions for several days and have adjusted matters, dissolved and reconstructed, until the identity of these two companies is lost, lends color to the rumors afloat. The fact that they are corroborated by members of these former prosperous companies warrants making the statement that they are true.

According to the terms of the reported agreement the Sebring Pottery company, which embraced the management of the four potteries of Sebring, and the stave mill, will become practically extinct and for the future the Oliver China company will be owned and controlled by George E. Sebring and Fred Sebring. The Sebring pottery will be owned by F. A. Sebring Will Sebring and C. J. Albright, the former owning the controlling interest. The French China company becomes the property of E. H. Sebring and O. H. Sebring, with the former the principal owner. The new China works are the property of F. A. Sebring and the stave mill reverts to O. H. Sebring. This disposes of the potteries and stave mill as the properties of the Sebring Pottery company and they become divided property, separate and distinct in their nature.

The Sebring Land company will cease to be the owner of any property and practically pass out of existence. The land and lots owned by the company have been distributed to the members of the firm composing the company pro rata in accordance with the amount of stock they held in the company. The price of lots which has heretofore been $500 as the minimum price may be reduced by any individual to $250 if he desires, but cannot by the terms of the compact be sold for less.

These changes will work a complete revolution in Sebring in every way. Previous to consummating this deal, however, the sum of $30,000 was deposited in the bank of Sebring by the old company to be used to induce manufacturers to locate in Sebring. In the early spring it is a part of the plan for O. H. Sebring and his son Bert to erect another pottery in size and capacity the same as those heretofore built.

Several of the Sebring brothers, now that they are free to act individually will begin the construction of more houses, and one of these asked the local contractors to submit plans and bids for four new houses to be built at once. Another one is having plans drawn for a large brick block upon Fifteenth street, and a scene of unusual activity prevails at this time The amount involved in these transactions will approximate $1,000,000 in value.

ASKED TO VOTE

LOCALS TO DECIDE AS TO DUFFY'S CANDIDACY.

Each Union to Decide Whether He Shall Run on One or Two Tickets.

Salem, Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Officials of the several unions in this city are in receipt of a circular from the Duffy Labor campaign committee, of which E. J. Creedon, of Massillon, is chairman and F. R. Johnson, of Alliance, secretary. This letter requests that all unions in the Eighteenth district take a vote upon the question of whether Mr. Duffy shall accept the Democratic nomination or whether it is their wish that he remain upon the Labor ticket alone.

The Salem locals will take no action. The head of the campaign committee requests that all unions act upon the matter at once in order that a summing up may take place not later than Monday.

TALK ON FRATERNALISM

By Lecturer Evans a Feature of An Enjoyable P. H. C. Entertainment.

J. M. Evans, supreme lecturer of the Protected Home circle, of Sharon, Pa., gave an interesting lecture at the Opera houselast evening to a large audience. His subject was "Fraternalism," and he handled it in such a manner that those who heard him were most favorably impressed with his talk. A quartet composed of Mr. and Firth and A. W. Scott, with piano accompaniment by Miss Emma Firth sang two delightful selections. LeRoy Orr recited two pieces in a very pleasing manner which were much applauded. Miss Elizabeth Hamil rendered several selections on the piano which were well received.

J. R. Carrothers, deputy organizer of the Maccabees from Steubenville gave a very instructive short talk on fraternity work prior to the address of Mr. Evans.

PICKED UP DAZED

Dr. Bumpus Knocked Down By a Rapidly Moving Grocery Wagon.

Dr. J. F. Bumpus, of Sixth street, was knocked down by a horse attached to the American grocery wagon at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The doctor was crossing Fifth street and states he was positive he had plenty of time to pass over before the wagon could reach him. He says the speed of the horse was not slackened, and that the driver could not have failed to see that he was passing.

The horse struck Dr. Bumpus at a point between the elbow and shoulder and he was hurled with great violence to the paved street. The force of the blow was so great that he was knocked away from the wagon and this caused him to escape being run over. He struck the pavement in such a manner that he rolled almost to the curb, and was picked up by passers-by in a dazed condition.

The driver continued on his way, not even looking back to see what had occured. Dr. Bumpus was badly bruised, and it will be some time before he has entirely recovered.

East Liverpool is noted for its careless drivers, and this is not the first occurrence of the same kind that has been recorded.

COUNTER CLAIM ENTERED

School Board Involved in Litigation Over Heating Company's Work.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—The Peak-Williamson Heating & Ventilating company brought suit in the court of Justice E. L. Lyon, of East Palestine against the board of education of school district No. 8, of Unity township for $113.70 claimed as due for a furnace and plumbing at the school building. The board claimed work was not properly done and entered a counter suit for $195.15 damages. Judgment for $88.30 was given for the company and the board appealed the case to common pleas court.

Surprised the Pastor.

The members and friends of the A. M. E. church surprised the pastor, Rev. J. H. Mason, and wife last evening with a very large donation. About 9 o'clock a large company gathered in front of the parsonage door on Lisbon street singing "There's a Stranger at the Door." Then a cart backed up and unloaded its burden of the necessaries of life. The pastor and wife were agreeably surprised, but a short speech of thankfulness was expressed and the visitors left.

Appointed Administrator.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special.)—J. W. Holloway, of Fairfield township, has been appointed administrator of the estate of Joseph R. Entriken, late of Columbiana. Bond, $2,500.

SPENT THE NIGHT UPON THE ROAD

THEIR HORSE RAN AWAY

And They Were Upset Upon Rocks And Stumps—Mayor Davidson And His Brother Found Them Later And Rendered Assistance.

Attorney W. K. Gaston and John Brooks, florist, had a narrow escape from death last night while en route to this city from the Lisbon fair. They left the county seat about 9 o'clock in a single buggy to which was attached a young horse of a nervous temperament. The roadway was very dark and the gentlemen found it impossible to direc the animal's course.

Near Cannon's Mill the horse became frightened at the rustling of leaves caused by a wandering cow, made a quick jump to one side of the road and started madly toward the city For a short distance the frightened animal kept the road, but shying again it fell hard against a big tree breaking the shafts and throwing the occupants forward into a pile of stones and stumps.

The horse became entangled and was unable to move. Messrs. Gaston and Brooks got out with a few bruises Mayor Davidson and his brother Edward were returning from the fair at about 1 o'clock and discovered Gaston and Brooks in their undesirable plight. The two unfortunates were compelled to walk two miles to a blacksmith shop, where they got a new pair of shafts and repaired other breakage. It was daylight before the men arrived home.

NEW TRUST COMPANY

Organized at Lisbon, of Which Hon. R. W. Tayler Is President.

Columbus, Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Congressman R. W. Tayler is the president of the Columbia company, a trust concern, organized under the laws of Delaware, which was admitted to Ohio yesterday. It is capitalized at $25,000 in shares of $10 each. Lisbon is headquarters in Ohio.

One hundred shares have been subscribed. Mr. Tayler holds 32 shares, George B. Harvey 33 shares, N. B. Billingsley, 32 shares and James W. Clark 3 shares. The stockholders are residents of Lisbon. Harvey is treasurer. The company's property at Lisbon is valued at $1,000.

DEATH CLAIM SETTLED

Administrator of Man Killed at Wellsville Shops Receives $270.00.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special.)—William R. Wilson, as administrator of Martin Wilson, late of Wellsville, has secured $270 from the relief department of the Pennsylvania company as a settlement of the death claim of deceased heirs. Wilson was killed in the Wellsville shops June 2.

Carroll Club vs. Y. M. C. A.

An exciting ball game is promised for tomorrow afternoon at the Chester park. The Carroll club and the second team of the Y. M. C. A. have agreed to play, and they are well matched teams. The Y. M. C. A. lineup will be as follows: Davis, catcher; Welch pitcher; Walker, short; W. Powell first; Powell, second; Pope, third; Rigby, left; Cartwright, middle; Evans, right; Davidson, substitute.

FREE METHODISTS TO BUILD CHURCH

Several Free Sites Offered Them and One in Oakland Will Be Accepted.

PLEDGES OF MONEY MADE

In Most Encouraging Fashion—As a Result of Being Shut Out of Neville Institute, the Church Will Soon Have Its Own Home.

The Free Methodists will commence at once the erection of a chapel in Oakland. This was the announcement made by Rev. J. H. Howard today. This is the outcome of the meetings that have been held in the Klondike section for the past few weeks and of the church people being shut out of the Neville institute school building. A site has been secured, and quite a large amount of money has been pledged for building.

A meeting was held in the Klondike last evening by this little band of church workers, who wear no jewelry or other ornaments on the person, a vote of thanks was tendered the trustees of Neville institute, and its principal, S. L. Fisher. When seen today Rev. Mr. Howard said:

"I regard the trustees and teacher of the institute as gentlemen and we appreciate their kindness in allowing us the use of the school building. I also regret that Mr. Fisher was caused so much extra labor in being compelled to clean the school room, and if I had been aware that the conditions existed as he spoke of, other arrangements could have been made.

"I did not know the room was in the condition he said it was, as I never visited the building until late in the evening. There was then a large congregation present. No doubt it was fully as bad as he described. I think according to the law regarding reciprocity, that I should have been consulted, and could have arranged matters satisfactorily to suit the wishes of the gentleman. But I was not. The doors wer locked against us, and we knew nothing of the matter until we went to the building to hold our meeting. This is all I have to say on this matter, as I consider the incident closed."

As to the building of a chapel in the Klondike section, offers of several sites have been made, and the officials have about concluded to accept a site in Oakland, donated by the Oakland Land company. Other offers for the building sites have been received from D. William Calhoun and Alex. Chafin, and several others, whose names the officials of the church do not care to make known. The sum of $400 in cash is already pledged. The officials will without question take the lot offered in Oakland. A chapel to cost not less than $1,500 will be built, and it is expected it will be completed before the first of the year. Besides the offer of a free site from Alex. Chafin, he will also donate $100 to the church if his offer is accepted. Mr Chafin is of the opinion that one of the needs of Chafinville is a church and he will do all he can to have one built in his addition.

THE WINNING HORSES

Great Interest Manifested in the Races at Lisbon Yesterday.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—The races were well attended yesterday afternoon, and though the purses were small, the interest was great. Three East Liverpool horses were in the speed ring. Dr. McFarland's mare got second money in the 2:30 trot and Frank Dickey's fleet footed nag took third in the same race. Mayor Davidson's Connie Mack, which was entered in the 2:40 pace, could not be controlled, and was unable even to get a place.

Dr. S., owned by G. P. Smith, of East Liverpool, took second money in the trot. Some person said that Mr. Smith's horse was going under an assumed name, that he was really the fast horse, "Major McKinley," owned by George Brunt, of East Liverpool. There was a cry of fraud which the judges took very seriously and came almost to the conclusion of ruling Dr S. off the track.

$100,000 IS AT STAKE IN A WILL CONTEST

Salem, Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Attorney L. P. Metzger has filed a lawsuit in court in which local parties are interested, and in which there is a $100,000 estate at stake.

The plaintiffs in the case are Mrs. Anna Lowry and Clara Wernet vs. Joseph Wernet, Francis Wernet, Mary Hogan, Letitia Sheraw, Jennie Little and Joseph, William A. and Charles Wernet, as executors of the estate of the late William Wernet, of Hanover township.

The plaintiffs will attempt to break the will and have secured most competent lawyers to handle the case. They claim that William Wernet at the time of his sickness and death was at times out of his mind and by undue influence was forced by the defendants to write another will than that, in which he a week before he died, bequeathed part of his property to the plaintiffs.

They further claim that the will was probated on the 13th of March, 1901, was not the will which he had prepared while in a proper state of mind, but rather the one which he was persuaded to sign through undue influence and by fraudulent representations.

Most of the defendants in the case reside in Hanover township. Wernet was one of the wealthiest men in that township.

VOLKSFEST A SUCCESS

The German Residents of the City Enjoyed Themelves at Columbian Park.

The German residents of East Liverpool held a most enjoyable and successful volksfest at Columbian park yesterday afternoon.

The grounds were opened at 2 p. m. and in a short time the park was filled with families who had come out to enjoy themselves. The volksfest is a picnic held according to German customs, and it is a well known fact that when a body of Germans gather pleasure, pure and simple, is the rule and it is carried out.

The day was devoted to singing, music and small games in which the younger members took part. Refreshments were served and those present began leaving for their homes about 10:30 o'clock.

TEAMSTERS' UNION

Arrangements in Progress for the Organization of an A. F. of L. Local.

District Organizer Charles Kontnier, of the American Federation of Labor, has completed arrangements for the organization of a union of the teamsters in this city. The organizer has 23 names on the charter list, and a meeting has been called for tomorrow evening at the Smith Fowler hall, when a temporary organization will be formed.

FLED FROM HIS HOME

Knox Township Man Who Hid in the Bushes Adjudged a Lunatic.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—John Fuhrer, of Knox township has been adjudged insane by the probate court. He was afraid of everyone, thinking they would kill him. He got up at night, ran from the house and hid from his friends for days in blackberry thickets, thinking they were enemies. His face is badly lacerated.

Driller Had To Run For It.

A well brought in yesterday by J. J. Crawford on the R. A. Warren farm, in the Knoxville field, is of the nature of a wildcat. When the bit touched the sand gas ignited, burning derrick and engine house, and John Wasson, a driller, had a thrilling escape for his life. It cannot yet be told what the well will make, but it shows oil. It is owned by Pittsburg parties.

The Minerva Fair.

The annual exhibition of the Minerva Fair association will be held at Minerva, October 1 and 2. This fair always draws well from Columbiana and neighboring counties. This year a special effort has been put forth to have better exhibits then ever, and the racing will be a most attractive feature.

Kept Marriage a Secret

Friends in this city learned today of the marriage one month ago of Fred M. Busey, of East Liverpool, and Miss Lois Eideler, of Wellsville. The couple paid a visit to Hanoverton several weeks ago, and were quietly married there. The young couple will reside in East Liverpool.

Licensed to Marry.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—Howard Lowrey, of Pittsburg and Anna B. Clark, of Wellsville, have been licensed to wed.

Frank Stutler, of Hanoverton, and Ada Clair, of New Kensington, secured a license and were married by Rev. J. P. Anderson here yesterday.

Arranging for Encampment—At the meeting of General Lyon post, G. A. R., to be held tonight, final arrangements will be made for the trip to the national encampment at Washington early next month. Post Commander Daniel McLane states a time will be selected for the start to be made and other details attended to. In addition to the regular routine business two candidates will be mustered in. A full attendance is desired.

UP THE HEIGHTS AT EARLY DATE

Cars May Be Running on New Branch by the First of the Year.

WORK STARTS ON MONDAY

And It Will Be Pushed With All the Speed That Is Possible.

THE CONTRACTOR IS READY

It is now almost certain that the Pleasant Heights extension of the East Liverpool street railway will be completed by the first of the year, and that the hopes of the residents of that suburb, after three years of patient waiting, will at last be realized.

Manager L. W. Healy, of the East Liverpool company, had informed members of council and others that the work of constructing the branch would be commenced on September 15, and when no signs of a start were noted on that date, it was thought the plan had been given up. Contractor McFadden, of Pittsburg, was said to have been given the contract several weeks ago, and it is presumed he was responsible for the delay. Mr. Healy was seen yesterday and to a reporter stid:

"Contractor McFadden will begin the construction of the Pleasant Heights road next Monday morning. The road will be pushed with all possible dispatch, and will be finished within a few weeks. If there is any delay it will be the fault of the weather."

There is good reason for the belief tnat the company will finish the task without delay, as it is depending upon the $5,000 guarantee by interested parties to pay for the work.

Of the $5,000 guaranteed by seven or eight individual landholders, $3,750 has been subscribed. Those interested are now calling upon parties in the locality benefited who have not yet contributed to the fund. No trouble is anticipated in raising the remaining $1,250, as there are a large number of property owners in the vicinity of Pleasant Heights who have not yet been assessed, and who will derive much substantial benefit from the construction of the railroad..

REPORTED DYING

Negro Assaulted at New Cumberland Ball Game in a Precarious Condition.

Suffering with concussion of the brain, William Burrell, colored, lies at his home in Toronto with small chance of recovery. His condition is due to a cowardly assault made by Shorty Thompson, a noted character of Black Horse, W. Va., in a melee following a ball game at New Cumberand last Tuesday afternoon, when his skull was broken. The men was also kicked until black and blue.

Sheriff Allison arrested Thompson yesterday and placed him in the county jail. It is very likely that he will have to answer to a charge of murder.

RHEUMATISM IN THE LEG

The Reason Given By Gustavus Craft for Cutting Up at His Home.

Gustavus Craft, the man arrested in the East End Wednesday evening charged with drunkenness and making life at his home very uncomfortable for his spouse, was arraigned before the mayor this morning. He pleaded guilty to being drunk, but said that but for rheumatism in his leg he would never have disturbed his wife. The mayor fined him $5.60.

William Petticord got a similar dose for being found drunk and asleep in the McNicol pottery last night by Officer Woods.

Married at Lisbon.

Salem Aeronaut Fined.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—Frank Johnson, an aeronaut of Salem, was fined $20 and costs by Judge Boone for wife beating. He stands committed to the workhouse until his fine and costs are paid.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

SPEAKING OF SHORTAGE.

A statement was made by a prominent kilnman employed in one of the hill potteries today that was most surprising. He said, according to statistics secured from most all the potteries in the city, that there is at present a shortage of from 60 to 75 kilnmen in this city. But what is to be expected when a manufacturer from one of the out-of-town potteries comes to this city and in a few hours secures four kilnmen and takes them away with him? There is no way to stop a manufacturer from another town coming here to secure workmen, as they are not under contract, and the country is a free one. What is to be done? ask the operatives of this city, who have the interests of the city at heart. What is to be done inquires the manufacturer? This is the main question of the hour. It has been the policy of this paper to do as much as possible to impress upon those who desire to roam from one shop to another, that they had best remain in this city, where work is plentiful, and lasting employment is a certainty. In more than one instance this advice has been heeded, but still there is a certain element who will persist in leaving a steady position just so long as they can secure another, no matter whether it is just as good or not, in an outside town. The problem, a shortage of sixty kilnmen alone, is a perplexing one. It is one that the manufacturers will have to wrestle with, and it is one that will soon require the attention of the Brotherhood officials. Especially will the attention of Kilnmen's local No. 9 be called to this condition, for it is a matter that in a measure can be remedied by that local, by advancing some of the pottery apprentices to journeymen, and this will leave room for new apprentices to be put on. In this manner some assistance will be rendered, and the depleted ranks will be somewhat increased. Not only was a representative of the Barberton pottery here yesterday after kilnmen, but a representative of the Thomas China plant at Lisbon. One or two men would have been sufficient in this latter case, and last evening it was stated that the gentleman was successful in his attempt to secure the desired help. This is only another instance where the out-of-town manufacturers try to drain the potteries of this city of their help.

It might be well to ask, does it pay the out-of-town manufacturer to do this sort of thing? While it is admitted that the help is secured nine times out of ten, losses may occur in other ways. The next thing one will hear of is the out-of-town manufacturer coming to this town and offering bonuses to local workmen to leave and take positions in other towns. It is done in other trades, and why not in the pottery trade? There may be a way out of this muddle, and that is for the local manufacturers to send their representatives to Trenton and secure help from there. If the prosperous conditions of the west were only made known in the east the chances are that many eastern pottery workmen would come to this city and obtain employment. There is quite a demand for English pottery workmen in the west, and just as soon as the conditions are made known in Great Britain, many will come to this country, in fact, as many as can secure the required fare. It will not be long until this will be done, it is said.

OVER AT SEBRING.

Henry Smith, of East Palestine, has taken a position on the glost bench at the French China.

George Turner and Samuel Bickford, well known kilnmen, left Monday morning for Canonsburg where they have secured positions. Turner has taken a position at setting out.

Joseph Hott, who went to Sebring from Trenton about three months ago to take a position as kilnman at the Sebring pottery, has returned to Trenton.

William DeBee, of East Palestine, is a new kilnman in the biscuit crew of William Mills at the Sebring pottery.

George Russ, of East Palestine, has commenced work as a kilnman at the French China glost end.

Tim Wherline, who went to Sebring from Wheeling several months ago to secure employment, left rather suddenly a few days ago, and his whereabouts are at present unknown. No cause for his sudden departure is assigned.

Work upon the construction of the pottery is progressing rather slowly, and the first kiln has just been topped out. The second kiln is almost to the shoulder.

Thomas McGinnis, a well known operative, left Sebring a few days ago for East Palestine to seek employment.

William Tritt, for many years affiliated with the Sebring Bros., spent a few days in Sebring this week, making arrangements to remove his family to Crooksville, where he has taken the management of the new Crooksville pottery, now in course of construction.

Five kilnmen, who at one time or another have been employed in this city, have left here for Barberton. Four left yesterday afternoon, and one went to Barberton from New Castle, from the Shenango pottery. Wednesday evening Ambrose Cartwright, formerly of this city, but now vice-president of the Barberton Pottery company, arrived here. He returned home yesterday afternoon. To a representative of this paper Mr. Cartwright said he came here for the purpose of securing five kilnmen, and in this work he was entirely successful. These kilnmen have been promised steady employment. This fact is to be regretted. While Barberton is in need of kilnmen, men are in no greater demand there than in this city. Two of those who went with Mr. Cartwright were Jack Cannon and his brother. Jack was recently employed at Canonsburg.

POTTERY CONTRACTS.

The Bell Pottery company, of Columbus, has closed contracts with the Rarig Engineering company for the structural steel roofs of the kiln sheds. The excavations are well toward completion and the materials used in the construction are arriving at the rate of 15 carloads a day. Already there are 100 carloads on the ground. The survey for Bellwood is about completed. E. F. Bell, president of the company, and John S. Milligan of the board of directors, have decided that, as soon as the buildings of the plant are well under way, to begin the erection of the houses for the workmen. The United States government decided at one time that the site where the plant is being erected is the best place in the country for an armor plate plant, owing to its railroad facilities. Five trunk lines are on the ground and two more are accessible.

THAT BARBERTON ADDITION.

Ambrose Cartwright, vice-president of the Barberton Pottery company, who returned to his home yesterday afternoon, said just before leaving the city that his company would not build a large plant at present for the purpose of manufacturing art ware, but would merely build two kilns this fall.

Others that would be needed would not be built until next spring. Another building will also be erected, an annex to the present plant, measuring 50x80 feet. This additional room, it is thought, will be sufficient to supply the requirements of the company the balance of this year, but that in the spring several other additional kilns and buildings will be erected. Business with this concern at present is said to be quite prosperous.

A PRINTING MACHINE.

A printing machine, the only one of its kind in this city, has been installed in the decorating department of the Brunt pottery in the past few days. It is an English patent, of which over 300 are said to have been in use in the potteries of the old world. The machine was placed in operation yesterday for the first time, and it is said that it has the capacity of keeping five crews at steady work. Some who have seen this machine in operation say that it will be able to keep more than five printers' crews busy. The machine is a simple one, and is easily operated. Most of the decorations made in this manner are used on scheme goods.

NO MEETING ARRANGED.

No arrangements have been made for the holding of the joint meeting of the committees representing the Brotherhood and the manufacturers to talk over the dispute about placing flat ware in the first ring of the biscuit kilns. A prominent member of this committee on the Brotherhood side stated last evening that up to date he had not heard of any meeting being called, and had no idea when a joint session would be held. Meantime, the biscuit kilnmen are wondering when the matter will be finally adjusted.

OVER FROM LISBON.

Kilnshed Foreman James Challis, formerly a member of the local council, and who for sometime was employed as a kilnman at the D. E. McNicol pottery, in this city, was here yesterday in search of kilnmen for the Thomas plant, at Lisbon. He was accompanied by J. N. Reed, another kilnman at the Thomas plant. Mr. Reed has been in Lisbon for several months. The Thomas plant was stopped during the fair this week, but resumed operations this morning as usual.

STRIKE AT SHENANGO.

Information was received in this city yesterday afternoon of a strike of the glost kilnmen at the Shenango pottery at New Castle. The cause is said to be that the firm imported a bench boss from an eastern town who was not a member of the Brotherhood of Operative potters, and the men refused to work with him. Many of the kilnmen at that shop are from this city, and now that a strike is on, some of them may return.

EXPECTED HOME TODAY.

Thomas Robinson, manager of the East Liverpool pottery, who has been spending a short vacation in the west, is expected home this evening, although he may not arrive until tomorrow. During his trip he spent several days at Milwaukee visiting former friends.

A NEW OFFICE MAN.

William Grey, who has been employed as agent of the Adams Express company in this city for many months, and who recently resigned that position, will enter the employ of the Sevres Pottery company very soon. He will take a position as bookkeeper.

MOVED HIS RESIDENCE.

John Sant, the well known clay salesman, who has been residing at Georgetown during the summer with his family, has returned to this city. Mr. Sant states he spent a delightful summer in the small Pennsylvania town.

BACK HOME AGAIN.

George Smith, salesman for the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company who has been in the west for several weeks, has returned home after a very successful trip. Mr. Smith is now looking after the erection of his new residence on Ohio avenue, East End.

MRS. SMITH IMPROVING.

Mrs. George Smith, wife of George Smith, secretary of Kilnmen's local No. 9, who has been very ill at her home on Florence street for many weeks, is recovering rapidly, and her friends are of the opinion that she will be able to be out soon.

BACK TO WORK AGAIN.

William Cuthbert, bench boss on the glost at the Brunt plant, who accidently stepped into a well hole in a kiln a few days ago, severly spraining his foot, has recovered from his injury, and is now able to be at his work.

LAWRENCE IS BACK.

Frederick Lawrence, one of the officials of the East Liverpool Potteries company, who has been spending his two weeks' vacation in the east, has returned to the city.

EAST END

SUCCESSFUL SERVICE

Preparatory to Communion Held at the Second U. P. Church Last Night.

A very successful service was that which was held last evening at the Second U. P. church, preparatory to the regular quarterly communion service which will be held Sunday morning. The service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. D. W. McQuiston, but the sermon was preached by J. A. C. McQuiston. His text was from Hosea 6:3, "And He shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth." The sermon was a most interesting one and was well received.

The services at this church in the future will commence at 7:30 o'clock in stead of 8 o'clock, as has been the custom during the summer. The services will close this evening, although Rev. Mr. McQuiston will remain in the city over Sunday and assist at the communion service Sunday morning.

NON-SUPPORT CASE

Suit Brought at Smith's Ferry by Former East End Woman.

Information was received in the East End this morning that in a case for non-support which was tried before Justice of the Peace John Chapman at Smith's Ferry yesterday afternoon, Howard Trimble, of Georgetown, was bound over to court in the sum of $1,000 on a charge preferred by his wife. He furnished bond and was released from custody.

It is alleged that over a year ago Trimble married a young lady named Calhoun, who, at that time resided in the East End, but that he never made his home with her. Mrs. Trimble then moved to Smith's Ferry, where she has resided for about a year and thereby gained a residence in Pennsylvania. A charge of non-support was preferred by the wife.

Twenty-Five Have Joined Church.

The Free Methodists, who have been holding a series of revival meetings at the Nevi...e institute, have transferred their meeting place to the Home Circle hall on First avenue. It is reported this morning that since these meetings commenced about 50 conversions have been reported, and 25 persons have joined the church. How long the meetings will be continued cannot be determined at this time.

Two Cars Damaged.

On the last trip of the freight car of the East Liverpool railway last evening the car crashed into the rear end of passenger car No. 19 at the Pennsylvania switch, and as a result both cars were damaged. The company, while the freight car is being repaired, will operate the old line car instead of the regular freight car.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

R. C. Howard is ill at his home on Mulberry street, suffering with rheumatism.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Erie street M. E. church met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George W. Orcutt, on Boyce street. Many matters pertaining to church work were considered.

An interesting game of foot ball is expected to be played at Columbian park tomorrow afternoon between the Oakland and East End Athletic club teams. The game will be strenuous as there is much rivalry between the opposing teams. A large number of tickets have been sold for the event.

A meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. N. Swan, on St. George street. About 30 persons were present. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. N. M. Crowe. An interesting talk upon Alaska was given by Mrs. F. D. Kitchel.

WORK OF CONFERENCE

Interesting Addresses And Report at Meeting of the Evangelical Association.

Cambridge, Sept. 19.—At the East Ohio conference Rev. Mr. Coleman was elected assistant secretary and a committee of five was elected on church federation. Rev. Mr. Robins, of the Akron district, reported over 500 conversions in the past year. Rev. Dr. Smith reported over 700 received on probation in the Canton district. A request will be made to the missionary committee for $500 each for work in Youngstown and Cleveland.

The afternoon session was opened by Rev. W. K. Yingling, who delivered a sermon on missionary work. Rev. B. E. Edgell talked for the endowment fund of the superannuated ministers, and Dr. Mitchell made the address of the day in an appeal for the superannuates.

RICHARDS IS BRAVE.

Young Railroad Operator, at Ford City, Pa., Killed a Burglar.

HAD BATTLE WITH THE THIEF.

Wounded In the Scalp by a Bullet, but Pluckily Shot the Thief Twice—Latter Got Drop, but on the Wrong Man.

Ford City, Pa., Sept. 19.—Carl Richards, night operator on the Allegheny Valley railroad, at this place, shot and killed a man who attempted to rob the station at 5:10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Richards is about 24 years of age and weighs about 120 pounds.

The burglar is said to be Charles Andrews, who was noted as the lone burglar of Kittanning, and who was released from the Western penitentiary about 18 months ago, after serving two years for attempted burglary at Nealton, at the north end of Kittanning.

About 5 o'clock yesterday morning Richards was attending to his duties at the station, while a freign train had just pulled out. The operator sat down to his instrument, and as he did so a harsh voice said, "Throw up your hands!" Richards, thinking some friend was trying to play a joke on him, turned with a laugh, only to be confronted with a revolver in the hands of a masked man.

Hurled Himself on the Robber.

Instead of complying with the robber's demand, Richards, without an instant hesitation, hurled himself at the intruder and planted a blow in his face, staggering him, and at the same instant seized the man's revolver. The men went to the floor in a death grapple. Superior in strength and weight, the burglar forced Richards to his knee, and, twisting the revolver about, shot him in the side of the head, the bullet traversing the skull bone under the scalp. Bleeding from his wounds, the operator, with superhuman strength again wrested the revolver from the would-be murderer and both sprang to their feet, and fired one bullet into the robber's side and another into his head, the latter killing him instantly.

The robber is above the medium height and well built. He weighed about 175 pounds and was very strong.

FLEITZ IS RE-ELECTED.

Other Officers Chosen For Pennsylvania League of Republican Clubs.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 19.—The convention of the State League of Republican Clubs adjourned at noon yesterday, after a busy closing session. A boat ride yesterday afternoon and a ball last evening closed the convention program, many delegates having already left town. The league officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows, all except the vice presidents being re-elected: President, F. W. Fleitz, Scranton; treasurer, J. H. Shaw, Philadelphia; secretary, John Kelly, Philadelphia; vice presidents, John R. Wiggins, John E. Durbin, John McCleary, William McDonald, Philadelphia; Robert H. Lindsay, Dr. A. J. Barchfield, Pittsburg; William I. Swope, Clearfield; James D. Hay, Erie.

The resolutions, in part, reaffirm devotion and allegiance to the principles of Republicanism as enunciated in the last state and national platform, they pledge earnest support to Judge Pennypacker and the other candidates. They indorse the national administration and the president's foreign policy, they deplore the coal strike and hope for its settlement by arbitration or compromise at an early date, and recommend reciprocity for Cuba.

TWELVE PAGES.

The trusts have nothing to fear from the Democracy. Talk does not harm them, though the Democrats act as if they expected to talk them to death. Yet the Democrats are receiving contributions from the trusts, a fact which is very embarrassing to their leaders. The friendship of the trusts for the Democratic party was seen long ago. The sugar trust, it was said, made a heavy contribution to the Cleveland campaign purse in 1888, as compensation for the favors done it by the gentlemen who framed the Mills tariff bill. Nixon, who was Croker's understudy at the head of Tammany, is at the head of a trust now, while the Republicans' old ally, Senator Jones, of Arkansas, the head of the Democratic national committee, has been a member of a combine for several years. This, in fact, is one of the reasons why he has been beaten in his campaign for renomination.

The western people do not find it necessary to send east this year for money to move the crops. A western banker writes to Secretary Shaw that every bank in the west has plenty of money to invest in any legitimate channel. It does not require extensive investigation to discover the reason why Populist doctrines and cheap money theories are no longer popular in the west. There is plenty of business and ample money with which to do that business. Moreover, every dollar of that money is worth 100 cents.

Jefferson county is growing so fast that it has decided it must have a bigger infirmary. Growth of that sort is nothing to boast of. But in Jefferson as elsewhere, it is not the native population that helps most largely to fill the poor house. A more rigid law to exclude immigrants likely to become public charges would, if enforced, save the taxpayers of almost every county in Ohio a large sum annually.

The Ford City telegraph operator who captured a burglar's revolver, turned it on the burglar and shot him dead is one of the humble heroes, but is as deserving of a medal as some of the more celebrated ones.

The Chinese Boxers are again showing signs of uneasiness. Until China gets a government worthy of the name she will always have trouble.

Chicago is certainly in a bad way, if as report has it, a number of the "prominent citizens" forming the committee appointed to receive and entertain President Roosevelt next month are anarchists.

One estimate of the treasury surplus during the present fiscal year is $30,000,000. The Republican surplus habit is too big a fact to be overcome, even by the abolition of all the war taxes.

Now that the Ohio legislators have decided that ping pong should be banished by law, thousands of people who never took any interest in the game will be curious to learn what it is like.

If Speaker Henderson were a younger man and less prominent in public life there would be less wondering why he should take a course that would cause so much talk.

The belated summer is pleasing to many people, but the rivermen can't see its beauties. The magnificent Ohio is fast becoming a streak of sand.

W. S. Devery's triumphant election as a political leader in New York may be a fine thing for Devery, but it is a mighty poor showing for his constituency.

The use of natural gas is on the increase, according to government statistice. Last year the value of the product consumed was over $27,000,000.

Might as well give it up, Peary. You're lucky to return alive, even if unlucky in pole-hunting.

OBITUARY

W. K. McClurg.

W. K. McClurg, the oldest resident of New Cumberland, and a Hancock county pioneer, died at his home Tuesday, after a long illness. He was an ardent Democrat in political belief, and well known and esteemed in the community. A widow, a son and two daughters survive him, the youngest of his children being the wife of Attorney S. G. Smith, of Wheeling. Mr. McClurg was an octogenarian, and his death was due to paralysis.

NO WORK UNTIL SPRING

Decision Reached Regarding the New Building of Salvation Army.

A meeting of the Salvation Army was held at the barracks on Fourth street yesterday afternoon, and the presence of Colonel Holz, of Cleveland, commander of this province, took a prominent part.

An open air meeting was held early in the evening, which was addressed by Col. Holz, and then the assemblage moved to the hall. An interesting meeting was held there, which was again addressed by Col. Holz.

The question of beginning work on the new building to be erected by the Salvation Army at Third and Market streets was discussed, and it was decided not to begin operations until spring.

Books Named From the Bible.

A close acquaintance on the part of authors with the terse and expressive phrases in the Bible is plainly shown in the titles of a host of books. Among the titles taken directly from the Bible, says the Saturday Evening Post, are the following:

"If Sinners Entice Thee," "The Day of Temptation," "The Favor of Princes," "Wayfaring Men," "Weighed and Wanting," "The Wages of Sin," "Black, But Comely," "Dross," "In Dedar's Tents," "The Valley of Decision," "The Unjust Steward," "Sons of the Morning," "Visiting the Sin," "The Quick or the Dead," "The Prodigal," "The Bondwoman," "Tinkling Cymbals," "The Crown of Life," "Unleavened Bread," "A Laodicean," "The Birthright," "The Garden of Eden," "The Story of the Innumerable Company," "The Wings of the Morning," "Until the Day Break," "The Mantle of Elijah," "They That Walked in Darkness," "I Go a-Fishing," "The Tents of Shem," "The Snare of the Flower," "Give Me Thine Heart," "Mine Own People," "The Measure of a Man," "Resurrection," "The Market Place," "From My Youth Up," "His Brother's Keeper," "The Hosts of the Lord" and "On the Face of the Waters."

Shock After Burns.

Shock, which is always present in severe burns, requires the administration of stimulants. The amount of shock or collapse after any bad injury or sudden fright differs with the character of individuals. Some succumb to it much more readily than others. When serious, the temperature drops below normal, the face is pale, pinched and anxious, the pulse slow and feeble, the body bathed in a cold perspiration. Sometimes there is shivering. Sometimes the mind wanders. Place the patient at once in a horizontal position, the head slightly raised. Administer stimulants, alcoholic or aromatic vinegar. If whisky or brandy is used, give from a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of hot water every ten minutes until five or six doses have been taken. Surround the body and legs inside the thighs and under the armpits with hot water bags, hot stones—anything to give warmth—but take care not to burn your patient. If the injury is to the head, follow the same treatment, but omit the alcoholic stimulant.

The Lapse of Time.

When two married men who haven't seen each other for some time meet, one of them always says before they separate, "Let's see—how old is your oldest now?" And then, after he gets the answer, he adds, "It is astonishing, isn't it, how time does fly?"--Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

A Soft Answer.

"Keep yer temper, laddie. Never quarrel wi' an angry person, especially a woman. Mind ye, a soft answer's aye best. It's commanded, and, forbye, it makes them far madder than onything else ye could say."—London Tit-Bits.

A Matter of Family Pride.

"Prisoner, have you anything to say why the sentence of death should not be passed upon you?"

"A few words, my lord. I am thirty years of age."

"Well?"

"Your elder brother is a physician."

"This is impertinent and irrelevant."

"It may sound so, my lord, but it means life or death to me. I understand that you take a great pride in the phenomenal success of your brother?"

"I do, but what possible bearing can that have upon your case?"

"Simply this: Your brother, the doctor, examined me a year ago and predicted that I would live at least twenty years more. It would certainly undermine his reputation as a scientist should I die before that time."—London Answers.

WELLSVILLE

FOOTBALL TEAMS

Two Organizations Formed in the High School And Prepared to Do Battle.

Interest in foot ball has now attained its height throughout the public schools of this city and a team has been organized among the boys of nearly every class in the schools where the lads are old enough. Foot ball has always been a favored game among the school boys of this city, and this year is by no means an exception to the rule. The following two teams were organized in the Wellsville high school yesterday and will play a game some time next week:

Second High School—Ralph Fairman, Joseph Andrews, Edward Herwig, Monroe Hague, William Forner, Charles Ferguson, John Wilcoxen William Allman, David Rose and Walter McQueen. It will be noticed that this team is short two players.

The aggregation which is to do battle with this team is composed of Michael Duty, Harvey Adams, Roy Kerr, Vance Pugh, Tom Cheetel Keck William Turner, Richard Haugh, William Rounds, George Weisch and Paul Sechrist.

The two teams will line up for practice this evening and also on Saturday afternoon. The game will occur about the middle of next week.

WRIGHT OUT OF JAIL

Charge of Interfering With Officer Withdrawn, But May Be Renewed.

Wesley Wright, the stepfather of George Rutledge, who assaulted Chief of Police Henry Thorn last Saturday night, was yesterday released from the village jail at Irondale, Mayor Fogo, of this city, having withdrawn the charge against him.

Wright was arrested on the Sunday afternoon following the night his stepson was arrested and was charged with interfering and obstructing an officer in the discharge of his duty. He attempted to keep Officer Thorn from arresting his son and at the time Thorn went to Wright's home after Rutledge, it is said, he declared that he would blow the officer's brains out.

Wright's trial was set for this morning at Irondale, as he had previously pleaded not guilty, but on account of the sudden death of Mrs. Thorn, the chief being unable to go to Irondale Mayor Fogo withdrew the charge against Wright and he was released from custody. Wright will probably be prosecuted again later.

THREAT OF INJUNCTION

Against the Street Railway Causes It to Run Through Cars in Wellsville.

L. W. Healy, manager of the East Liverpool railway, held a private consultation with City Solicitor Boyd and Mayor Fogo yesterday afternoon in the city solicitor's office. Mr. Boyd informed Mr. Healy that he had been instructed by the city council to take out an injunction against the street railway company if it did not agree and not only agree but act, in the matter of running cars to the extreme end of the line, and also put down the street paving torn up.

Mr. Healy said at the time that the company would agree to the city's demands and would start at once to run all cars to the extreme end of the line. The work was started this morning and if kept up all will be satisfactory.

REPORT OF LABOR DAY

Submitted to Trades Council Shows the Celebration Was a Complete Success.

The regular meeting of Trades and Labor Council was held last evening in Potters' hall. Outside of routine business, the special committee on Labor day gave in a complete report which was very satisfactory and which proved that efforts toward celebrating Labor day in a fitting manner and without going into debt were not in vain.

The report shows that the celebration was a grand success, financially speaking, and so much so that the council has about decided to have another celebration next year of a similar kind. This report should have been given in at the last meeting of the council, but at that time was not in a complete condition.

A DAMAGE SUIT

May Result From a Change of Grade on Liverpool Street.

Unless the city council soon makes a few improvements upon the Kampman property located on Liverpool street, in the way of filling in the lot and raising the house, it is likely to have a damage suit on its hands. Henry Kampman, who owns the property, sent a communication to council which was read at the last meeting, and stated just what he wanted the city to do upon his property, and unless they agree to his demands he warned them that he would put in a claim for damages.

It seems that by the changing of the grade on Liverpool street Mr. Kampman's property has been left very low. Every time that there is a heavy rain his cellar becomes flooded, thereby causing a damp air through the entire dwelling.

Council disposed of this matter temporarily by leaving it in the hands of a special committee composed of Councilmen Brennan, McCormick and Aughinbaugh. They are to investigate Mr. Kampman's claims and report at the next regular meeting of council.

A Fine Entertainment.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Presbyterian church held a delightful entertainment last evening in the parlors of the church which was attended by a large crowd of people. A very interesting literary program was given and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present. Following the program light refreshments were served, after which a social session was enjoyed. The affair was very successful. The ladies cleared a neat sum on the refreshments.

Oil Magnates in Town.

A party of five oil magnates from Pittsburg arrived in this city this morning and in company with Squire A. G. McKenzie and J. Lawson drove out to the Lawson oil field in Jefferson county. Their intentions are to drill a new well in that field today It is expected that part or all of the 1,000 acre tract of land leased to the Lawson family and others will be released by Pittsburg capitalists.

Runaways Taken Home.

The parents of the two lads, Caleb Webb and Samuel Layton, from New Castle, arrived in this city yesterday and took the boys back to New Castle. The parents stated that the boys left New Castle last Monday. They paid the costs of the boys' keeping in the city jail.

Mrs. Elinda Waugh.

Mrs. Elinda Waugh, age 52 years and wife of Engineer Waugh, of the Carroll-Porter Boiler works, Wellsville, died this morning at her home on Commerce street of paralysis. Her husband, four daughters and one son survive.

SOUTH SIDE

COUNCIL DID NOT MEET

But an Informal Caucus Was Held And Important Matters Discussed.

On account of the absence of the recorder, J. S. D. Mercer, who was confined to his home by illness, and the mayor, who was delayed by the train from Pittsburg, which was 45 minutes late, the session of Chester council was not called to order, but Solicitor O. S. Marshall, who is always punctual, had arrived from New Cumberland, and the councilmen were present.

When the councilmen started through the darkness toward Carolina avenue they met Mayor Shrader, it was concluded not to return for the meeting, as a bystander suggested that it was bad luck to turn back. An informal caucus was held. Some discussion took place with reference to the disposition of dirt taken from the excavation on Carolina avenue. A number of other matters were talked over.

A special meeting may be held Monday evening. Bids will be offered on the $20,000 bond issue Saturday. While the paving improvement will cost about $32,000 a portion of the money will be raised by assessments.

It is understood that there will be a number of moneyed men in Chester tomorrow to bid on the bonds. Mr. Marshall and Mr. Boyd have assurances that there will be bidders present from Wheeling, Marietta and other towns, while local capitalists will stand waiting and willing to shoulder the burden.

JUDGE'S WIFE ILL

Miners' Case From New Cumberland Was Not Heard at Wheeling.

The case of the Marquet Coal company against the miners in and about New Cumberland was to have been heard yesterday at Wheeling in the United States circuit court. Judge Jackson, who has been very ill at his home in Parkersburg, had left a sick bed to open court and soon after the federal court was opened yesterday in Wheeling received a telegram announcing the dangerous illness of his wife.

Mrs. Jackson's death is expected and the judge promptly adjourned court to return to Parkersburg. The Hancock county case has been attracting much attention.

Fats vs. Leans.

On Thursday afternoon, September 24, a game of base ball will be played at Porter park, between the fats and the leans of New Cumberland. Dr. Cramer will be manager for the leans and A. S. Cooper manager for the fats. George Smith will play shortstop for the fats and George L. Bambrick and Dr. Fink will lend further skill and assistance to the fats. Dr. Anderson will be umpire.

To Attend a Wedding.

Mrs. Samuel Bloom and sons, Masters Sol and Simon, are about to leave for Cleveland, where they will spend a week. Mrs. Bloom's brother, Lee Harburger, and Miss Sarah Gugenheimer will be married in Cleveland next Tuesday evening. It will be one of the swell society events of that city.

Chester K. G. E.

A lodge of the Knights of the Golden Eagle will be installed in Chester on Friday evening, September 26. There are 65 names in the hands of the state officials at Huntington, W. Va., and it is probable that all of them will be made full-fledged members.

OIL NOTES.

The bailer of the machinery stuck in a hole at a depth of 600 feet on the Alexander Stewart farm yesterday which is causing no end of trouble in putting down the well to the required distance of 1,000 feet.

Lawrence Baxter, of Chester, has about the only farm in the oil district near Fairview that has not been leased. Operators are offering heavy bonuses in that section for oil property. Mr. Baxter's land is in the heart of the producing territory.

Luther Carson, a prominent magnate of the Carson oil district, was in Chester yesterday holding a business consultation with E. A. Freshwater.

Feared Fiend Would Be Lynched.

Pierce, Neb., Sept. 19.—Gottlieb Niegenfind, the wounded homicide, who killed his wife and father-in-law, was taken from Winside to Blair, Neb., for safe keeping. It had been reported to the officers that a mob was on the way from here to lynch him. The mob was imaginary, but the sheriff took no chances. District Judge Boyd has given orders that Niegenfind be returned to Pierce for trial on Sept. 29.

CAN REACH THE POLE.

Peary Said, if Rich, He Would Persist Until He Was Successful.

MADE IMPORTANT DISCOVERIES.

They Were of Scientific Value, but He Did Not Reach the Coveted Goal—Brought Back Things Abandoned by Greeley Expedition.

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 19.—The Peary Arctic club's relief steamer Windward, with Lieutenant Robert E. Peary on board, arrived at North Sydney at 8:15 yesterday morning from Greenland.

Lieutenant Peary did not succeed in reaching the Pole, but he announced that he made important discoveries. When Peary stepped from the Windward to the wharf no one would have supposed that he had braved the rigors of a winter in the Polar regions. His face was bronzed, but he looked the picture of health.

He says he feels certain that the pole can be reached, and furthermore that if he were a man of independent means he would persevere until he succeeded.

The most northerly point reached was 84 degrees 17 minutes in latitude, northwest of Cape Hecla. Lieutenant Peary says that the pole can be reached from Franz Josef Land and from Grant Land, in latitude 83 degrees, if the winter qaurters are established as far north as possible. He says that he would just as soon winter at Cape Hecla as at Sabine or Etah.

Mrs. Peary and her daughter, who had gone with the Windward to meet him, looked well, although the former is just recovering from an illness.

Dr. Diedrick was on board and quite well. As far as can be learned, the difference between him and Lieutenant Peary has not been patched up. Dr. Diedrick declined to say anything further at present than that the difficulty between him and Lieutenant Peary has not been settled.

Lieutenant Peary said:

"Our expedition did not reach the north pole, but we made most important scientific discoveries. We are all well and glad to get back to civilization."

He recovered and brought back the instruments and library abandoned by the Greeley expedition. He also brought numerous and rare specimens of natural history.

COMING TOUR OF PRESIDENT.

To Be In Cincinnati, Saturday, and Be Hanna's Guest, Sunday, Oct, 5, at Cleveland.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Secretary Cortelyou yesterday made public an outline of the president's tour to the northwest, Sept. 19 to Oct. 7. It was in part:

"The first public stop scheduled is at Cincinnati at 10 a. m., Saturday, the 20th. Upon arrival there the president and party are to be escorted to the St. Nicholas hotel, where an informal luncheon will be given by the general committee. In the afternoon a visit will be made to the fall festival grounds to view the exposition and later the president will be taken to Music hall. In the evening the local committee will entertain the president and party and others at dinner at the St. Nicholas hotel, and after the dinner the president will deliver an address at Music hall."

Detroit will be reached the next morning. Sunday will be spent quietly. The president will attend encampments of two different organizations of veterans of the Spanish war in Detroit and Indianapolis.

Places in Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois are to be visited, including a visit to the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis. The itinerary then says, in part, referring to the arrival in Cleveland, Oct. 5:

"The president and party will leave Chicago during the night and arrive at Cleveland, O., 9:30 the following evening, Saturday, passing during the day through Buchanan, Niles, Dowagiac, Decatur, Lawton, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Jackson, Mich., and Toledo and Sandusky, O. No public program has been arranged for Cleveland, as it is the president's intention simply to spend Sunday there as the guest of Senator Hanna, leaving during Sunday night for the east.

"On Monday, Oct. 6, two hours will be spent at Columbus, where the president and party will be taken for a drive, and the president will deliver an address from the state house. The train will reach Washington Tuesday morning, Oct. 7, at 8:30 o'clock.

"The president will be accompanied during a part of the trip by Secretaries Shaw and Wilson."

Woman's Body Found In Canal.

New York, Sept. 19.—The nude body of a young woman was found in the Morris canal, near Jersey City, yesterday. A long hitching strap, to which was attached a 20-pound iron weight, was around the woman's waist. A wound, apparently a stab wound, about six inches long, was found in the abdomen. Detectives are at work on the case.

COLOMBIA PROTESTS.

CLAIMS GUARDS NOT NEEDED ON PANAMA TRAINS.

McLean Reports Stopping of Trains by Colombian Soldiers—Will Continue to Guard.

Colon, Colombia, Sept. 19.—United States bluejackets, with a small quick-firing gun from the cruiser Cincinnati, continue to accompany each passenger and freight train across the isthmus, notwithstanding the protests against such measures which the Colombian government has lodged with Oscar Malmros, the United States consul here.

There is no definite news of the whereabouts of the insurgent General Herrera, nor signs that insurgent forces are approaching the isthmus.

General Ortiz is in command of the government troops which reached here Wednesday on the steamer La Plata.

Won't Fight With Nicaragua.

Panama, Sept. 19.—The report which has been current lately that Colombia intended to declare war upon Nicaragua, because of the help President Zelaya is alleged to have given the Colombian revolutionists, is discredited and contradicted by Colombian officials stationed in Panama.

Referring to the alleged attitude of Nicaragua with regard to Colombia's internal strife, government officials here said yesterday to the representative of the Associated Press that they considered President Zelaya's reported interference in Colombia's revolution as a dangerous policy for him to pursue, but that they did not blame Nicaragua for the faults of its president, whose conduct, they declared, was disapproved by all sensible persons in his country.

"It is believed," said one of the officials, "that the Nicaragua canal syndicate has had much to do with the help General Herrera has received from Nicaragua, the syndicate's idea being, of course, that the prolongation of the state of war in Colombia would make impossible the completion of the Panama canal."

American Commander Reports.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Secretary of the Navy Moody received the following dispatch yesterday from Commander McLean, of the Cincinnati:

"Colon (blank date),

"Train for Panama went through with Cincinnati's guard of riflemen and rapid-fire gun. Freight train coming toward Colon stopped by soldiers at sides of track, continuously pointing loaded muskets at engineer and train hands, demanding opening of locked box cars for inspection; conductor no key; could not. Went to find some responsible officer; also sent man to flag following passenger train; menace removed; freight came in with passenger train. Will vigorously protect life, liberty, American and other peaceable employes and maintain unobstructed traffic. Have instructed Ranger assist this duty."

PENNYPACKER VISITS BROWN.

He and Penrose Were Guests Last Night—To Go to Pittsburg, Today.

New Castle, Pa., Sept. 19.—Samuel W. Pennypacker, Republican candidate for governor; Senator Boise Penrose and their party arrived here last evening at 7:45 from Erie, and were the guests over night of William M. Brown, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

Local Republicans called last night to meet Judge Pennypacker and Senator Penrose. This morning a public reception was to be held by the visitors. The party was to leave here at 12:25 o'clock over the Pittsburg and Lake Erie, arriving at Pittsburg before 2 o'clock.

NEGRO FIEND ESCAPED.

Finally Shot by Mob and Died—Body Strung Up.

Marshfield, Ore., Sept. 19.—Alonzo Tucker, a negro, who assaulted Mrs. Dennis, near Libby, Wednesday, was lynched yesterday. A body of coal miners, heavily armed, marched into town Wednesday evening. The marshal, who had Tucker in custody, attempted to take him from the jail just as the miners entered, and a rush was made for the negro.

He managed to give his custodian the slip, and jumped under the wharf into the mud flats and eluded both officers and mob until yesterday. At one time there was talk of lynching the officers who allowed Tucker to escape. Finally Tucker was located and shot in the leg. He died of the wound and the mob strug up his body.

Anachronistic.

"Unhand me!" shrieked the heroine of the mediæval drama.

For the hero in tendering his escort had seized her elbow after the modern State street style.

IMPACTED EAR WAX.

Where It Comes From and How It Should Be Treated.

The normal secretion of the orifice of the ear is the product of glands situated in the outer half of the canal only. This secretion—the cerumen, or ear wax—is slowly poured from the gland ducts as a thin, yellowish liquid. As it quickly loses a large amount of its watery elements by evaporation and becomes admixed with dust it forms a thin layer, waxlike in color and consistency, which normally covers only the outer portion of the canal, that in which the glands are located.

This layer of material probably has its chief function, in common with the few small hairs in the same location, in protecting the vibratory membrane—the drum—from the contact of dust.

It is interesting to observe that the exit of this layer of wax is accomplished by nature chiefly with the aid of the motion communicated to the ear canal by the movement of the jaw in chewing and talking, a motion readily felt by touching the orifice with the finger tip during these processes. The constant increase of the secretion is therefore provided with a corresponding loss, which takes place almost as imperceptibly as the constant loss of the superficial layer of the skin from the surface of the body.

This explanation serves to make clear why the use of ear spoons, pins or hairpins is unnecessary. The use of such objects is not only superfluous, but it is often the cause of the very condition which those who use them would prevent.

Even too vigorous washing with a twisted cloth or sponge, for example, may result in pushing the wax back into the canal until a mass sufficient to block the entire opening is accumulated.

The first intimation of the presence of impacted wax is often the sudden occurrence of a considerable degree of deafness. This is most likely to happen on a damp day or just after or during a bath. A slight amount of moisture causes the mass to swell so that the narrow chink previously existing between the mass and the canal is closed. If it is not now removed, the mass may shrink and the hearing power be temporarily restored, only to be lost again when conditions arise causing an increase in the size of the mass.

Firm, gentle syringing with warm water from a piston ear syringe is usually regarded as the safest and best method of removing the mass, the handling of which had better be intrusted to a physician or trained nurse, if possible.—Youth's Companion.

THE COOKBOOK.

In making any sauce put the flour and butter in together, and your sauce will not be lumpy.

A heavy salad is always out of place in an elaborate dinner. Mayonnaise is permissible, but French dressing is better.

If corned beef is very red, which means it is very salt, put it to cook in cold water. This draws out a portion of the salt.

When croquette mixtures are too wet to mold and shape, put in more chopped meat or fish or in a desperate case finely pounded breadcrumbs.

In making custard for lemon pies it is better to partly bake the crust before adding the mixture so that it may not be absorbed by the paste.

Gingerbread is improved by adding to it, when mixing, a cupful of chopped prunes. Use the juice of the prunes instead of water and mix the dough a little stiffer.

Fried breakfast bacon is much improved if cooked in some of the bacon fat saved from the previous day. There should be just enough for the bacon to float in, and it must be hot before the rashers are added. Cook three minutes.

"Stonewall" Jackson's Baptism.

Robert E. Lee and Thomas Jonathan ("Stonewall") Jackson were once stationed at Fort Hamilton, New York harbor, the former while it was being built. Jackson was baptized at old St. John's church at Fort Hamilton, and the records contain the following entry: "On Sunday, 20th of April, 1849, I baptized Thomas Jonathan Jackson, major in the United States army; sponsors, Colonels Taylor and Dimmick, also of the army." The baptismal font used for this ceremony is still preserved.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No Excuse.

A member of a volunteer fire brigade did not appear on the scene of the conflagration until after the fire was under control. He was severely taken to account by the chief for thus neglecting his duty.

"I could not help it," replied the fireman. "I live a long way from the fire."

"That's no excuse," snapped the chief. "You must move nearer the next fire."—London Answers.

Two Aspects.

Pay Your Debts.

"No, sir," declared Gazzan as he warmed up to his subject, "you'll never be happy so long as you are in debt. Pay your debts, Swayback; pay your debts."

"But I have no money," said Swayback.

"Then borrow it."—Detroit Free Press.

Fertile Cuba.

In Cuba cabbages frequently weigh as much as twenty pounds. All vegetables do well. Radishes may be eaten from fourteen to eighteen days after sowing, lettuce in five weeks after sowing, while corn produces three crops per year. Sweet potatoes are perpetual. The natives dig up the tubers, cut them off and plant the old vines, which produce a new crop in three months. All sorts of fruit, horticultural and greenhouse plants and bulbous stock are also grown.

"It's me the flies are biting, my love. If I don't object to it and the flies don't object to it, why should you?"

"But I want to talk to you about this Panama canal, George. It's like other canals, isn't it?"

"Yes, my dear; only it's wider and deeper and shorter."

"But it's just a ditch, isn't it?"

"Yes, my dear, it's just a glorified ditch."

"And what will they do with the dirt they shovel out of it, George?"

"They will dig a hole and bury it, my love."

"There, now, you're stringing me. How long is it going to take to dig it, dear?"

"Oh, a half dozen years."

"My, but that seems a long while to wait if you are in a hurry to get through! And I suppose that they'll break a bottle or something the day it's done, and then somebody will pull a string or something and let the waters of the Pacific flow into the Atlantic. That's fine, isn't it?"

"It's really grand, my love."

"And I was thinking of another thing, George. You know what a fisherman papa is and how he loves to fish for tuna, but hates to go away across to California to find them. Do you think the tuna will swim through the canal so papa can catch them down in Florida?"

"Why not, my love? I have no doubt that all sorts of things from the Pacific side will float through—Chinese scows and whales and seals and walruses and polar bears and"—

"Stop, George! You're a hateful thing!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Insinuation.

It was a warm Sunday morning in church. Fans were fluttering, hymnals flopping, handkerchiefs mopping streaming faces, and the minister thought his audience a little lax in attention. Finally he led up to a rebuke for its lack of consideration for sacred and important things. Said he:

"People are prone to attend to the unimportant things of life."

And he gave a few examples to illustrate his ideas. Presently he made his pertinent application.

"Now," said he, "you are attentive to your own comfort this morning to the sinful neglect of the holy word. Take no thought for the heat," he said dramatically, "for you may be dead tomorrow."—Detroit Free Press.

An Extremist.

"Is Mr. Fusse much afraid of microbes?"

"Well I should say. He washes the antiseptic gauze gloves he wears in an antiseptic fluid before he even handles the sterilized glass that contains the boiled and filtered mineral water he intends to drink!"—Baltimore Herald.

TRADING WAS APATHETIC.

Except Spotty Assortment of Stocks, Thursday—Undertone of Strength Maintained.

New York, Sept. 19.—The stock market maintained its undertone of strength yesterday, but the trading was extremely apathetic outside a spotty assortment of stocks whose show of strength helped to sustain the general list. The money market was quieter, but rates were still stiff. Loans were left undisturbed, however, and no pressure of liquidation was forced. The level of prices therefore was not disturbed, except as the sympathetic influence of the strong stocks helped to harden the market. The Gould group was the most conspicuous. The stocks of independent steel companies were strong as a rule, because of the reports of the extraordinary pressure of orders for all grades of iron and steel products and a degree of activity in production which is limited only by the available supply of material. The freezing weather in the northwest was ignored until the break in the corn and wheat market, which helped to stiffen stocks.

The money outlook continued the principal topic of discussion in the financial district. There was no radical change in the situation yesterday. An additional engagement of half a million dollars Australian gold was announced to arrive several weeks hence. The banks continued to lose to the sub-treasury, notwithstanding the disbursements by that institution on account of October government interest, the customs collections and the deposits for transfer to the interior serving to more than offset the interest payments. The market closed dull and steady.

The bond market was dull and about steady. Total sales, par value, $2,290,000.

U. S. refunding 2s advanced ¾, the 3s ¼ and the old 4s ⅛ per cent. The new 4s declined ¼ on the last call.

MET WITH DEFEAT FOR THIRD TIME

Jamestown Made Many Errors and an Insufficient Number of Hits.

PITCHING OF KID BARKER

Was Altogether Too Fast for the Visitors — Jamestown's Twirler Did Well, But Had Only Very Discouraging Support—Score, 5 to 2.

Before an unusually large crowd the local base ball team made it three straight from Jamestown yesterday afternoon in West End park. The game could have been faster, but it was swift enough—a little too swift for the visitors.

To an insufficient number of hits and an oversupply of errors is credited Jamestown's defeat. That new pitcher that they imported should be signed as a regular for next year. He can outclass their other twirlers and give them cards and spades. The support that he received, though, was enough to dishearten him and cause him to leave the field in disgust. He was a steady fellow, however, and allowed nothing to interfere with his good work. It was six of one and a half dozen of the other between himself and Kid Barker. The latter had some the best of it in strikeouts, but he was hit almost as freely.

Gibson, Reark and Rising went out in less time than it takes to tell it in the first inning. Freck, Campbell and Lytle did also. In the second four men faced the pitcher on the local side, but not a run nor a hit was scored. Barker certainly was pitching them some in this inning. He made the only three men up beat nothing but the wind. Four men managed to face him in the next, but there was nothing doing. One of them landed for three bases, but that was the farthest point he reached. The locals went out in a way similar to the first inning.

Campbell, starting the fourth with a single, made things look a little brighter for the visitors. He died at second and the other four up made no showing. Reark, first at it for the locals, got a two-bagger. Rising went out from third. Reilly stepped forward and belted the ball for two long bases. Reark scored. Barker was out. Davis walked. Heckathorn was out and Reilly died.

Great strides the visitors made in the fifth. Russell walked. Peiper reached first on Reilly's error. Weihrauch singled and scored Russell. Freck got a hit and Peiper went out on a brave attempt to reach third. Campbell and Freck went out on a double play. A goose egg was all that the locals could score, nothwithstanding that Emmerling got a pretty hit.

The way that Barker pulled out of a hole in the sixth was a lovely sight to see. Lytle hit for two bases. McKinley went out. Kane singled and pushed Lytle to third. Kane advanced a base and everything looked very favorable for a couple of runs. But they did not get them. The next two men went out. The locals here practically won the game. Rising hit and was followed by Reilly, who did likewise. Barker walked. And Davis reached first on a fielder's choice. Rising tried to make it in, but was intercepted. Reilly and Barker each scored on Kane's error of Heckathorn's easy one. Heckathorn was thrown out at second. Webb fanned.

In one, two, three order the visitors went down during the remainder of the game, and the locals let them off with the addition of two, one in the seventh and another one in the eighth.

Rising and Reilly made sensational catches. They are fast numbers and such plays are frequent occurrences with them.

THE RELIEF OF CROSS EYES

is a branch of the business which most opticians ignore. But there is a logical reason for this neglect on their part. Cross eyes are caused from muscular imbalance, and muscular imbalance is something the great majority of opticians do not understand. Since coming here I have straightened over a dozen pairs of crossed eyes and have not failed in a single case. I do it with glasses, too, and without pain or trouble.

AMERICAN FRIARS.

Augustinians Will Send Them to Replace Spanish, In Philippines.

MAY THUS SOLVE PROBLEM.

Two of the Distinguished Men of the Order Selected From About a Dozen Volunteers—Others Are to Follow at Intervals.

Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—An important step toward the solution of the troubles in the Philippine islands, caused by the presence of the Spanish friars there, was taken yesterday at Villa Nova college, when the Most Rev. Thomas Rodriquez, O. S. A., of Rome, prior general of the Augustinian order throughout the world, announced that Rev. Daniel J. O. O'Mahony, of Andover, Mass., and Rev. J. E. McErlaine, of Villa Nova, had been ordered to the Philippines as pioneers in the movement of American priests to those islands to succeed the Spaniards.

The two priests will leave for Manila within the next two weeks, and will be followed in a short time, it is believed, by several other American Augustinians. Both clergymen chosen are distinguished and able members of the order. They were selected from among about a dozen volunteers who offered their services to the prior general in case he needed American Augustinians for the Philippines. Many of the Spanish friars in the Philippines belong to the order.

FOR LOSSES IN CHINA.

State Department Sends Money to American Missions Board.

Boston, Sept. 19.—The officers of the American board of foreign missions announced yesterday the receipt of $57,933 through the state department at Washington. The amount is 25 per cent of the award made to the board by the commission now in session in China for losses on mission property in the Boxer outrage of 1900. This money is said to come very opportunely to reimburse the treasury for sums already expended in rebuilding in North China and also to meet other urgent calls of the same sort.

The total award very nearly equals the amount of the claim presented by the board two years since, the changes and reduction being merely nominal. The award for the personal losses of missionaries has not yet been made, but will soon be forwarded from Pekin to Washington.

Spoke From Experience.

A man who tries to uphold all his statements with the prop of personal experience is pretty sure, sooner or later, to find himself in difficulties.

"What kind of posts should you say I'd better have for my piazza?" asked a summer resident of the oracle of Bushville. "Cedar?"

"No," was the instant reply; "not 'less you want to pay for poor stuff. Git pine. Pine will last you a hundred years."

"Are you sure?" asked the summer resident doubtfully.

"Sure!" echoed the oracle. "I never state a thing without I can prove it. I've tried 'em both. Tried 'em twice on my south porch, I tell you!"

Ways of the Statesmen.

Many years ago, when England was engaged in foreign complications, the first lord of the admiralty sent Admiral Codrington a dispatch which was most peaceful as far as it appeared before the public. He told him not to take his ships into action and so forth, but in a corner he wrote this short private note, "Go it, Ned!" And Codrington went to Navarino and smashed up the Turkish fleet.

Same Old Story.

"Wonder why the grizzly bear isn't exhibiting himself today?" said the African lion gently.

"He's laid up. The tortoise bit him," replied the lioness.

"Well, that's what he gets for fooling with a shell game."—Colorado Springs Gazette.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature and of Matters About Town.

Barbers' Meeting—The barbers' local held a short session last evening, but only matters of a routine nature were considered.

Soon to Marry—Frank Stoub and Miss Blanche Hulse, of this city, are soon to be married and will go to housekeeping at once.

To Entertain Tonight—Miss Margaret Thomas will entertain a number of her young girl friends at her home on Seventh street, this evening.

Visited a Sick Brother—At the close of the meeting of the Red Men last evening members of the order visited the home of John Brannon, a member of the order who has been ill for several weeks.

Car Became Useless—The safety appliances on the Calcutta hill street car became useless at a late hour last night, due, it is said, to the bad condition of the car, and it was necessary to send to the barn for assistance.

Will Entertain Pupils—Mrs. Dr. J. T. Elliott will this evening entertain the members of her Sunday school class. The class contains about 15 girls, who are looking forward with great anticipation to a jovial evening.

Eyes Operated Upon—At the Alliance hospital yesterday morning Dr. G. L. King successfully operated upon Robert J. Boyce, of East Liverpool, for the removal of a cataract of the left eye. Mr. Boyce is 76 years of age, but stood the operation well.

College Centennial—Attorney John J. Kerr is in receipt of an invitation from the faculty of the Washington & Jefferson college of Pennsylvania to attend the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the college. Mr. Kerr is a graduate of the college class of '77. He will likely attend the anniversary, which is to be held on October 14, 15 and 16, and anticipates an enjoyable time.

Pleasant Surprise Party—A very pleasant surprise party was tendeded Harry Albright at his home on Avondale street last evening, previous to his departure for school, at Mt. Union college, next Monday. The young people amused themselves with phonograph recitations and several piano solos by Miss Lucy Bucher, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

VERY SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL AT THE Y. M. C. A. HALL.

Pleasing Program Presented—Similar Entertainment Planned for Next Month.

The first social and entertainment of the season given last evening by the Y. M. C. A. and the Ladies' auxiliary in the rooms of the association was highly enjoyed by over 150 young people.

Many words of praise were uttered today for those who had the affair in charge, and it is the hope of all that were present that the social committee will see fit to have similar demonstrations very often.

The following program was carried out and each participant received merited applause: Stereopticon views of the east, the Holy Land, included, by Dr. Charles Birkett, assisted by Secretary Wright; vocal solo, "The Holy City," by M. C. Williams, state secretary of the association located at Cleveland; selection by Ormes orchestra; piano solo, Charles Usler; solo, Miss Jones; selection by orchestra; solo, Mr. Blount; selection by orchestra.

After the program a delicious repast, consisting of cake, coffee and fruit, was enjoyed. A social session followed for an hour or more, after which the members of the Ladies' auxiliary held a short conference and decided to present another home talent entertainment the latter part of next month. Col. A. V. Newton, of Worcester, Mass., will have charge and has suggested that "A Mock Trial, or Who Stole the Rooster?" be played.

BOYS' SCHOOL CLOTHING

Take our word for it, that not alone are varieties the greatest here, but that prices are noticeably lower, or qualities noticeably better. Suits for a dollar and suits for ten dollars. Nothing too good for our trade. Just make up your mind you won't spend a penny for boys' attire until the Erlanger stock has been examined, and save yourself repentance at leisure.

GILLIAND TALKS OF HIS DISCHARGE

He Has Found Another Place, But Is Sorry That He Lost the Old One.

FOLLOWED HIS CONSCIENCE

In Trying to Convert His Fellow Workmen—Says a Revolution Is Necessary for the Moral Reform of the Shop Workers of This City.

Glenn Gilliand, the young man, late of Meigs county, who was discharged on Monday from the Brunt Porcelain works because he prayed too loud and long when, as the man states under whom he worked, his time should have been consumed in fulfilling the duties incident to his position, in an interview with a New Review reporter last evening made the following statement:

"The story concerning me published in your paper surprised me very much. I did not think that my former employer would treat me so fairly. He gave the particulars completely. It is possible that the people in general of this city scorned me when they read the articles. Nevertheless I am willing to bear the contempt and I think that I will prosper in the end if I continue doing as my heart dictates. The men among whom I labored struck me as being sorely in need of the prayers that I uttered in their behalf. They all seemed to absolutely disregard religion, and I really could not conscientiously work with them and refrain from doing all within my power to point out to them the course and the only course which leads to eternal glory and happiness.

"I am sorry that I was discharged. Not because the work at that plant was particularly pleasing or fascinating, but because I am no longer able to place before the employes the path which they should follow. Among the workshops of this city a revolution must take place. In the shops are employed almost as many girls and women as men. Parents certainly are not in favor of their children being subjected to the vile tongues that now predominate in the shops. The young daughter thrown into the shops to help in the support of a family is brought in contact with the profanity and vulgar epithets which are allowed to flow at the will of indecent men. Nothing can start a girl on the road to ruins so fast as her intimacy with such men.

"The course that I followed was never before adopted by me. I did it simply because I felt it my duty to do so. I live on the promise that the righteous will prosper. Whatever I do when my heart and religion are at the back of it I know that I will not suffer. I am now working at the Williams' cooper shop on Second street. They hired me there on the morning following the day I was discharged. It gives me pleasure to work at the cooper shop. The men employed there are on a higher level. They do not need any advice from me.

"Since my experience of the last few weeks I have entirely changed the plans that I laid for a course in college to prepare myself for the ministry. In three weeks I am going to apply to the Free Methodist conference for a charge, and if given an appointment I will endeavor to carry out the principles of Christ, and thereby lead the erring ones to a life of eternal joy."

NEW INFIRMARY

Jefferson County Commissioners Decide to Have One—Present Building Overtaxed.

Steubenville, Sept. 19.—Jefferson county must have a new infirmary. That question has been decided by the county commissioners, and it only remains for the people to ratify the decision of the commissioners by a vote at the polls. As the erection of new infirmary buildings means a saving of expenses every year there is little or no doubt but that the taxpayers will quickly and willingly vote for the appropriation to erect new buildings.

Just wht the new buildings will cost has not yet been determined. The commissioners have had no plans prepared or estimates made, but it is safe to say that the cost will be anywhere from $75,000 to $100,000, and there is reason for this. The present old rattletrap infirmary buildings are crowded full and contrary to law the directors are caring for a number of cases on the outside of the infirmary. The population of the county is increasing rapidly, and many of the new citizens are foreigners working in mines where most of the infirmary cases are received from. At the present time there are over eighty-five inmates in the infirmary and if a half dozen more were sent out there the superintendent would have no place to put them.

ENGLAND ALSO PROTESTS.

Germany Takes Ground That United States Acted Within Rights, as to Roumania.

Berlin, Sept. 19.—The German foreign office has received a note from the British government inviting some action on the part of the signatories of the treaty of Berlin of 1878 regarding Roumania's treatment of Jews. The British note is shorter than that of the United States on the same subject, but it pursues the same end. It is assumed here that Great Britain knew of the United States' step beforehand and acted in support thereof. The United States action is regarded as being quite within her rights, in seeking the assistance of the signatories in preventing an influx of indigent immigrants, which is recognized as a substantial grievance. These two notes will result in an interchange of views between the powers as to what action is feasible. In the meantime it is expected that Roumania will take cognizance of the United States' protest and defend her case upon her own initiative before the signatories.

The foregoing represents the views of the German government, but the press, knowing nothing of the British note, seems to consider the United States' note action as simply chivalrous and as not likely to result in practical measures. The Vossische geitung says, in part, that while thinking Germany will do nothing it still believes that the action of the United States cannot fail to have a strong moral effect.

INJUNCTION AGAINST FIGHT.

Granted by Louisville Judge, Yesterday—Club Manager to Ask Dissolution, Today.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 19.—Judge Field, in the Jefferson circuit court last night, granted the injunction prayed for by State's Attorney General Pratt to prevent the contest between Terry McGovern and "Young" Corbett, scheduled for next Monday night. The attorneys for the Southern Athletic club will apply to the court of appeals today for a disolution of the injunction, and a decision in this matttr is expected by noon. A disolution of the injunction by the appellate court would mean a victory for the promoters of the contest.

Concerning Judge Field's decision, Manager Robert C. Gray, of the Southern Athletic club, said last night:

"At 11 o'clock tomorrow morning my attorneys will apply to a judge of the court of appeal for a dissolution of the injunction. The defense claims Judge Field has no jurisdiction against an alleged criminal offense. I am absolutely confident that the contest will take place."

SOME TRI-STATE EVENTS.

At the Pennsylvania Medical society meeting at Allentown these officers were elected: President, William M. Welch, Philadelphia; vice presidents, H. H. Herbst, Allentown; G. F. Bell, Lycoming; G. W. McNeal, Pittsburg; S. P. Heilman, Lebanon.

Members of the One Hundredth and Eleventh regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, in reunion at Erie, Pa., elected officers as follows: President, Captain George Selkregg, of North East; vice president, W. J. Alexander, of Warren; secretary, Captain John L. Wells, of Erie; treasurer, A. W. Merrick, of Corry; historian, the Rev. J. R. Boyle, of Philadelphia.

Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, superintendent of public instruction of Pennsylvania, has designated Friday, Oct. 17, as Autumn Arbor day to be observed by the schools.

A black bear, which has been preying on the farmers of Sand Ridge, near Philippi, W. Va., has reappeared at Valley Furnace, where he attacked a little girl who was picking elderberries. The girl's father arrived in time to rescue her, but she was considerably scratched by the animal's claws.

At Wheeling, W. Va., Joshua T. Jackson, convicted of criminally assaulting Etta Montgomery, aged 12, was sentenced to the penitentiary for seven years.

The new $200,000 court house for Wetzel county, W. Va., has been accepted and the next session of the circuit court will be held in it.

At Bucyrus, O., because the county commissioners granted a franchise to the Logan Natural Gas company, Charles Gallinger, prosecuting attorney, has resigned. Gallinger wanted the gas company to be shut out until it gave the county free gas for the court house and jail.

Louis D. Desilets, a salesman at Bucyrus, O., has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Assets nearly $5,000.

At Ashtabula, O., A. L. Haskell was shooting at a mark, when his shotgun exploded, a greater part of the charge entering his head, penetrating the brain. He is paralyzed, unconscious and will not recover.

At Washington C. H., O., because of the apparent purpose to elect Dr. A. H. Norcross, of Grace M. E. church, as presiding elder of the Columbus district, the congregation has started a zealous movement to secure his return to his present station.

AGAINST SALARIES FOR COUNCILMEN

Ohio Senate Agrees to This As Regards Villiages in the State.

THE BEAL LAW APPROVED

Upper House Puts It in the Code Without a Dissenting Vote—Legislature Has Adjourned to Go to Cincinnati.

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—The legislature adjourned yesterday until next Tuesday, to attend the fall festival at Cincinnati, Friday. The members and families will be the guests of the Fall Festival association. The house committee has adopted a plan for public improvements by providing that material is to be purchased through competitive bidding, while the city will employ the labor. Assessments for public improvement will be made on market value of benefited property, value to be fixed by committee appointed by the mayor. Interest on bonds fixed at 6 per cent as maximum, while premium from sale of bonds is to be applied to the sinking fund.

When the senate met yesterday morning the Chamberlain amendment was agreed to without a dissenting vote. It simply preserves the Beal law, which would have been repealed had the Nash code gone through as drafted. The fear of the saloon people which restored the workhouse law was not well founded, and when they saw the mistake they withdrew from the opposition to the Chamberlain amendment.

The senate yesterday began consideration of the village code. After long and spirited discussion an amendment by Mr. Harris to allow members of village councils small salaries was voted down. Men who have resided in a village one year, instead of five, were made eligible to election to executive offices therein. Deposit of village funds in private banks having paid capital of not less than $10,000 was authorized.

PATTISON ADDRESSED GRANGERS

Also Spoke at Huntingdon, Pa. Other Members of Party Also Made Speeches.

Huntingdon, Pa., Sept. 19.—The Democratic gubernatorial campaigners spent some time at Centre Hall yesterday and were greeted by the Grangers, who were holding their annual picnic there. The Pattison party was met at Coburn upon its arrival from Harrisburg by a committee, headed by County Chairman J. J. Bower, and escorted to the picnic grounds. Candidates Pattison and Guthrie shook hands for nearly two hours and then they were taken to the Auditorium, where a great and enthusiastic meeting was held. Ex-Governor Pattison and Mr. Guthrie spoke. Senator Herbst, of Berks county, made a hit with a short address in Pennsylvania Dutch, and Representative Mayne, of Lehigh, did the same. Major Moses Veale also spoke briefly, and State Chairman Creasy, for whom the crowd clamored, spoke.

At Tyrone a reception committee from Huntingdon boarded the special car in which the campaigners are now being moved about, and acted as escort to Huntingdon.

A great crowd surrounded the station, and after a hurried supper there was a parade to the court house, where the meeting was very largely attended. Mr. Pattison, Mr. Guthrie, Representative Mayne and Major Veale spoke.

BISHOP VISITS STRIKE REGION.

Fallows Said Operators Have Made a Mistake.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 19.—Bishop Fallows, of Chicago, arrived here last night. He visited eight collieries and a washery, en route from Philadelphia, and found none at work. On the same train was John Markle, of the firm of G. B. Markle & Co., who has represented the individual coal interests at all of the conferences of the operators. He said that after conversing with Mr. Markle and the miners he had reached the conclusion that the operators had made a mistake in opposing arbitration of their differences.

President of Miami Inaugurated.

Oxford, O., Sept. 19.—Dr. Guni Potter Benton, late president of the Upper University of Iowa, was inaugurated as president of Miami university yesterday afternoon. Numerous college presidents from Ohio and other states were present. President James B. Angell, of the University of Michigan, delivered the principal address on education. Addresses were also made by Governor Nash, State School Commissioner Bonebrake, President George E. McLain, of Iowa State university, and President O. W. Thompson, of the Ohio State university.

Talisman Emerald Of Oajaca

Precious Stone Revered By Mexican Indians

For years, ever since Mexico was opened to the white man, every traveler to that romantic land has heard of the emerald of Oajaca. Rumor said that it was huge almost beyond belief. Whatever its size, it was certain that the Indians believed in its magic properties. No white man ever saw it, but now an American woman has succeeded, through a sister woman's gratitude, where men found failure.

This emerald of Oajaca has for ages been the object of covetous interest on the part of Spanish viceroys, Mexican presidents and provincial governors. Great dealers in precious stones have sought it, too, but the Indians as the lineal descendants of the Aztecs, to whom the emerald is supposed to have originally belonged, hold it in superstitious reverence and such safe keeping that until recent years little but unconfirmed legend of the stone's existence was known.

A few years ago President Diaz became so interested in the matter that he decided to prove the truth or fallacy of the reports of this emerald's size and value. Without warning he suddenly appeared in the village where it was said the gem was secreted. He summoned the people into the plaza and announced that if they would show him the emerald known to be in their possession he would in return proclaim a public holiday and entertain them with a fiesta at his own expense. He promised as president and by virtue of the same blood in his and their veins that if they would accede to his request he would not attempt to take the emerald from them.

Upon this a prolonged consultation ensued among the Indians, the result of which was that from afar off in the crowd one of them held up at arm's length between his forefinger and thumb the famous emerald, scintillating in the rays of the sun. Diaz was desirous of a closer inspection and, turning to his guards, ordered the man to be brought to him. His actions if not his words were at once considered by the Indians to be suspicious, so they promptly raised a tumult, and, amid shouts of "Viva Porfirio Diaz!" and "Viva la fiesta!" the man and the emerald disappeared, and this was the only glimpse the powerful president was able to obtain of it.

An American woman had better fortune. It happened that her husband was appointed to superintend the medical department of the railroad being built through Oajaca and incidentally saved the life of an Indian woman. In her gratitude this woman begged to be allowed to make some recompense, as the American doctor had refused to accept a fee. But half in jest he replied that if she would show him the Oajaca emerald he would be satisfied. At this the woman seemed greatly disturbed. She at first declared she knew nothing about it, but on being pressed further by the doctor's wife she admitted knowing where it was hidden. Finally she agreed that if the doctor would solemnly promise to absent himself she would obtain the stone and show it to his wife. For some unexplained reason she held so steadfastly to this point that the wife must be alone when the emerald was produced that it was yielded, though much to the doctor's disappointment.

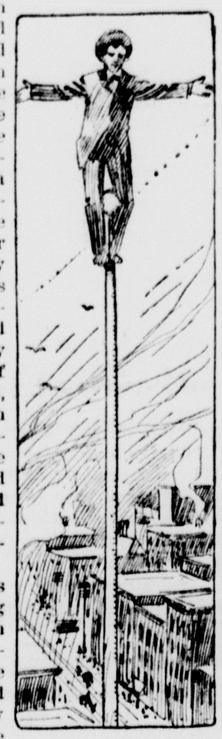

So one morning shortly after the Indian woman appeared at the physician's temporary residence. She made sure that the doctor's wife and herself were alone. Then she produced the emerald from a fold of her clothing. For about a minute only was the doctor's wife permitted to inspect the gem while it was held securely in the Indian woman's fingers. In size, according to the fortunate visitor's account, the stone is as large as a pigeon's egg, crudely polished and of a rich, grass green color. In its depths she noticed a few black spots or flaws, which go far to prove that it is a genuine emerald and not volcanic glass, as has been suggested. The purest emeralds are seldom without flaws, this being one of the tests.

In great haste the Indian woman again secreted the gem and went out but one curious circumstance the doctor and his wife remarked subsequently. During the remainder of their stay in the village, though they met the woman several times, neither by word or sign would she recognize their previous relations. She treated them as absolute strangers. To her mind the risk she had run in showing the talisman of her tribe was full compensation for the service rendered. The general belief is that the stone is not secreted in any place, but is concealed on the person of one of the Indians and passed on as circumstances may require. If such is the case, the woman must have obtained the gem by stealth, and during the time it was in her possession she was doubtless in no little danger of her life.

Daring Pose of a Flagpole Painter

James Raney of San Francisco is the champion steeple climber and flagpole painter on the Pacific coast.

Raney is a thin, wiry man, pale and somewhat weary looking, not at all the sort of person that one would expect to find in possession of the courage and reserve force which he must necessarily have. It is a type which history has made us familiar with, for many men of Raney's build have distinguished themselves by the doing of desperate deeds, and all of them owe their distinction to the cold, clear and undisturbed brain which Raney's trade demands of him.

So little does the terrifying height at which he works trouble him that he voluntarily and cheerfully climbed the flagstaff on the top of the Firemen's Fund building and stood with his feet on the pole just where the rod that holds the ball springs from the main shaft and raised himself to his full height without support, at least 120 feet from the ground, where he was photographed.

"I have painted during the last five years nearly all the high flagpoles in San Francisco," said Raney to a reporter. "The pole which I was photographed on at the Firemen's Fund building was not by any means the highest.

"I remember climbing a pole in Seattle, Wash., that was 160 feet from the ground. That was a flagpole having its foundations in the ground, not placed on the top of a building. That was the highest pole that I have ever climbed. I have been higher than that on buildings many times."

Risked Her Life to Save Two Children

At the congress of life savers which was recently held at Nantes, France, the life saving work of American women received particular attention, inasmuch as they contribute not a little to the life saving service in the United States.

Not only does an association of women known as the Blue Anchor society supply all the life saving stations with clothing for shipwrecked people, but the wives and daughters of the station keepers frequently do heroic work in the rescue of drowning persons. Perhaps no record of life saving is deserving more praise than the recent exploit of Miss Lillian Damon of Boston, who rescued two children from watery graves at Milford, Conn.

When Miss Damon went to Milford a couple of months ago to enjoy a summer outing, she could not swim a stroke, but she soon became an expert and just in time to save the lives of Ruth and Frank Stanley, eleven and nine years old respectively.

The children were playing in a boat on Long Island sound when the boat became unfastened from its moorings and started to drift away with the tide. They screamed and jumped into the water.

Miss Damon, who was fully dressed, plunged into the water from the shore. She swam a hundred feet to where the children were struggling, locked in each other's arms. Grasping the girl by the hair, she soon had the little ones on shore, where they had to be rolled on a barrel before they were revived.

Miss Damon is not yet twenty years old. She is a tall and graceful blond of beautiful face and figure.

MEN IN OLIVE DRAB

NEW UNIFORM PRESCRIBED FOR UNCLE SAM'S FIGHTERS.

Gold Braid and Profuse Ornamentation Take the Place of Simplicity. Chaplain a Somber Figure — Foreign Medals Tabooed.

Secretary of War Root has ordered that Uncle Sam's fighters, from general of the army to private soldier, shall be arrayed henceforth in habiliments more suggestive of the grandeur and wealth of the nation than the modest uniform heretofore worn.

The prevailing color of the new uniform is to be olive drab for active duty in the field, because this color is less noticeable at a distance.

But it must not be supposed that the "man in blue" is to be entirely eliminated. He will be very much in evidence except when in a campaign. On all dress occasions blue is still to be the color of the uniform, but when doing duty in the field Uncle Sam's soldiers will be the "men in olive drab."

The new uniform is decidedly fetching. The full dress coat is to be a double breasted frock of dark blue cloth, with standing collar of dark blue velvet, the skirt reaching from one-half to three-quarters the distance from the point of the hip to the bend of the knee. The shoulder knots are of gold wire cord. The collar will be ornamented with a band of oak leaves embroidered in gold and extending all the way around. If the officer has not the rank of general, then the collar ornament will consist of two bands of one-half inch gold wire braid, passing all around the collar and parallel with its edge, on a ground of silk or cloth of the collar of the corps, department or arm of the service.

The full dress trousers for general officers will be of dark blue cloth, with two stripes of gold wire braid half an inch wide with a quarter of an inch interval between them mounted upon dark blue velvet and placed along the outside seam of the trousers.

The enlisted men will retain for dress purposes a uniform of dark blue, but the service coat will be of olive drab, the same color as prescribed for officers. In tropical climates white will be worn, and for troops serving in cold climates a special uniform has been adopted. A shoulder strap will be placed on each shoulder, and in the case of officers the collar will be ornamented.

In the new regulations the chaplain's uniform has been simplified. His full dress uniform will consist of a black frock coat with standing collar, one row of nine black silk buttons on the breast. His trousers will be of plain black or blue black cloth, with stripe of lustrous mohair braid along the outside seam. He will wear a black hat, white gloves and blackened shoes.

One thing that the department's order forbids that will cause some dissatisfaction among the men who have them is that no decorations received from a foreign government shall be worn by officers or men while on duty with United States troops.

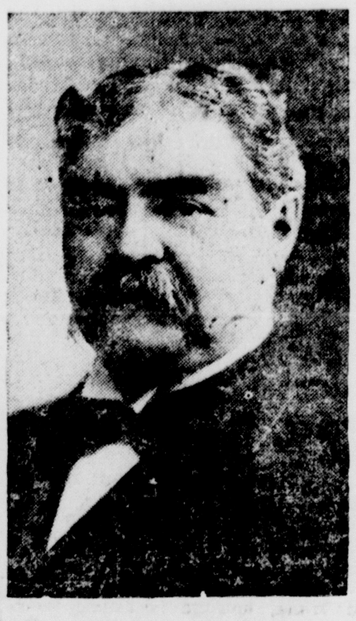

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

President Roosevelt to Attend Their Encampment at Detroit.

It is expected that 50,000 members of the Society of Spanish War Veterans will attend the annual encampment to be held at Detroit Sept. 22 to 25, inclusive. The programme as partially announced is as follows:

Monday morning, Sept. 22, opening of convention; address by President Roosevelt; afternoon 2 p. m., big parade of all military, semimilitary and civic bodies. The president will head the parade to the reviewing stand, where the parade will be reviewed by the president and invited guests. At 4 p. m., lake ride for the president, national officers of the Spanish war veterans and invited guests. Evening, a banquet in honor of the president and the Spanish war veterans.

Tuesday morning, time taken up with the session of the convention; Tuesday afternoon, boat ride and lunch for invited guests, national officers of Spanish war veterans and delegates.

Wednesday morning, time occupied by the session of the convention; evening, camp fire, entertainment, lunch and general good time at Light Guard armory.

Thursday morning, the closing session of the convention.

President Roosevelt will arrive in Detroit Sunday morning, and after attending church he will lunch with General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. In the afternoon he will be entertained by the committee with a drive to places of interest. That the encampment will be a great success is fully assured.

Detroit's executive committee having the arrangements in charge for entertaining the delegates and visiting comrades is composed of the leading men of that city, among them being Mayor William C. Maybury and General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. General Alger is chairman of the committee on reception. Mayor William C. Maybury is chairman of the executive committee and has the assistance of the leading business men of Detroit, as well as the Spanish war veterans of that city. There are about 1,200 members in Detroit.

NEW SURGEON GENERAL.

Has Seen Much Service In Indian Campaigns.

Colonel Robert Maitland O'Reilly, the new surgeon general of the army, has for a number of years been chief medical officer of the department of California, stationed at San Francisco, until ordered to Washington to relieve Surgeon General William H. Forwood, who retires under the age limit.

Colonel O'Reilly is a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of the medical department of the university of Pennsylvania. He entered the regular army in August, 1862, and did hospital duty during the civil war, much of the time as field surgeon at the front.

In April, 1867, Colonel O'Reilly was appointed an assistant surgeon with the rank of first lieutenant, and accompanied recruits to California and Arizona. The greater part of his service for several years was in the west, where he accompanied the troops on various Indian expeditions. Advanced to the position of post surgeon he has served at the most important army posts throughout the country.

TO THE THOUSANDS SUFFERING FROM

Dispensia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Impoverished Blood and General Exhaustion.

During the last year thousands of Americans have flocked to Germany, to avail themselves of the wonderful curative powers of the famed

TRAUBENKUR OR GRAPE CURE

The fame of these cures for such diseases is world-wide and the astonishing results have been recognized by physicians the world over. There can be no doubt or no quibbling. The grape cures have restored health to many thousands of Americans. Their absolute worth is no longer questioned, but only a few can afford the time and expense of a visit to the Traubenkur. It has remained for an American Chemical Co., the Lightning Medicine Co., of Rock Island, to combine all the best elements of the Traubenkur in and it has now been placed on general sale throughout America in drug stores at only 50 cents per bottle, so the suffering of all classes have the full benefit of these great curative agents.

Think what it mens to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

LOUIS BONHART of Lawrence, Neb., says: "I have been afflicted with stomach trouble for the past three years. At times it grew so severe and annoying that I was compelled to quit work for two or three days each week, when the pains in my stomach were beyond endurance. I took but three bottles and am today perfectly well. I used nothing else but Mull's Grape Tonic. To me it is more than worth its weight in gold."

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the results. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

If used with a little chopped ice it will be found a delicious drink.

JOHN BROWN'S HOMES

MOVEMENTS TO PRESERVE THEM AS HISTORIC MEMORIALS.

How Connecticut Is Looking After a Homestead Once Owned by the Antislavery Hero — Adirondack Home Needs Attention.

A movement which might be described as a John Brown revival seems to be well under way. Efforts are being made to preserve as historical monuments the various houses where the pioneer abolitionist lived during his varied career.

In Connecticut there has been organized the John Brown association. Its special object is to maintain the old Brown homestead in West Torrington, Conn. The association is hunting for a caretaker who will occupy the hundred acres of farm rent free and keep off relic hunters. Its members believe that the old house in a good state of preservation will be a far better memorial than the monument to be erected with the $1,000 appropriated for that purpose by the last Connecticut legislature.

The Adirondack homestead of John Brown, near North Elba, N. Y., where he spent his last days and where his ashes lie at rest, is also sadly in need of attention. Visitors have noticed that the historic farm is in worse condition than it has been in years, and they say the state of New York should do something to preserve the place. Summer guests at the various hotels in the vicinity who have been making their annual pilgrimages to the one time home and grave of the antislavery hero have expressed themselves indignantly over the condition in which they find the buildings and especially the house.

The present caretaker of the place is Mr. Reuben Lawrence, and residents of the locality, who have known him for years as a thrifty, industrious man, know that whatever blame for the present condition of the John Brown farm may rightly exist none can attach to him. The rear portion of the house has not been repaired since Brown built it years ago, and now it is scarcely habitable, although Mr. Lawrence's family are obliged to use it for lack of room. The floor timbers were originally supported by huge logs. These have rotted away, allowing the floor to sink and become unsafe. The dropping away of these timbers has also had its effect upon the whole rear portion of the house, causing the roof to sag. In addition the old shingles have started up so that the roof leaks badly. It is asserted that the total repairs needed on all the buildings would not cost over $1,000.

Another matter which should receive prompt attention is the proper marking of the graves of John Brown's two sons, Oliver and Watson, buried beside their father. These graves are now simply marked by plain wooden stakes bearing no inscriptions whatever. The original stone planted above John Brown's grave was some years ago covered with a wooden frame having a glass front. This still stands and has served to protect the stone. This stone is appropriately inscribed, as is also the huge bowlder at the head of all three graves. It was Brown's last wish that his body be laid at rest beside this great stone he had learned to love in early life.

That John Brown thought much of his peaceful little Adirondack home this last wish reveals. It was not the place of his birth. He had lived in many larger places in the more fertile lands of the west. In the milder climates he had spent portions of his life. But it was John Brown the man, not John Brown the reformer, who made that last simple request. Worn out in a fruitless endeavor, deserted by friends, facing death, John Brown's strife sickened heart yearned again for that little green dip in the Adirondack hills, for the soughing of the trees, for the birds, for the sunshine, for the rolling fields and the blue hills beyond, for that home where he had spent fourteen of the pleasantest years of his life. And he asked to be buried beside the great bowlder where he had built that little home many years before.

The request was heeded, and his bones lie beside the great bowlder, and floating in the mountain breezes the stars and stripes high overhead proclaim to the country for miles around that within that little iron railed inclosure is a spot of sacred ground.

A RETROSPECT OF THE TENNIS SEASON.

English Invasion the Year's Principal Feature—Dohertys Are Superb Players.

Greatest of all tennis players are the Doherty brothers of England, and their victorious career at the various tournaments in which they have participated shows them to have mastered the game to a sensational degree. These British brothers, in fact, have contributed largely to the success and picturesqueness of probably the most interesting season in the history of American tennis.

Beginning early in the spring, east, west, north and south the racket wielders evinced active interest in local, state and sectional tournaments, determining to place the game once more in the high position it held before golf, cycling, etc., robbed it of its supremacy. The measure of their success can readily be noted by glancing over the records of the year. Entries have doubled, attendance at matches doubled and expenditure tripled. Surely this is a vindication if any one deems that tennis needs vindicating.

Probably the greatest surprise of the year was the defeat by the Dohertys of Holcombe Ward of Orange, N. J., and Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis in the international and national championship doubles. While it was generally conceded on this side during the summer that the Britons had an admirable chance to carry home the doubles title, few impartial observers who had gone over the situation carefully could see where they could worst the American champions. A comparison of the two doubles teams on a strict form basis gave a very bright aspect to the American side of the question, but after the visitors arrived and showed at Longwood, Mass., that they were playing a game nothing short of superlative the Yankee hearts began to beat with less confidence.

In the international matches at Bay Ridge, New York, the Britons won out simply through superior endurance. They have the art of saving strength down to a science, and, although Ward and Davis took the first set in easy fashion, the visitors never let that fact bother them for a moment. They seldom made an unnecessary move, never making an effort to get a return that appeared out of reach. In this particular they presented a sharp contrast to the Americans, who tried for almost everything that came over the net. Consequently, while the Britishers did not play a spectacular game at all times, they reserved every ounce of energy for the final games. Their victory in the last three sets at Bay Ridge showed the superiority of their studied method.

In few contests on this side did the Dohertys start out in winning form.

S. F. DOHERTY, WHO DEFEATED CHAMPION LARNED AT BAY RIDGE, NEW YORK.

Both in individual matches and doubles the opening games invariably went to the Americans. At Newport, in the national championships, however, they took the doubles championship in straight sets.

A GREAT PEACH CROP

THAT WHICH GREW AROUND NEW YORK IN THE YEAR 1679.

Apparently the Luscious Fruit Was More Abundant on Manhattan Island Than Anything Else Except Bad Barbados Rum.

Books of travel usually contain a vast amount of matter that is unimportant and a good deal that is untrue, besides not a little that is uninteresting, and the old travelers who wrote about their voyages to New York furnished few exceptions to the rule.

Tantalizing, therefore, is the diary of an observer who visited these shores in 1679; who had a reportorial instinct for the important, the true and the interesting; whose journeys covered the entire territory now known as the Greater New York; who wrote fully and graphically of all he saw, and whose observations have all come down to us, with the exception of some thirty pages describing New York city at the time of his visit. Exactly that which would now be most valuable is lost; but, from what remains, we can learn a good deal about the New York of those days.

Jaspar Dankers is the writer whose impressions of New York have thus been lost to the world, and in what has been preserved of his writings the chief thing that forces its attention upon the reader is the magnitude of the peach crop in these parts during the year of his visit. He was a religious enthusiast, the leader of the Labadists, a sect that flourished briefly on three continents toward the close of the seventeenth century, and his voyage companion was a minister of the same sect.

But there is little of this in his diary against a great deal of what they ate and drank, and on occasions when they went to the little church in the fort where the custom house is now the fact is mentioned with some apologies, one service being attended "in order to avoid scandal and for other reasons" and others because "my companion is endeavoring to learn the language."

But on the very day of their arrival in New York, Sept. 23, 1679, we begin to hear of the eatables and drinkables, especially the peaches.

"He first took us to the house of one of his friends, who welcomed him and us and offered us some of the fruit of the country, very fine peaches and full grown apples, which filled our hearts with thankfulness to God. This fruit was exceedingly fair and good and pleasant to the taste, much better than that in Holland or elsewhere, though I believe our long fasting and craving for food made it so agreeable. After taking a glass of madeira we proceeded. As we walked along we saw in different gardens trees full of apples of various kinds and so laden with peaches and other fruit that one might doubt whether there were more leaves or fruit on them. I have never seen in Europe in the best seasons such an overflowing abundance. When we finished our tour and had given our guides several letters to deliver, we returned to his father-in-law's. He regaled us in the evening with milk, which refreshed us much. We had so many peaches set before us that we were timid about eating them, though we experienced no ill effects from them."

And the next day, Sunday, the record opens with this:

"I was surprised on waking to find my comrade had already dressed himself and breakfasted upon peaches."

So it went every day. Toward the end of the week they crossed the ferry (for less than half a cent apiece) to Long Island, where the people made them "very welcome, sharing with us bountifully whatever they had, whether it was milk, cider, fruit or tobacco, and especially, first and most of all, miserable rum, which had been brought from Barbados and which is called by the Dutch 'kill-devil.' These people are very fond of it, and most of them extravagantly so, although it is very dear and has a bad taste."

But on Long Island, as elsewhere, the peaches were as good as the rum was bad.

"It is impossible to tell how many peach trees we passed, all laden with fruit to breaking down and many of them actually broken down. We came to a place surrounded with such trees from which so many had fallen off that the ground could not be discerned and you could not put your foot down without trampling them, and notwithstanding such large quantities had fallen off the trees still were as full as they could bear. The hogs and other animals mostly feed on them."

The peaches in Harlem were as plentiful and still more delicious. When they went up to the north end of Manhattan island, we find this notice:

"Before we left (Harlem) we did not omit supplying ourselves with peaches, which grew in an orchard along the road. The whole ground was covered with them and with apples, lying upon the new grain with which the orchard was planted. The peaches were the most delicious we had yet eaten."

But they need not have taken the precaution mentioned, for even after crossing Spuyten Duyvil they found more peaches than ever.

"We came to a road which was entirely covered with peaches. We asked the boy why they left them lie there and did not let the hogs eat them. He answered: 'We do not know what to do with them, there are so many. The hogs are satiated with them and will not eat any more.' From this we may judge of the quantity of them."—H. H. N. in New York Mail and Express.

It is a shiftless trick to send for a doctor when you have a boil.—Atchison Globe.

CATCHING A THIEF.

An Old Method Utilized by a German Officer In China.

Thirty dollars was stolen at the Officers' club in Tientsin, China, and the members of the club resolved, if possible, to catch the thief.

A German captain volunteered to manage the affair, and the first thing he did was to summon all the native servants of the club. He then said to them:

"Some money has been stolen here, and I am looking for the thief. I shall find him in an hour, not before, since I need that much time in order to get instructions from a celebrated magician in Germany."

An hour later all the servants were again summoned, but this time into a dark room, in the middle of which stood the table on which the money stolen had been laid.

"Each of you, now," said the officer, "must go up to that table and press on it first your right and then your left hand, and when that is done you must raise your two hands over your head and step into the next room."

The servants did so, and as the last one stepped into the adjoining room the officer followed him, and after looking for a few moments at the many uplifted hands he pointed to one man and said, "You are the thief." The Chinaman to whom he pointed nearly fell to the ground with fright and admitted his guilt and promised to make restitution.

Very simple was the method adopted by the officer for discovering the culprit. While the native servants supposed that his spirit was in Germany in communion with the celebrated magician he was carefully smearing the surface of the table in the dark room with fat and oil, which he then blackened by means of soot. The innocent servants naturally pressed their hands on the table, according to his instructions, but the culprit, though superstitious, did not do so.

As a result, while the uplifted hands of all the others were coal black, his were of a natural color, and thus his guilt was clearly proved.—Detroit Free Press.

KILLED THE SPIDER.

Deadly Influence of a Small Magnet on the Insect.

An experiment made by a scientist to test the influence which a magnet will have on a spider is of interest. The magnet employed was a small steel one of the U shape, the legs of which were about two and a half inches long by one-half inch wide and one-sixth of an inch thick, the distance between the poles being about one-quarter of an inch.

Having noticed a small spider actively running along his armchair, he brushed it off upon the carpet, where it began to run, but was somewhat impeded by the roughness of the fabric. He now slid the magnet along the carpet, following after the spider, till the ends of the poles were within a quarter of an inch of it. The animal, without being touched, almost instantly stopped, and on withdrawing the magnet the spider continued on his journey.

The experimenter then placed the magnet within half an inch in front of the spider, and, withdrawing it slowly, the latter followed it in every direction which the magnet took, both in straight and circuitous routes.

Gradually, however, the spider became so strongly magnetized as to be immovable for several minutes, the magnetic influence seeming to lose its further power. On withdrawing the magnet altogether the spider began to recover somewhat.

The scientist ultimately placed a tumbler over the spider and the magnet, covering them both completely, and at the expiration of several minutes the spider, after a struggle to escape from the strong influence which the magnet exercised over it, was dead.—Exchange.

Talisman Emerald Of Oajaca

Precious Stone Revered By Mexican Indians

For years, ever since Mexico was opened to the white man, every traveler to that romantic land has heard of the emerald of Oajaca. Rumor said that it was huge almost beyond belief. Whatever its size, it was certain that the Indians believed in its magic properties. No white man ever saw it, but now an American woman has succeeded, through a sister woman's gratitude, where men found failure.

This emerald of Oajaca has for ages been the object of covetous interest on the part of Spanish viceroys, Mexican presidents and provincial governors. Great dealers in precious stones have sought it, too, but the Indians as the lineal descendants of the Aztecs, to whom the emerald is supposed to have originally belonged, hold it in superstitious reverence and such safe keeping that until recent years little but unconfirmed legend of the stone's existence was known.

A few years ago President Diaz became so interested in the matter that he decided to prove the truth or fallacy of the reports of this emerald's size and value. Without warning he suddenly appeared in the village where it was said the gem was secreted. He summoned the people into the plaza and announced that if they would show him the emerald known to be in their possession he would in return proclaim a public holiday and entertain them with a fiesta at his own expense. He promised as president and by virtue of the same blood in his and their veins that if they would accede to his request he would not attempt to take the emerald from them.

Upon this a prolonged consultation ensued among the Indians, the result of which was that from afar off in the crowd one of them held up at arm's length between his forefinger and thumb the famous emerald, scintillating in the rays of the sun. Diaz was desirous of a closer inspection and, turning to his guards, ordered the man to be brought to him. His actions if not his words were at once considered by the Indians to be suspicious, so they promptly raised a tumult, and, amid shouts of "Viva Porfirio Diaz!" and "Viva la fiesta!" the man and the emerald disappeared, and this was the only glimpse the powerful president was able to obtain of it.

An American woman had better fortune. It happened that her husband was appointed to superintend the medical department of the railroad being built through Oajaca and incidentally saved the life of an Indian woman. In her gratitude this woman begged to be allowed to make some recompense, as the American doctor had refused to accept a fee. But half in jest he replied that if she would show him the Oajaca emerald he would be satisfied. At this the woman seemed greatly disturbed. She at first declared she knew nothing about it, but on being pressed further by the doctor's wife she admitted knowing where it was hidden. Finally she agreed that if the doctor would solemnly promise to absent himself she would obtain the stone and show it to his wife. For some unexplained reason she held so steadfastly to this point that the wife must be alone when the emerald was produced that it was yielded, though much to the doctor's disappointment.

So one morning shortly after the Indian woman appeared at the physician's temporary residence. She made sure that the doctor's wife and herself were alone. Then she produced the emerald from a fold of her clothing. For about a minute only was the doctor's wife permitted to inspect the gem while it was held securely in the Indian woman's fingers. In size, according to the fortunate visitor's account, the stone is as large as a pigeon's egg, crudely polished and of a rich, grass green color. In its depths she noticed a few black spots or flaws, which go far to prove that it is a genuine emerald and not volcanic glass, as has been suggested. The purest emeralds are seldom without flaws, this being one of the tests.

In great haste the Indian woman again secreted the gem and went out but one curious circumstance the doctor and his wife remarked subsequently. During the remainder of their stay in the village, though they met the woman several times, neither by word or sign would she recognize their previous relations. She treated them as absolute strangers. To her mind the risk she had run in showing the talisman of her tribe was full compensation for the service rendered. The general belief is that the stone is not secreted in any place, but is concealed on the person of one of the Indians and passed on as circumstances may require. If such is the case, the woman must have obtained the gem by stealth, and during the time it was in her possession she was doubtless in no little danger of her life.

Daring Pose of a Flagpole Painter

James Raney of San Francisco is the champion steeple climber and flagpole painter on the Pacific coast.

Raney is a thin, wiry man, pale and somewhat weary looking, not at all the sort of person that one would expect to find in possession of the courage and reserve force which he must necessarily have. It is a type which history has made us familiar with, for many men of Raney's build have distinguished themselves by the doing of desperate deeds, and all of them owe their distinction to the cold, clear and undisturbed brain which Raney's trade demands of him.

So little does the terrifying height at which he works trouble him that he voluntarily and cheerfully climbed the flagstaff on the top of the Firemen's Fund building and stood with his feet on the pole just where the rod that holds the ball springs from the main shaft and raised himself to his full height without support, at least 120 feet from the ground, where he was photographed.

"I have painted during the last five years nearly all the high flagpoles in San Francisco," said Raney to a reporter. "The pole which I was photographed on at the Firemen's Fund building was not by any means the highest.

"I remember climbing a pole in Seattle, Wash., that was 160 feet from the ground. That was a flagpole having its foundations in the ground, not placed on the top of a building. That was the highest pole that I have ever climbed. I have been higher than that on buildings many times."

Risked Her Life to Save Two Children

At the congress of life savers which was recently held at Nantes, France, the life saving work of American women received particular attention, inasmuch as they contribute not a little to the life saving service in the United States.

Not only does an association of women known as the Blue Anchor society supply all the life saving stations with clothing for shipwrecked people, but the wives and daughters of the station keepers frequently do heroic work in the rescue of drowning persons. Perhaps no record of life saving is deserving more praise than the recent exploit of Miss Lillian Damon of Boston, who rescued two children from watery graves at Milford, Conn.

When Miss Damon went to Milford a couple of months ago to enjoy a summer outing, she could not swim a stroke, but she soon became an expert and just in time to save the lives of Ruth and Frank Stanley, eleven and nine years old respectively.

The children were playing in a boat on Long Island sound when the boat became unfastened from its moorings and started to drift away with the tide. They screamed and jumped into the water.

Miss Damon, who was fully dressed, plunged into the water from the shore. She swam a hundred feet to where the children were struggling, locked in each other's arms. Grasping the girl by the hair, she soon had the little ones on shore, where they had to be rolled on a barrel before they were revived.

Miss Damon is not yet twenty years old. She is a tall and graceful blond of beautiful face and figure.

MEN IN OLIVE DRAB

NEW UNIFORM PRESCRIBED FOR UNCLE SAM'S FIGHTERS.

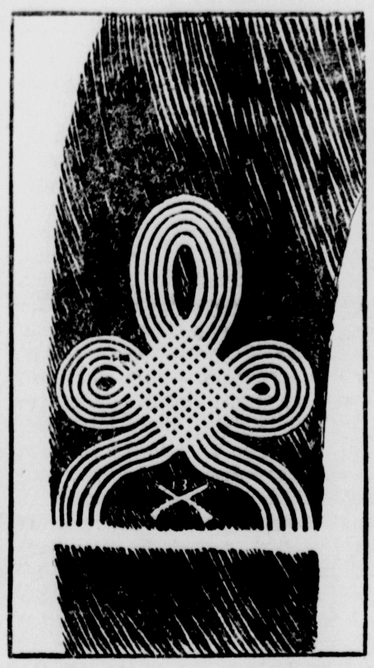

Gold Braid and Profuse Ornamentation Take the Place of Simplicity. Chaplain a Somber Figure—Foreign Medals Tabooed.

Secretary of War Root has ordered that Uncle Sam's fighters, from general of the army to private soldier, shall be arrayed henceforth in habiliments more suggestive of the grandeur and wealth of the nation than the modest uniform heretofore worn.

The prevailing color of the new uniform is to be olive drab for active duty in the field, because this color is less noticeable at a distance.

But it must not be supposed that the "man in blue" is to be entirely eliminated. He will be very much in evidence except when in a campaign. On all dress occasions blue is still to be the color of the uniform, but when doing duty in the field Uncle Sam's soldiers will be the "men in olive drab."

The new uniform is decidedly fetching. The full dress coat is to be a double breasted frock of dark blue cloth, with standing collar of dark blue velvet, the skirt reaching from one-half to three-quarters the distance from the point of the hip to the bend of the knee. The shoulder knots are of gold wire cord. The collar will be ornamented with a band of oak leaves embroidered in gold and extending all the way around. If the officer has not the rank of general, then the collar ornament will consist of two bands of one-half inch gold wire braid, passing all around the collar and parallel with its edge, on a ground of silk or cloth of the collar of the corps, department or arm of the service.

The full dress trousers for general officers will be of dark blue cloth, with two stripes of gold wire braid half an inch wide with a quarter of an inch interval between them mounted upon dark blue velvet and placed along the outside seam of the trousers.

The enlisted men will retain for dress purposes a uniform of dark blue, but the service coat will be of olive drab, the same color as prescribed for officers. In tropical climates white will be worn, and for troops serving in cold climates a special uniform has been adopted. A shoulder strap will be placed on each shoulder, and in the case of officers the collar will be ornamented.

In the new regulations the chaplain's uniform has been simplified. His full dress uniform will consist of a black frock coat with standing collar, one row of nine black silk buttons on the breast. His trousers will be of plain black or blue black cloth, with stripe of lustrous mohair braid along the outside seam. He will wear a black hat, white gloves and blackened shoes.

One thing that the department's order forbids that will cause some dissatisfaction among the men who have them is that no decorations received from a foreign government shall be worn by officers or men while on duty with United States troops.

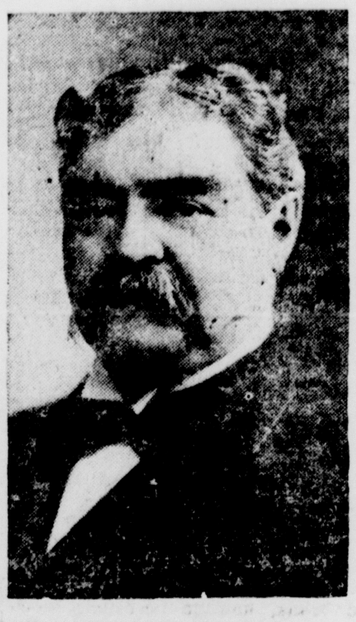

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

President Roosevelt to Attend Their Encampment at Detroit.

It is expected that 50,000 members of the Society of Spanish War Veterans will attend the annual encampment to be held at Detroit Sept. 22 to 25, inclusive. The programme as partially announced is as follows:

Monday morning, Sept. 22, opening of convention; address by President Roosevelt; afternoon 2 p. m., big parade of all military, semimilitary and civic bodies. The president will head the parade to the reviewing stand, where the parade will be reviewed by the president and invited guests. At 4 p. m., lake ride for the president, national officers of the Spanish war veterans and invited guests. Evening, a banquet in honor of the president and the Spanish war veterans.

Tuesday morning, time taken up with the session of the convention; Tuesday afternoon, boat ride and lunch for invited guests, national officers of Spanish war veterans and delegates.

Wednesday morning, time occupied by the session of the convention; evening, camp fire, entertainment, lunch and general good time at Light Guard armory.

Thursday morning, the closing session of the convention.

President Roosevelt will arrive in Detroit Sunday morning, and after attending church he will lunch with General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. In the afternoon he will be entertained by the committee with a drive to places of interest. That the encampment will be a great success is fully assured.

Detroit's executive committee having the arrangements in charge for entertaining the delegates and visiting comrades is composed of the leading men of that city, among them being Mayor William C. Maybury and General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. General Alger is chairman of the committee on reception. Mayor William C. Maybury is chairman of the executive committee and has the assistance of the leading business men of Detroit, as well as the Spanish war veterans of that city. There are about 1,200 members in Detroit.

NEW SURGEON GENERAL.

Has Seen Much Service In Indian Campaigns.

Colonel Robert Maitland O'Reilly, the new surgeon general of the army, has for a number of years been chief medical officer of the department of California, stationed at San Francisco, until ordered to Washington to relieve Surgeon General William H. Forwood, who retires under the age limit.

Colonel O'Reilly is a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of the medical department of the university of Pennsylvania. He entered the regular army in August, 1862, and did hospital duty during the civil war, much of the time as field surgeon at the front.

In April, 1867, Colonel O'Reilly was appointed an assistant surgeon with the rank of first lieutenant, and accompanied recruits to California and Arizona. The greater part of his service for several years was in the west, where he accompanied the troops on various Indian expeditions. Advanced to the position of post surgeon he has served at the most important army posts throughout the country.

TO THE THOUSANDS SUFFERING FROM

Dispepsia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Impoverished Blood and General Exhaustion.

During the last year thousands of Americans have flocked to Germany, to avail themselves of the wonderful curative powers of the famed

TRAUBENKUR OR GRAPE CURE

The fame of these cures for such diseases is world-wide and the astonishing results have been recognized by physicians the world over. There can be no doubt or no quibbling. The grape cures have restored health to many thousands of Americans. Their absolute worth is no longer questioned, but only a few can afford the time and expense of a visit to the Traubenkur. It has remained for an American Chemical Co., the Lightning Medicine Co., of Rock Island, to combine all the best elements of the Traubenkur in and it has now been placed on general sale throughout America in drug stores at only 50 cents per bottle, so the suffering of all classes have the full benefit of these great curative agents.

Think what it mens to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

LOUIS BONHART of Lawrence, Neb., says: "I have been afflicted with stomach trouble for the past three years. At times it grew so severe and annoying that I was compelled to quit work for two or three days each week, when the pains in my stomach were beyond endurance. I took but three bottles and am today perfectly well. I used nothing else but Mull's Grape Tonic. To me it is more than worth its weight in gold."

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the results. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

If used with a little chopped ice it will be found a delicious drink.

Property of Sebring Pottery Company and Land Company Distributed Among the Stockholders.

If well authenticated rumors be correct, Sebring is about to undergo a revolution of gigantic proportions. The fact that the members who compose the Sebring Pottery company and the Sebring Land company have held daily sessions for several days and have adjusted matters, dissolved and reconstructed, until the identity of these two companies is lost, lends color to the rumors afloat. The fact that they are corroborated by members of these former prosperous companies warrants making the statement that they are true.

According to the terms of the reported agreement the Sebring Pottery company, which embraced the management of the four potteries of Sebring, and the stave mill, will become practically extinct and for the future the Oliver China company will be owned and controlled by George E. Sebring and Fred Sebring. The Sebring pottery will be owned by F. A. Sebring Will Sebring and C. J. Albright, the former owning the controlling interest. The French China company becomes the property of E. H. Sebring and O. H. Sebring, with the former the principal owner. The new China works are the property of F. A. Sebring and the stave mill reverts to O. H. Sebring. This disposes of the potteries and stave mill as the properties of the Sebring Pottery company and they become divided property, separate and distinct in their nature.

The Sebring Land company will cease to be the owner of any property and practically pass out of existence. The land and lots owned by the company have been distributed to the members of the firm composing the company pro rata in accordance with the amount of stock they held in the company. The price of lots which has heretofore been $500 as the minimum price may be reduced by any individual to $250 if he desires, but cannot by the terms of the compact be sold for less.

These changes will work a complete revolution in Sebring in every way. Previous to consummating this deal, however, the sum of $30,000 was deposited in the bank of Sebring by the old company to be used to induce manufacturers to locate in Sebring. In the early spring it is a part of the plan for O. H. Sebring and his son Bert to erect another pottery in size and capacity the same as those heretofore built.

Several of the Sebring brothers, now that they are free to act individually will begin the construction of more houses, and one of these asked the local contractors to submit plans and bids for four new houses to be built at once. Another one is having plans drawn for a large brick block upon Fifteenth street, and a scene of unusual activity prevails at this time The amount involved in these transactions will approximate $1,000,000 in value.

ASKED TO VOTE

LOCALS TO DECIDE AS TO DUFFY'S CANDIDACY.

Each Union to Decide Whether He Shall Run on One or Two Tickets.

Salem, Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Officials of the several unions in this city are in receipt of a circular from the Duffy Labor campaign committee, of which E. J. Creedon, of Massillon, is chairman and F. R. Johnson, of Alliance, secretary. This letter requests that all unions in the Eighteenth district take a vote upon the question of whether Mr. Duffy shall accept the Democratic nomination or whether it is their wish that he remain upon the Labor ticket alone.

The Salem locals will take no action. The head of the campaign committee requests that all unions act upon the matter at once in order that a summing up may take place not later than Monday.

By Lecturer Evans a Feature of An Enjoyable P. H. C. Entertainment.

J. M. Evans, supreme lecturer of the Protected Home circle, of Sharon, Pa., gave an interesting lecture at the Opera houselast evening to a large audience. His subject was "Fraternalism," and he handled it in such a manner that those who heard him were most favorably impressed with his talk. A quartet composed of Mr. and Firth and A. W. Scott, with piano accompaniment by Miss Emma Firth sang two delightful selections. LeRoy Orr recited two pieces in a very pleasing manner which were much applauded. Miss Elizabeth Hamil rendered several selections on the piano which were well received.

J. R. Carrothers, deputy organizer of the Maccabees from Steubenville gave a very instructive short talk on fraternity work prior to the address of Mr. Evans.

PICKED UP DAZED

Dr. Bumpus Knocked Down By a Rapidly Moving Grocery Wagon.

Dr. J. F. Bumpus, of Sixth street, was knocked down by a horse attached to the American grocery wagon at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The doctor was crossing Fifth street and states he was positive he had plenty of time to pass over before the wagon could reach him. He says the speed of the horse was not slackened, and that the driver could not have failed to see that he was passing.

The horse struck Dr. Bumpus at a point between the elbow and shoulder and he was hurled with great violence to the paved street. The force of the blow was so great that he was knocked away from the wagon and this caused him to escape being run over. He struck the pavement in such a manner that he rolled almost to the curb, and was picked up by passers-by in a dazed condition.

The driver continued on his way, not even looking back to see what had occured. Dr. Bumpus was badly bruised, and it will be some time before he has entirely recovered.

East Liverpool is noted for its careless drivers, and this is not the first occurrence of the same kind that has been recorded.

School Board Involved in Litigation Over Heating Company's Work.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—The Peak-Williamson Heating & Ventilating company brought suit in the court of Justice E. L. Lyon, of East Palestine against the board of education of school district No. 8, of Unity township for $113.70 claimed as due for a furnace and plumbing at the school building. The board claimed work was not properly done and entered a counter suit for $195.15 damages. Judgment for $88.30 was given for the company and the board appealed the case to common pleas court.

Surprised the Pastor.

The members and friends of the A. M. E. church surprised the pastor, Rev. J. H. Mason, and wife last evening with a very large donation. About 9 o'clock a large company gathered in front of the parsonage door on Lisbon street singing "There's a Stranger at the Door." Then a cart backed up and unloaded its burden of the necessaries of life. The pastor and wife were agreeably surprised, but a short speech of thankfulness was expressed and the visitors left.

SPENT THE NIGHT UPON THE ROAD

Attorney Gaston and Florist Brooks Had Eventful Trip From Lisbon.

THEIR HORSE RAN AWAY

And They Were Upset Upon Rocks And Stumps—Mayor Davidson And His Brother Found Them Later And Rendered Assistance.

Attorney W. K. Gaston and John Brooks, florist, had a narrow escape from death last night while en route to this city from the Lisbon fair. They left the county seat about 9 o'clock in a single buggy to which was attached a young horse of a nervous temperament. The roadway was very dark and the gentlemen found it impossible to direc the animal's course.

Near Cannon's Mill the horse became frightened at the rustling of leaves caused by a wandering cow, made a quick jump to one side of the road and started madly toward the city. For a short distance the frightened animal kept the road, but shying again it fell hard against a big tree breaking the shafts and throwing the occupants forward into a pile of stones and stumps.

The horse became entangled and was unable to move. Messrs. Gaston and Brooks got out with a few bruises Mayor Davidson and his brother Edward were returning from the fair at about 1 o'clock and discovered Gaston and Brooks in their undesirable plight. The two unfortunates were compelled to walk two miles to a blacksmith shop, where they got a new pair of shafts and repaired other breakage. It was daylight before the men arrived home.

FREE METHODISTS TO BUILD CHURCH

Several Free Sites Offered Them and One in Oakland Will Be Accepted.

PLEDGES OF MONEY MADE

In Most Encouraging Fashion—As a Result of Being Shut Out of Neville Institute, the Church Will Soon Have Its Own Home.

The Free Methodists will commence at once the erection of a chapel in Oakland. This was the announcement made by Rev. J. H. Howard today. This is the outcome of the meetings that have been held in the Klondike section for the past few weeks and of the church people being shut out of the Neville institute school building. A site has been secured, and quite a large amount of money has been pledged for building.

A meeting was held in the Klondike last evening by this little band of church workers, who wear no jewelry or other ornaments on the person, a vote of thanks was tendered the trustees of Neville institute, and its principal, S. L. Fisher. When seen today Rev. Mr. Howard said:

"I regard the trustees and teacher of the institute as gentlemen and we appreciate their kindness in allowing us the use of the school building. I also regret that Mr. Fisher was caused so much extra labor in being compelled to clean the school room, and if I had been aware that the conditions existed as he spoke of, other arrangements could have been made.

"I did not know the room was in the condition he said it was, as I never visited the building until late in the evening. There was then a large congregation present. No doubt it was fully as bad as he described. I think according to the law regarding reciprocity, that I should have been consulted, and could have arranged matters satisfactorily to suit the wishes of the gentleman. But I was not. The doors wer locked against us, and we knew nothing of the matter until we went to the building to hold our meeting. This is all I have to say on this matter, as I consider the incident closed."

As to the building of a chapel in the Klondike section, offers of several sites have been made, and the officials have about concluded to accept a site in Oakland, donated by the Oakland Land company. Other offers for the building sites have been received from D. William Calhoun and Alex. Chafin, and several others, whose names the officials of the church do not care to make known. The sum of $400 in cash is already pledged. The officials will without question take the lot offered in Oakland. A chapel to cost not less than $1,500 will be built, and it is expected it will be completed before the first of the year. Besides the offer of a free site from Alex. Chafin, he will also donate $100 to the church if his offer is accepted. Mr Chafin is of the opinion that one of the needs of Chafinville is a church and he will do all he can to have one built in his addition.

THE WINNING HORSES

Great Interest Manifested in the Races at Lisbon Yesterday.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—The races were well attended yesterday afternoon, and though the purses were small, the interest was great. Three East Liverpool horses were in the speed ring. Dr. McFarland's mare got second money in the 2:30 trot and Frank Dickey's fleet footed nag took third in the same race. Mayor Davidson's Connie Mack, which was entered in the 2:40 pace, could not be controlled, and was unable even to get a place.

Dr. S., owned by G. P. Smith, of East Liverpool, took second money in the trot. Some person said that Mr. Smith's horse was going under an assumed name, that he was really the fast horse, "Major McKinley," owned by George Brunt, of East Liverpool. There was a cry of fraud which the judges took very seriously and came almost to the conclusion of ruling Dr. S. off the track.

$100,000 IS AT STAKE IN A WILL CONTEST

Salem, Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Attorney L. P. Metzger has filed a lawsuit in court in which local parties are interested, and in which there is a $100,000 estate at stake.

The plaintiffs in the case are Mrs. Anna Lowry and Clara Wernet vs. Joseph Wernet, Francis Wernet, Mary Hogan, Letitia Sheraw, Jennie Little and Joseph, William A. and Charles Wernet, as executors of the estate of the late William Wernet, of Hanover township.

The plaintiffs will attempt to break the will and have secured most competent lawyers to handle the case. They claim that William Wernet at the time of his sickness and death was at times out of his mind and by undue influence was forced by the defendants to write another will than that, in which he a week before he died, bequeathed part of his property to the plaintiffs.

They further claim that the will was probated on the 13th of March, 1901, was not the will which he had prepared while in a proper state of mind, but rather the one which he was persuaded to sign through undue influence and by fraudulent representations.

Most of the defendants in the case reside in Hanover township. Wernet was one of the wealthiest men in that township.

VOLKSFEST A SUCCESS

The German Residents of the City Enjoyed Themelves at Columbian Park.

The German residents of East Liverpool held a most enjoyable and successful volksfest at Columbian park yesterday afternoon.

The grounds were opened at 2 p. m. and in a short time the park was filled with families who had come out to enjoy themselves. The volksfest is a picnic held according to German customs, and it is a well known fact that when a body of Germans gather pleasure, pure and simple, is the rule and it is carried out.

The day was devoted to singing, music and small games in which the younger members took part. Refreshments were served and those present began leaving for their homes about 10:30 o'clock.

TEAMSTERS' UNION

Arrangements in Progress for the Organization of an A. F. of L. Local.

District Organizer Charles Kontnier, of the American Federation of Labor, has completed arrangements for the organization of a union of the teamsters in this city. The organizer has 23 names on the charter list, and a meeting has been called for tomorrow evening at the Smith Fowler hall, when a temporary organization will be formed.

FLED FROM HIS HOME

Knox Township Man Who Hid in the Bushes Adjudged a Lunatic.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—John Fuhrer, of Knox township has been adjudged insane by the probate court. He was afraid of everyone, thinking they would kill him. He got up at night, ran from the house and hid from his friends for days in blackberry thickets, thinking they were enemies. His face is badly lacerated.

Driller Had To Run For It.

A well brought in yesterday by J. J. Crawford on the R. A. Warren farm, in the Knoxville field, is of the nature of a wildcat. When the bit touched the sand gas ignited, burning derrick and engine house, and John Wasson, a driller, had a thrilling escape for his life. It cannot yet be told what the well will make, but it shows oil. It is owned by Pittsburg parties.

The Minerva Fair.

The annual exhibition of the Minerva Fair association will be held at Minerva, October 1 and 2. This fair always draws well from Columbiana and neighboring counties. This year a special effort has been put forth to have better exhibits then ever, and the racing will be a most attractive feature.

Kept Marriage a Secret

Friends in this city learned today of the marriage one month ago of Fred M. Busey, of East Liverpool, and Miss Lois Eldeier, of Wellsville. The couple paid a visit to Hanoverton several weeks ago, and were quietly married there. The young couple will reside in East Liverpool.

Licensed to Marry.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—Howard Lowrey, of Pittsburg and Anna B. Clark, of Wellsville, have been licensed to wed.

Frank Stutler, of Hanoverton, and Ada Clair, of New Kensington, secured a license and were married by Rev. J. P. Anderson here yesterday.

Arranging for Encampment—At the meeting of General Lyon post, G. A. R., to be held tonight, final arrangements will be made for the trip to the national encampment at Washington early next month. Post Commander Daniel McLane states a time will be selected for the start to be made and other details attended to. In addition to the regular routine business two candidates will be mustered in. A full attendance is desired.

UP THE HEIGHTS AT EARLY DATE

Cars May Be Running on New Branch by the First of the Year.

WORK STARTS ON MONDAY

And It Will Be Pushed With All the Speed That Is Possible.

THE CONTRACTOR IS READY

It is now almost certain that the Pleasant Heights extension of the East Liverpool street railway will be completed by the first of the year, and that the hopes of the residents of that suburb, after three years of patient waiting, will at last be realized.

Manager L. W. Healy, of the East Liverpool company, had informed members of council and others that the work of constructing the branch would be commenced on September 15, and when no signs of a start were noted on that date, it was thought the plan had been given up. Contractor McFadden, of Pittsburg, was said to have been given the contract several weeks ago, and it is presumed he was responsible for the delay. Mr. Healy was seen yesterday and to a reporter stid:

"Contractor McFadden will begin the construction of the Pleasant Heights road next Monday morning. The road will be pushed with all possible dispatch, and will be finished within a few weeks. If there is any delay it will be the fault of the weather."

There is good reason for the belief that the company will finish the task without delay, as it is depending upon the $5,000 guarantee by interested parties to pay for the work.

Of the $5,000 guaranteed by seven or eight individual landholders, $3,750 has been subscribed. Those interested are now calling upon parties in the locality benefited who have not yet contributed to the fund. No trouble is anticipated in raising the remaining $1,250, as there are a large number of property owners in the vicinity of Pleasant Heights who have not yet been assessed, and who will derive much substantial benefit from the construction of the railroad..

REPORTED DYING

Negro Assaulted at New Cumberland Ball Game in a Precarious Condition.

Suffering with concussion of the brain, William Burrell, colored, lies at his home in Toronto with small chance of recovery. His condition is due to a cowardly assault made by Shorty Thompson, a noted character of Black Horse, W. Va., in a melee following a ball game at New Cumberand last Tuesday afternoon, when his skull was broken. The men was also kicked until black and blue.

Sheriff Allison arrested Thompson yesterday and placed him in the county jail. It is very likely that he will have to answer to a charge of murder.

RHEUMATISM IN THE LEG

The Reason Given By Gustavus Craft for Cutting Up at His Home.

Gustavus Craft, the man arrested in the East End Wednesday evening charged with drunkenness and making life at his home very uncomfortable for his spouse, was arraigned before the mayor this morning. He pleaded guilty to being drunk, but said that but for rheumatism in his leg he would never have disturbed his wife. The mayor fined him $5.60.

William Petticord got a similar dose for being found drunk and asleep in the McNicol pottery last night by Officer Woods.

Married at Lisbon.

Salem Aeronaut Fined.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—Frank Johnson, an aeronaut of Salem, was fined $20 and costs by Judge Boone for wife beating. He stands committed to the workhouse until his fine and costs are paid.

JOHN BROWN'S HOMES

MOVEMENTS TO PRESERVE THEM AS HISTORIC MEMORIALS.

How Connecticut Is Looking After a Homestead Once Owned by the Antislavery Hero — Adirondack Home Needs Attention.

A movement which might be described as a John Brown revival seems to be well under way. Efforts are being made to preserve as historical monuments the various houses where the pioneer abolitionist lived during his varied career.

In Connecticut there has been organized the John Brown association. Its special object is to maintain the old Brown homestead in West Torrington, Conn. The association is hunting for a caretaker who will occupy the hundred acres of farm rent free and keep off relic hunters. Its members believe that the old house in a good state of preservation will be a far better memorial than the monument to be erected with the $1,000 appropriated for that purpose by the last Connecticut legislature.

The Adirondack homestead of John Brown, near North Elba, N. Y., where he spent his last days and where his ashes lie at rest, is also sadly in need of attention. Visitors have noticed that the historic farm is in worse condition than it has been in years, and they say the state of New York should do something to preserve the place. Summer guests at the various hotels in the vicinity who have been making their annual pilgrimages to the one time home and grave of the antislavery hero have expressed themselves indignantly over the condition in which they find the buildings and especially the house.

The present caretaker of the place is Mr. Reuben Lawrence, and residents of the locality, who have known him for years as a thrifty, industrious man, know that whatever blame for the present condition of the John Brown farm may rightly exist none can attach to him. The rear portion of the house has not been repaired since Brown built it years ago, and now it is scarcely habitable, although Mr. Lawrence's family are obliged to use it for lack of room. The floor timbers were originally supported by huge logs. These have rotted away, allowing the floor to sink and become unsafe. The dropping away of these timbers has also had its effect upon the whole rear portion of the house, causing the roof to sag. In addition the old shingles have started up so that the roof leaks badly. It is asserted that the total repairs needed on all the buildings would not cost over $1,000.

Another matter which should receive prompt attention is the proper marking of the graves of John Brown's two sons, Oliver and Watson, buried beside their father. These graves are now simply marked by plain wooden stakes bearing no inscriptions whatever. The original stone planted above John Brown's grave was some years ago covered with a wooden frame having a glass front. This still stands and has served to protect the stone. This stone is appropriately inscribed, as is also the huge bowlder at the head of all three graves. It was Brown's last wish that his body be laid at rest beside this great stone he had learned to love in early life.

That John Brown thought much of his peaceful little Adirondack home this last wish reveals. It was not the place of his birth. He had lived in many larger places in the more fertile lands of the west. In the milder climates he had spent portions of his life. But it was John Brown the man, not John Brown the reformer, who made that last simple request. Worn out in a fruitless endeavor, deserted by friends, facing death, John Brown's strife sickened heart yearned again for that little green dip in the Adirondack hills, for the soughing of the trees, for the birds, for the sunshine, for the rolling fields and the blue hills beyond, for that home where he had spent fourteen of the pleasantest years of his life. And he asked to be buried beside the great bowlder where he had built that little home many years before.

The request was heeded, and his bones lie beside the great bowlder, and floating in the mountain breezes the stars and stripes high overhead proclaim to the country for miles around that within that little iron railed inclosure is a spot of sacred ground.

A RETROSPECT OF THE TENNIS SEASON.

English Invasion the Year's Principal Feature—Dohertys Are Superb Players.

Greatest of all tennis players are the Doherty brothers of England, and their victorious career at the various tournaments in which they have participated shows them to have mastered the game to a sensational degree. These British brothers, in fact, have contributed largely to the success and picturesqueness of probably the most interesting season in the history of American tennis.

Beginning early in the spring, east, west, north and south the racket wielders evinced active interest in local, state and sectional tournaments, determining to place the game once more in the high position it held before golf, cycling, etc., robbed it of its supremacy. The measure of their success can readily be noted by glancing over the records of the year. Entries have doubled, attendance at matches doubled and expenditure tripled. Surely this is a vindication if any one deems that tennis needs vindicating.

Probably the greatest surprise of the year was the defeat by the Dohertys of Holcombe Ward of Orange, N. J., and Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis in the international and national championship doubles. While it was generally conceded on this side during the summer that the Britons had an admirable chance to carry home the doubles title, few impartial observers who had gone over the situation carefully could see where they could worst the American champions. A comparison of the two doubles teams on a strict form basis gave a very bright aspect to the American side of the question, but after the visitors arrived and showed at Longwood, Mass., that they were playing a game nothing short of superlative the Yankee hearts began to beat with less confidence.

In the international matches at Bay Ridge, New York, the Britons won out simply through superior endurance. They have the art of saving strength down to a science, and, although Ward and Davis took the first set in easy fashion, the visitors never let that fact bother them for a moment. They seldom made an unnecessary move, never making an effort to get a return that appeared out of reach. In this particular they presented a sharp contrast to the Americans, who tried for almost everything that came over the net. Consequently, while the Britishers did not play a spectacular game at all times, they reserved every ounce of energy for the final games. Their victory in the last three sets at Bay Ridge showed the superiority of their studied method.

In few contests on this side did the Dohertys start out in winning form.

S. F. DOHERTY, WHO DEFEATED CHAMPION LARNED AT BAY RIDGE, NEW YORK.

Both in individual matches and doubles the opening games invariably went to the Americans. At Newport, in the national championships, however, they took the doubles championship in straight sets.

A GREAT PEACH CROP

THAT WHICH GREW AROUND NEW YORK IN THE YEAR 1679.

Apparently the Luscious Fruit Was More Abundant on Manhattan Island Than Anything Else Except Bad Barbados Rum.

Books of travel usually contain a vast amount of matter that is unimportant and a good deal that is untrue, besides not a little that is uninteresting, and the old travelers who wrote about their voyages to New York furnished few exceptions to the rule.

Tantalizing, therefore, is the diary of an observer who visited these shores in 1679; who had a reportorial instinct for the important, the true and the interesting; whose journeys covered the entire territory now known as the Greater New York; who wrote fully and graphically of all he saw, and whose observations have all come down to us, with the exception of some thirty pages describing New York city at the time of his visit. Exactly that which would now be most valuable is lost; but, from what remains, we can learn a good deal about the New York of those days.

Jaspar Dankers is the writer whose impressions of New York have thus been lost to the world, and in what has been preserved of his writings the chief thing that forces its attention upon the reader is the magnitude of the peach crop in these parts during the year of his visit. He was a religious enthusiast, the leader of the Labadists, a sect that flourished briefly on three continents toward the close of the seventeenth century, and his voyage companion was a minister of the same sect.

But there is little of this in his diary against a great deal of what they ate and drank, and on occasions when they went to the little church in the fort where the custom house is now the fact is mentioned with some apologies, one service being attended "in order to avoid scandal and for other reasons" and others because "my companion is endeavoring to learn the language."

But on the very day of their arrival in New York, Sept. 23, 1679, we begin to hear of the eatables and drinkables, especially the peaches.

"He first took us to the house of one of his friends, who welcomed him and us and offered us some of the fruit of the country, very fine peaches and full grown apples, which filled our hearts with thankfulness to God. This fruit was exceedingly fair and good and pleasant to the taste, much better than that in Holland or elsewhere, though I believe our long fasting and craving for food made it so agreeable. After taking a glass of madeira we proceeded. As we walked along we saw in different gardens trees full of apples of various kinds and so laden with peaches and other fruit that one might doubt whether there were more leaves or fruit on them. I have never seen in Europe in the best seasons such an overflowing abundance. When we finished our tour and had given our guides several letters to deliver, we returned to his father-in-law's. He regaled us in the evening with milk, which refreshed us much. We had so many peaches set before us that we were timid about eating them, though we experienced no ill effects from them."

And the next day, Sunday, the record opens with this:

"I was surprised on waking to find my comrade had already dressed himself and breakfasted upon peaches."

So it went every day. Toward the end of the week they crossed the ferry (for less than half a cent apiece) to Long Island, where the people made them "very welcome, sharing with us bountifully whatever they had, whether it was milk, cider, fruit or tobacco, and especially, first and most of all, miserable rum, which had been brought from Barbados and which is called by the Dutch 'kill-devil.' These people are very fond of it, and most of them extravagantly so, although it is very dear and has a bad taste."

But on Long Island, as elsewhere, the peaches were as good as the rum was bad.

"It is impossible to tell how many peach trees we passed, all laden with fruit to breaking down and many of them actually broken down. We came to a place surrounded with such trees from which so many had fallen off that the ground could not be discerned and you could not put your foot down without trampling them, and notwithstanding such large quantities had fallen off the trees still were as full as they could bear. The hogs and other animals mostly feed on them."

The peaches in Harlem were as plentiful and still more delicious. When they went up to the north end of Manhattan island, we find this notice:

"Before we left (Harlem) we did not omit supplying ourselves with peaches, which grew in an orchard along the road. The whole ground was covered with them and with apples, lying upon the new grain with which the orchard was planted. The peaches were the most delicious we had yet eaten."

But they need not have taken the precaution mentioned, for even after crossing Spuyten Duyvil they found more peaches than ever.

"We came to a road which was entirely covered with peaches. We asked the boy why they left them lie there and did not let the hogs eat them. He answered: 'We do not know what to do with them, there are so many. The hogs are satiated with them and will not eat any more.' From this we may judge of the quantity of them."—H. H. N. in New York Mail and Express.

CATCHING A THIEF.

An Old Method Utilized by a German Officer In China.

Thirty dollars was stolen at the Officers' club in Tientsin, China, and the members of the club resolved, if possible, to catch the thief.

A German captain volunteered to manage the affair, and the first thing he did was to summon all the native servants of the club. He then said to them:

"Some money has been stolen here, and I am looking for the thief. I shall find him in an hour, not before, since I need that much time in order to get instructions from a celebrated magician in Germany."

An hour later all the servants were again summoned, but this time into a dark room, in the middle of which stood the table on which the money stolen had been laid.

"Each of you, now," said the officer, "must go up to that table and press on it first your right and then your left hand, and when that is done you must raise your two hands over your head and step into the next room."

The servants did so, and as the last one stepped into the adjoining room the officer followed him, and after looking for a few moments at the many uplifted hands he pointed to one man and said, "You are the thief." The Chinaman to whom he pointed nearly fell to the ground with fright and admitted his guilt and promised to make restitution.

Very simple was the method adopted by the officer for discovering the culprit. While the native servants supposed that his spirit was in Germany in communion with the celebrated magician he was carefully smearing the surface of the table in the dark room with fat and oil, which he then blackened by means of soot. The innocent servants naturally pressed their hands on the table, according to his instructions, but the culprit, though superstitious, did not do so.

As a result, while the uplifted hands of all the others were coal black, his were of a natural color, and thus his guilt was clearly proved.—Detroit Free Press.

KILLED THE SPIDER.

Deadly Influence of a Small Magnet on the Insect.

An experiment made by a scientist to test the influence which a magnet will have on a spider is of interest. The magnet employed was a small steel one of the U shape, the legs of which were about two and a half inches long by one-half inch wide and one-sixth of an inch thick, the distance between the poles being about one-quarter of an inch.

Having noticed a small spider actively running along his armchair, he brushed it off upon the carpet, where it began to run, but was somewhat impeded by the roughness of the fabric. He now slid the magnet along the carpet, following after the spider, till the ends of the poles were within a quarter of an inch of it. The animal, without being touched, almost instantly stopped, and on withdrawing the magnet the spider continued on his journey.

The experimenter then placed the magnet within half an inch in front of the spider, and, withdrawing it slowly, the latter followed it in every direction which the magnet took, both in straight and circuitous routes.

Gradually, however, the spider became so strongly magnetized as to be immovable for several minutes, the magnetic influence seeming to lose its further power. On withdrawing the magnet altogether the spider began to recover somewhat.

The scientist ultimately placed a tumbler over the spider and the magnet, covering them both completely, and at the expiration of several minutes the spider, after a struggle to escape from the strong influence which the magnet exercised over it, was dead.—Exchange.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

SPEAKING OF SHORTAGE.

A statement was made by a prominent kilnman employed in one of the hill potteries today that was most surprising. He said, according to statistics secured from most all the potteries in the city, that there is at present a shortage of from 60 to 75 kilnmen in this city. But what is to be expected when a manufacturer from one of the out-of-town potteries comes to this city and in a few hours secures four kilnmen and takes them away with him? There is no way to stop a manufacturer from another town coming here to secure workmen, as they are not under contract, and the country is a free one. What is to be done? ask the operatives of this city, who have the interests of the city at heart. What is to be done inquires the manufacturer? This is the main question of the hour. It has been the policy of this paper to do as much as possible to impress upon those who desire to roam from one shop to another, that they had best remain in this city, where work is plentiful, and lasting employment is a certainty. In more than one instance this advice has been heeded, but still there is a certain element who will persist in leaving a steady position just so long as they can secure another, no matter whether it is just as good or not, in an outside town. The problem, a shortage of sixty kilnmen alone, is a perplexing one. It is one that the manufacturers will have to wrestle with, and it is one that will soon require the attention of the Brotherhood officials. Especially will the attention of Kilnmen's local No. 9 be called to this condition, for it is a matter that in a measure can be remedied by that local, by advancing some of the pottery apprentices to journeymen, and this will leave room for new apprentices to be put on. In this manner some assistance will be rendered, and the depleted ranks will be somewhat increased. Not only was a representative of the Barberton pottery here yesterday after kilnmen, but a representative of the Thomas China plant at Lisbon. One or two men would have been sufficient in this latter case, and last evening it was stated that the gentleman was successful in his attempt to secure the desired help. This is only another instance where the out-of-town manufacturers try to drain the potteries of this city of their help.

It might be well to ask, does it pay the out-of-town manufacturer to do this sort of thing? While it is admitted that the help is secured nine times out of ten, losses may occur in other ways. The next thing one will hear of is the out-of-town manufacturer coming to this town and offering bonuses to local workmen to leave and take positions in other towns. It is done in other trades, and why not in the pottery trade? There may be a way out of this muddle, and that is for the local manufacturers to send their representatives to Trenton and secure help from there. If the prosperous conditions of the west were only made known in the east the chances are that many eastern pottery workmen would come to this city and obtain employment. There is quite a demand for English pottery workmen in the west, and just as soon as the conditions are made known in Great Britain, many will come to this country, in fact, as many as can secure the required fare. It will not be long until this will be done, it is said.

OVER AT SEBRING.

Henry Smith, of East Palestine, has taken a position on the glost bench at the French China.

George Turner and Samuel Bickford, well known kilnmen, left Monday morning for Canonsburg where they have secured positions. Turner has taken a position at setting out.

Joseph Hott, who went to Sebring from Trenton about three months ago to take a position as kilnman at the Sebring pottery, has returned to Trenton.

William DeBee, of East Palestine, is a new kilnman in the biscuit crew of William Mills at the Sebring pottery.

George Russ, of East Palestine, has commenced work as a kilnman at the French China glost end.

Tim Wherline, who went to Sebring from Wheeling several months ago to secure employment, left rather suddenly a few days ago, and his whereabouts are at present unknown. No cause for his sudden departure is assigned.

Work upon the construction of the pottery is progressing rather slowly, and the first kiln has just been topped out. The second kiln is almost to the shoulder.

Thomas McGinnis, a well known operative, left Sebring a few days ago for East Palestine to seek employment.

William Tritt, for many years affiliated with the Sebring Bros., spent a few days in Sebring this week, making arrangements to remove his family to Crooksville, where he has taken the management of the new Crooksville pottery, now in course of construction.

Five kilnmen, who at one time or another have been employed in this city, have left here for Barberton. Four left yesterday afternoon, and one went to Barberton from New Castle, from the Shenango pottery. Wednesday evening Ambrose Cartwright, formerly of this city, but now vice-president of the Barberton Pottery company, arrived here. He returned home yesterday afternoon. To a representative of this paper Mr. Cartwright said he came here for the purpose of securing five kilnmen, and in this work he was entirely successful. These kilnmen have been promised steady employment. This fact is to be regretted. While Barberton is in need of kilnmen, men are in no greater demand there than in this city. Two of those who went with Mr. Cartwright were Jack Cannon and his brother. Jack was recently employed at Canonsburg.

POTTERY CONTRACTS.

The Bell Pottery company, of Columbus, has closed contracts with the Rarig Engineering company for the structural steel roofs of the kiln sheds. The excavations are well toward completion and the materials used in the construction are arriving at the rate of 15 carloads a day. Already there are 100 carloads on the ground. The survey for Bellwood is about completed. E. F. Bell, president of the company, and John S. Milligan of the board of directors, have decided that, as soon as the buildings of the plant are well under way, to begin the erection of the houses for the workmen. The United States government decided at one time that the site where the plant is being erected is the best place in the country for an armor plate plant, owing to its railroad facilities. Five trunk lines are on the ground and two more are accessible.

THAT BARBERTON ADDITION.

Ambrose Cartwright, vice-president of the Barberton Pottery company, who returned to his home yesterday afternoon, said just before leaving the city that his company would not build a large plant at present for the purpose of manufacturing art ware, but would merely build two kilns this fall.

Others that would be needed would not be built until next spring. Another building will also be erected, an annex to the present plant, measuring 50x80 feet. This additional room, it is thought, will be sufficient to supply the requirements of the company the balance of this year, but that in the spring several other additional kilns and buildings will be erected. Business with this concern at present is said to be quite prosperous.

A PRINTING MACHINE.

A printing machine, the only one of its kind in this city, has been installed in the decorating department of the Brunt pottery in the past few days. It is an English patent, of which over 300 are said to have been in use in the potteries of the old world. The machine was placed in operation yesterday for the first time, and it is said that it has the capacity of keeping five crews at steady work. Some who have seen this machine in operation say that it will be able to keep more than five printers' crews busy. The machine is a simple one, and is easily operated. Most of the decorations made in this manner are used on scheme goods.

NO MEETING ARRANGED.

No arrangements have been made for the holding of the joint meeting of the committees representing the Brotherhood and the manufacturers to talk over the dispute about placing flat ware in the first ring of the biscuit kilns. A prominent member of this committee on the Brotherhood side stated last evening that up to date he had not heard of any meeting being called, and had no idea when a joint session would be held. Meantime, the biscuit kilnmen are wondering when the matter will be finally adjusted.

OVER FROM LISBON.

Kilnshed Foreman James Challis, formerly a member of the local council, and who for sometime was employed as a kilnman at the D. E. McNicol pottery, in this city, was here yesterday in search of kilnmen for the Thomas plant, at Lisbon. He was accompanied by J. N. Reed, another kilnman at the Thomas plant. Mr. Reed has been in Lisbon for several months. The Thomas plant was stopped during the fair this week, but resumed operations this morning as usual.

STRIKE AT SHENANGO.

Information was received in this city yesterday afternoon of a strike of the glost kilnmen at the Shenango pottery at New Castle. The cause is said to be that the firm imported a bench boss from an eastern town who was not a member of the Brotherhood of Operative potters, and the men refused to work with him. Many of the kilnmen at that shop are from this city, and now that a strike is on, some of them may return.

EXPECTED HOME TODAY.

Thomas Robinson, manager of the East Liverpool pottery, who has been spending a short vacation in the west, is expected home this evening, although he may not arrive until tomorrow. During his trip he spent several days at Milwaukee visiting former friends.

A NEW OFFICE MAN.

William Grey, who has been employed as agent of the Adams Express company in this city for many months, and who recently resigned that position, will enter the employ of the Sevres Pottery company very soon. He will take a position as bookkeeper.

MOVED HIS RESIDENCE.

John Sant, the well known clay salesman, who has been residing at Georgetown during the summer with his family, has returned to this city. Mr. Sant states he spent a delightful summer in the small Pennsylvania town.

BACK HOME AGAIN.

George Smith, salesman for the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company who has been in the west for several weeks, has returned home after a very successful trip. Mr. Smith is now looking after the erection of his new residence on Ohio avenue, East End.

MRS. SMITH IMPROVING.

Mrs. George Smith, wife of George Smith, secretary of Kilnmen's local No. 9, who has been very ill at her home on Florence street for many weeks, is recovering rapidly, and her friends are of the opinion that she will be able to be out soon.

BACK TO WORK AGAIN.

William Cuthbert, bench boss on the glost at the Brunt plant, who accidently stepped into a well hole in a kiln a few days ago, severly spraining his foot, has recovered from his injury, and is now able to be at his work.

LAWRENCE IS BACK.

Frederick Lawrence, one of the officials of the East Liverpool Potteries company, who has been spending his two weeks' vacation in the east, has returned to the city.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

By LE ROY WELD

I.—Ants.

HIGHEST of all the groups of the great division of the animal kingdom known as insects is the order hymenoptera, which name means "membrane winged." These insects are characterized by their thin, delicate wings, their strong, supple bodies, their powerful jaws and, commonly, a formidable sting. Most characteristic of all, however, is their very interesting habit of living together in colonies and acting in such a way as to be of service to one another.

The commonest representatives of this remarkable order are those which we call ants, bees and wasps, there being many different kinds of each. We have all become more or less familiar with the bees, and nearly every boy and girl knows that there are three kinds of bees in one hive—namely, the queen, the worker and the drone. This same fact is true of ants and wasps, there being in each case apparently three sexes. But careful investigation and patient watching of the development of the young have shown that the worker, or neuter, is really an undeveloped queen, or female, and that the conditions governing its development depend upon the wishes of the other insects and are regulated by the kind of food given to the insect or larva.

Now, some of my readers may wish to know why ants are put among the so called "membrane winged" insects when apparently they have no wings at all. The answer to this question might be found by tearing open the nest. Should the reader do so he would find that some of the ants have wings. These are the drones or males, and they are somewhat longer than the workers. They are seldom found outside the nest. He would also find an ant much larger than the drones. This is the queen. She has wings at first and flies with them, but soon bites them off and settles down in the nest.

Diagram of Typical Artificial Ants' Nest.

[Showing entrance E, main hall M and long passages.]

There are several species of ants common to this country. There is the tiny red ant, not more than a tenth of an inch long, which we so often find in the sugar box. There is a larger, very common reddish brown ant, which digs its nest in our lawns, in the road or even between the cracks in the pavement or cement walk. This ant is about a quarter of an inch long, and we often find it running up and down the bark of our trees and digging its nest at their roots. Then there is a great black ant, nearly an inch long, small numbers of which are sometimes seen in the grass about the foundations of our houses or running in and out of rotten logs in the woods.

One of the most interesting and remarkable features in the life of the ants is the building, or, rather, the digging, of the nest. Men never displayed more skill in digging mines than these little creatures do in constructing their complex works underground. Each one of the colony of hundreds seems to know just what he is expected to do and just where he belongs. There are no bosses nor foremen to quarrel with, no differences in wages, no strikes nor labor unions. Each does his part and minds his own business. What a lesson to man!

The nests vary in structure according to the surroundings and according to the species. The common reddish brown ants already mentioned begin operations generally on a small open patch of ground, surrounded by grass. Seizing in their strong jaws the bits of earth, which to them must be like large stones, they carry them off at one side to a distance of two or three inches. They know better than to put them down immediately around the pit they are digging, where they would be in the way. The removal of these bits of earth soon makes a tiny well or shaft an inch or two in depth for their subterranean works, and the earth removed forms a circular barrier or wall around it. With scores of ants at work the digging of this shaft is a matter of only a few minutes.

At the bottom of the shaft is the main apartment, or "living room," of the nest. It is a spacious hall, irregular in shape, but approaches a circle in outline, and its low ceiling is supported by pillars of earth left for the purpose, just as coal miners leave pillars of coal to support the great layers of slate and shale above them. From this main hall long, narrow tunnels are dug in all directions and to a considerable distance.

In the main hall are congregated all the ants that are not out upon some errand, such as collecting food. The eggs, larvæ (or grubs), and pupæ (cocoons), are piled in a heap at one side of this living room and are carefully tended by the ants. The larvæ are fed, and all are moved about from place to place to secure constancy in temperature and moisture. Sir John Lubbock has observed that ants that are crippled or sick are always tenderly cared for by their more fortunate companions, who even carry them out of the nest on pleasant days for an airing in the warm sun, just as we take our invalids out in their wheeled chairs.

The reason why ants select a grassy spot for their nests is now evident. Were the soil not held together by the fibrous roots of the grass, the roof of the tiny nest might fall in, especially if some great animal clumsily stepped on it, and bury alive its scores of helpless inmates.

Ants often dig nests under stones or boards in order to secure a solid roof, not dreaming that some cruel person may pick up their shelter and leave their little treasures exposed to the mercy of the weather. If in any way we disturb their nest, the ants will immediately begin carrying their eggs, larvæ and pupæ off into long passages where they cannot readily be found.

The author once observed a very remarkable arrangement which a colony of ants had contrived for protecting the opening into their nest without shutting out the light. The nest had evidently been made in the ordinary way, having a low mound of earth, like the crater of a tiny volcano, with the entrance to the nest in the center. Then a curious thing had been done. They had found the transparent wing of some large insect, dragged it to the nest and laid it directly over the entrance, piling dirt and small sticks in its edges to prevent it from blowing away, and had then dug a tunnel out on one side as a new entrance. This kept out the wind and dust, but lighted up the passage into the main room—a veritable skylight!

The food of ants varies with the species, but they will generally eat anything digestible. They often devour large insects or even small dead mammals or birds and are very fond of tender grubs and caterpillars. Many of them live on fruit, and many flowers are visited by ants for the nectar which they contain. Some ants come into our houses and feed upon the sweets in our pantries, as we know to our sorrow. Ants frequently carry food into their homes for future use, as will readily be seen if we sprinkle sugar or crumbs on the ground about the nest and then watch the ants.

It is ofttimes asked, What becomes of the ants during the winter, and how long do they live? In some species of insects nearly all the individuals die during the first cold weather, only a few hardy ones, with the eggs, remaining in sheltered places during the winter. With the ants the drones probably die, they being few in number and their time of usefulness being short. The queen and the workers usually survive, crawling off into some well protected refuge, as the interior of a rotten stump, where they hibernate—that is, remain in a sort of sleep or stupor brought on by the cold during the winter. The first really warm weather of spring wakes them up, and they soon establish an active nest, where the eggs are hatched.

A most remarkable feature in the life of some ants is in their habit of keeping slaves and "live stock." They do not go and get the slave ants and retain them as captives. If they did, there would be perpetual fighting between captor and captive. They have a much more sensible method. They go and drive another colony away from their nest and take the larvæ, or grubs, bring them back to their own nest and feed them there until they hatch into full grown ants. Then they make slaves of them, requiring them to do all the work for the colony and depending upon them entirely for food. The poor slaves, born in a condition of servitude, probably never know the difference. Perhaps some time a great ant more powerful than his fellows will issue an emancipation proclamation, and war between colonies will ensue as a result of it! Some ants also feed and rear the aphis, a plant louse, for the sake of feeding upon a sweetish, sticky juice called "honey dew" secured from its body. This insect is often called the "ant cow."

Strangest of all is the habit of the agricultural ant of the south, which actually cultivates a kind of grass upon which it feeds. The cultivation consists of keeping the ground clear of all other plants.

PROGRESSIVE NEW ZEALAND

[Special Correspondence.]

Christchurch, New Zealand, Sept. 19.—Once more the government of this most interesting and most progressive of British colonies is demonstrating the fact that it is peculiarly devoted to the interests of the masses, but this time the object is to assist strangers and tourists in the country rather than the New Zealanders themselves.

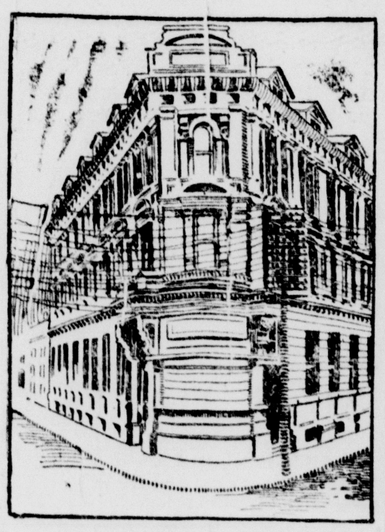

Under the tutelage of T. E. Donne, secretary of the department of commerce and industries, the government is actively employed in the establishment of a complete tourist agency department, with offices throughout the country. Here travelers can make themselves at home, can write letters, cable to the outside world, receive their mail, leave packages and even be provided with developing rooms for changing and working on photographic plates, a boon that will be greatly appreciated in these days by camera laden tourists.

Of course it is certain that this scheme of the government will indirectly redound to the benefit of the people of the country, for New Zealand will be made more attractive to the tourists, who will make longer visits than under the ordinary conditions of travel and will therefore leave more money in the country. The result will also be that more people will be attracted to the colony than in the past, and the probability is that a number of them will remain here, thus adding to the wealth and population. The feeling is that too little is known in the outer world of the wonders of the country, and this plan is undertaken in the hope that it will attract "all the world and his wife" to visit New Zealand and see for themselves the progress that the colony is making.

It is not generally known that New Zealand has many regulations in its governmental affairs that place it many years ahead of other nations, and all these regulations have the sole object of benefiting the people, not the few. Taxes can be paid in any postoffice, and life insurance and accident insurance premiums are payable at the same place. By act of parliament the postmaster or postmistress can marry couples. Postal savings banks are also a popular and important feature of the system. It is said that today there are no less than 212,346 separate depositors in these postal banks out of a population of 883,000 people, with a total of $32,000,000 on deposit. These deposits all receive interest at the rate of 3 per cent.

Government ownership of railways, telephones and telegraphs is an established fact in New Zealand. The government has also instituted, owns and operates life and accident insurance companies and labor bureaus. Here strikes are unknown, labor grievances all being passed on by an arbitration court composed of the judges of the supreme court, one representative of the manufacturers and one representative of the organized labor interests. The leading features of the arbitration law of New Zealand are well worth noting as showing what can be accomplished by simple legal procedure.

The law applies only to industries in which there are trades unions. It does not prevent private conciliation or arbitration. Conciliation is exhausted by the state before it resorts to arbitration. If conciliation is unsuccessful, the disputants must arbitrate. Disobedience of the decision may be punished or not, at the discretion of the court.

The compulsion of the law is threefold—compulsory publicity, compulsory reference to a disinterested arbiter, provided the disputants will not arbitrate voluntarily, and compulsory obedience to the decision. It does not forbid nor prevent disputes, but makes the antagonists fight their battles in court according to a legal code instead of the ordinary "rules of war." There is no "making men work by law" and no "fixing wages by law." The law says only that if they work it must be without strikes or lockouts and that if they cannot agree as to wages the decision must be left to an impartial tribunal.

Another matter of great economic interest is the question of ownership of land. The New Zealand government has no love for large land holders and is doing all it can to have the country divided up into small farms. They especially dislike absentee landlords, and if the owner of property lives outside of the country he has to pay 20 per cent more taxes than resident owners. Large land holders are deemed a social pest, and everything is done to force them to sell out and leave the country. On the other hand, small farmers come in for tender cultivation, and every means is employed to make their life worth living.

The farmer need only bring his poultry to the government depots, and there it will be plucked, dressed, frozen and shipped to England by the federal authorities, who act as agents for the small farmer and sell his produce at a commission of 4 cents per pound. The government lends the small farmer money and helps him to get along when troubles arise. The man whose income is less than $1,500 escapes scot free, paying no taxes. The farmer whose farm is worth only $2,500 is also exempt from taxation. The man who takes a poor piece of property and improves it pays taxes only on what it was worth when he bought it. The rich man, on the other hand, has to pay taxes on his land, on his income on everything.

The public holdings in New Zealand are very large, and the government disposes of them to settlers on very easy terms and in varying methods. There is one way by which the government employs those who are out of work—to clear the lands of timber and rock and sow them in grass. Then they are divided into small farms and are allotted to settlers at a perpetual rental large enough to cover the cost of clearing and at the same time give a fair interest on the value of the land. The size of such holdings is about 100 acres each.

Another interesting feature of the conduct of affairs in New Zealand is that there are no poorhouses, the aged being pensioned by the government after their sixty-fifth year. The law applies to old women as well as to old men. If a man's income at the age of sixty-five is not more than $170 a year, he is given an annual present of $90, and if the income of his wife added to his does not exceed $340 the couple receive $180 yearly. If the man's income is a little more than $170, he is given enough to make it total $300. The law has been in effect since 1898 and requires to support it a tax of more than a dollar a year for every inhabitant of New Zealand.

The colonization of the islands of New Zealand dates from the end of the year 1842, and in spite of the fact that the government possessed no territory in the country on which they might settle few communities can point to a record of such substantial progress. This is the more remarkable owing to the fact that the country has been devastated by two native wars, each of which retarded settlement for years, besides loading the young community with a war debt heavy indeed in proportion to its population.

Since the war of 1863 was finally put an end to in 1868, there has been no trouble of an organized character with the Maoris, who may now be regarded in the light of peaceable and often valuable citizens, with full representation in the colonial representative house of parliament and with several of their principal chiefs sitting in the council or senate of the colony.

The European population of New Zealand numbers fully 750,000, while, according to the last census, there were nearly 45,000 natives, inclusive of nearly 3,000 half castes. The results have so far been, on the whole, remarkably successful, and New Zealand may be looked upon as one of the most progressive of countries and of all the Australasian colonies that in which the wealth is most equally divided among all classes.

The Home of England's Wealth.

The Bank of England generally contains sufficient gold in sixteen pound bars to make 20,000,000 sovereigns. The bank, which stands in three parishes, covers three acres of ground, and, as the current price of land in the vicinity works out at £1,000,000 an acre, it is easy to form an idea of the money value of England's wealth. The ratable value is about £1,600 a week. The bank employs about 1,000 people, pays a quarter of a million a year in wages and £35,000 a year in pensions. There are £25,000,000 worth of notes in circulation which have been handed over the bank's counter.—London Globe.

SUCCESSFUL SERVICE

Preparatory to Communion Held at the Second U. P. Church Last Night.

A very successful service was that which was held last evening at the Second U. P. church, preparatory to the regular quarterly communion service which will be held Sunday morning. The service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. D. W. McQuiston, but the sermon was preached by J. A. C. McQuiston. His text was from Hosea 6:3, "And He shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth." The sermon was a most interesting one and was well received.

The services at this church in the future will commence at 7:30 o'clock in stead of 8 o'clock, as has been the custom during the summer. The services will close this evening, although Rev. Mr. McQuiston will remain in the city over Sunday and assist at the communion service Sunday morning.

NON-SUPPORT CASE

Suit Brought at Smith's Ferry by Former East End Woman.

Information was received in the East End this morning that in a case for non-support which was tried before Justice of the Peace John Chapman at Smith's Ferry yesterday afternoon, Howard Trimble, of Georgetown, was bound over to court in the sum of $1,000 on a charge preferred by his wife. He furnished bond and was released from custody.

It is alleged that over a year ago Trimble married a young lady named Calhoun, who, at that time resided in the East End, but that he never made his home with her. Mrs. Trimble then moved to Smith's Ferry, where she has resided for about a year and thereby gained a residence in Pennsylvania. A charge of non-support was preferred by the wife.

Twenty-Five Have Joined Church.

The Free Methodists, who have been holding a series of revival meetings at the Nevi..e institute, have transferred their meeting place to the Home Circle hall on First avenue. It is reported this morning that since these meetings commenced about 50 conversions have been reported, and 25 persons have joined the church. How long the meetings will be continued cannot be determined at this time.

Two Cars Damaged.

On the last trip of the freight car of the East Liverpool railway last evening the car crashed into the rear end of passenger car No. 19 at the Pennsylvania switch, and as a result both cars were damaged. The company, while the freight car is being repaired, will operate the old line car instead of the regular freight car.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

R. C. Howard is ill at his home on Mulberry street, suffering with rheumatism.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Erie street M. E. church met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George W. Orcutt, on Boyce street. Many matters pertaining to church work were considered.

An interesting game of foot ball is expected to be played at Columbian park tomorrow afternoon between the Oakland and East End Athletic club teams. The game will be strenuous as there is much rivalry between the opposing teams. A large number of tickets have been sold for the event.

A meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. N. Swan, on St. George street. About 30 persons were present. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. N. M. Crowe. An interesting talk upon Alaska was given by Mrs. F. D. Kitchel.

RICHARDS IS BRAVE.

Young Railroad Operator, at Ford City, Pa., Killed a Burglar.

HAD BATTLE WITH THE THIEF.

Wounded In the Scalp by a Bullet, but Pluckily Shot the Thief Twice—Latter Got Drop, but on the Wrong Man.

Ford City, Pa., Sept. 19.—Carl Richards, night operator on the Allegheny Valley railroad, at this place, shot and killed a man who attempted to rob the station at 5:10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Richards is about 24 years of age and weighs about 120 pounds.

The burglar is said to be Charles Andrews, who was noted as the lone burglar of Kittanning, and who was released from the Western penitentiary about 18 months ago, after serving two years for attempted burglary at Nealton, at the north end of Kittanning.

About 5 o'clock yesterday morning Richards was attending to his duties at the station, while a freign train had just pulled out. The operator sat down to his instrument, and as he did so a harsh voice said, "Throw up your hands!" Richards, thinking some friend was trying to play a joke on him, turned with a laugh, only to be confronted with a revolver in the hands of a masked man.

Hurled Himself on the Robber.

Instead of complying with the robber's demand, Richards, without an instant hesitation, hurled himself at the intruder and planted a blow in his face, staggering him, and at the same instant seized the man's revolver. The men went to the floor in a death grapple. Superior in strength and weight, the burglar forced Richards to his knee, and, twisting the revolver about, shot him in the side of the head, the bullet traversing the skull bone under the scalp. Bleeding from his wounds, the operator, with superhuman strength again wrested the revolver from the would-be murderer and both sprang to their feet, and fired one bullet into the robber's side and another into his head, the latter killing him instantly.

The robber is above the medium height and well built. He weighed about 175 pounds and was very strong.

Other Officers Chosen For Pennsylvania League of Republican Clubs.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 19.—The convention of the State League of Republican Clubs adjourned at noon yesterday, after a busy closing session. A boat ride yesterday afternoon and a ball last evening closed the convention program, many delegates having already left town. The league officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows, all except the vice presidents being re-elected: President, F. W. Fleitz, Scranton; treasurer, J. H. Shaw, Philadelphia; secretary, John Kelly, Philadelphia; vice presidents, John R. Wiggins, John E. Durbin, John McCleary, William McDonald, Philadelphia; Robert H. Lindsay, Dr. A. J. Barchfield, Pittsburg; William I. Swope, Clearfield; James D. Hay, Erie.

The resolutions, in part, reaffirm devotion and allegiance to the principles of Republicanism as enunciated in the last state and national platform, they pledge earnest support to Judge Pennypacker and the other candidates. They indorse the national administration and the president's foreign policy, they deplore the coal strike and hope for its settlement by arbitration or compromise at an early date, and recommend reciprocity for Cuba.

TWELVE PAGES.

The trusts have nothing to fear from the Democracy. Talk does not harm them, though the Democrats act as if they expected to talk them to death. Yet the Democrats are receiving contributions from the trusts, a fact which is very embarrassing to their leaders. The friendship of the trusts for the Democratic party was seen long ago. The sugar trust, it was said, made a heavy contribution to the Cleveland campaign purse in 1888, as compensation for the favors done it by the gentlemen who framed the Mills tariff bill. Nixon, who was Croker's understudy at the head of Tammany, is at the head of a trust now, while the Republicans' old ally, Senator Jones, of Arkansas, the head of the Democratic national committee, has been a member of a combine for several years. This, in fact, is one of the reasons why he has been beaten in his campaign for renomination.

The western people do not find it necessary to send east this year for money to move the crops. A western banker writes to Secretary Shaw that every bank in the west has plenty of money to invest in any legitimate channel. It does not require extensive investigation to discover the reason why Populist doctrines and cheap money theories are no longer popular in the west. There is plenty of business and ample money with which to do that business. Moreover, every dollar of that money is worth 100 cents.

Jefferson county is growing so fast that it has decided it must have a bigger infirmary. Growth of that sort is nothing to boast of. But in Jefferson, as elsewhere, it is not the native population that helps most largely to fill the poor house. A more rigid law to exclude immigrants likely to become public charges would, if enforced, save the taxpayers of almost every county in Ohio a large sum annually.

The Ford City telegraph operator who captured a burglar's revolver, turned it on the burglar and shot him dead is one of the humble heroes, but is as deserving of a medal as some of the more celebrated ones.

The Chinese Boxers are again showing signs of uneasiness. Until China gets a government worthy of the name she will always have trouble.

Chicago is certainly in a bad way, if as report has it, a number of the "prominent citizens" forming the committee appointed to receive and entertain President Roosevelt next month are anarchists.

One estimate of the treasury surplus during the present fiscal year is $30,000,000. The Republican surplus habit is too big a fact to be overcome, even by the abolition of all the war taxes.

Now that the Ohio legislators have decided that ping pong should be banished by law, thousands of people who never took any interest in the game will be curious to learn what it is like.

If Speaker Henderson were a younger man and less prominent in public life there would be less wondering why he should take a course that would cause so much talk.

The belated summer is pleasing to many people, but the rivermen can't see its beauties. The magnificent Ohio is fast becoming a streak of sand.

W. S. Devery's triumphant election as a political leader in New York may be a fine thing for Devery, but it is a mighty poor showing for his constituency.

The use of natural gas is on the increase, according to government statistice. Last year the value of the product consumed was over $27,000,000.

Might as well give it up, Peary. You're lucky to return alive, even if unlucky in pole-hunting.

W. K. McClurg.

W. K. McClurg, the oldest resident of New Cumberland, and a Hancock county pioneer, died at his home Tuesday, after a long illness. He was an ardent Democrat in political belief, and well known and esteemed in the community. A widow, a son and two daughters survive him, the youngest of his children being the wife of Attorney S. G. Smith, of Wheeling. Mr. McClurg was an octogenarian, and his death was due to paralysis.

NO WORK UNTIL SPRING

Decision Reached Regarding the New Building of Salvation Army.

A meeting of the Salvation Army was held at the barracks on Fourth street yesterday afternoon, and the presence of Colonel Holz, of Cleveland, commander of this province, took a prominent part.

An open air meeting was held early in the evening, which was addressed by Col. Holz, and then the assemblage moved to the hall. An interesting meeting was held there, which was again addressed by Col. Holz.

The question of beginning work on the new building to be erected by the Salvation Army at Third and Market streets was discussed, and it was decided not to begin operations until spring.

Books Named From the Bible.

A close acquaintance on the part of authors with the terse and expressive phrases in the Bible is plainly shown in the titles of a host of books. Among the titles taken directly from the Bible, says the Saturday Evening Post, are the following:

"If Sinners Entice Thee," "The Day of Temptation," "The Favor of Princes," "Wayfaring Men," "Weighed and Wanting," "The Wages of Sin," "Black, But Comely," "Dross," "In Dedar's Tents," "The Valley of Decision," "The Unjust Steward," "Sons of the Morning," "Visiting the Sin," "The Quick or the Dead," "The Prodigal," "The Bondwoman," "Tinkling Cymbals," "The Crown of Life," "Unleavened Bread," "A Laodicean," "The Birthright," "The Garden of Eden," "The Story of the Innumerable Company," "The Wings of the Morning," "Until the Day Break," "The Mantle of Elijah," "They That Walked in Darkness," "I Go a-Fishing," "The Tents of Shem," "The Snare of the Flower," "Give Me Thine Heart," "Mine Own People," "The Measure of a Man," "Resurrection," "The Market Place," "From My Youth Up," "His Brother's Keeper," "The Hosts of the Lord" and "On the Face of the Waters."

Shock After Burns.

Shock, which is always present in severe burns, requires the administration of stimulants. The amount of shock or collapse after any bad injury or sudden fright differs with the character of individuals. Some succumb to it much more readily than others. When serious, the temperature drops below normal, the face is pale, pinched and anxious, the pulse slow and feeble, the body bathed in a cold perspiration. Sometimes there is shivering. Sometimes the mind wanders. Place the patient at once in a horizontal position, the head slightly raised. Administer stimulants, alcoholic or aromatic vinegar. If whisky or brandy is used, give from a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of hot water every ten minutes until five or six doses have been taken. Surround the body and legs inside the thighs and under the armpits with hot water bags, hot stones—anything to give warmth—but take care not to burn your patient. If the injury is to the head, follow the same treatment, but omit the alcoholic stimulant.

The Lapse of Time.

When two married men who haven't seen each other for some time meet, one of them always says before they separate, "Let's see—how old is your oldest now?" And then, after he gets the answer, he adds, "It is astonishing, isn't it, how time does fly?"—Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

A Soft Answer.

"Keep yer temper, laddie. Never quarrel wi' an angry person, especially a woman. Mind ye, a soft answer's aye best. It's commanded, and, forbye, it makes them far madder than onything else ye could say."—London Tit-Bits.

A Matter of Family Pride.

"Prisoner, have you anything to say why the sentence of death should not be passed upon you?"

"A few words, my lord. I am thirty years of age."

"Well?"

"Your elder brother is a physician."

"This is impertinent and irrelevant."

"It may sound so, my lord, but it means life or death to me. I understand that you take a great pride in the phenomenal success of your brother?"

"I do, but what possible bearing can that have upon your case?"

"Simply this: Your brother, the doctor, examined me a year ago and predicted that I would live at least twenty years more. It would certainly undermine his reputation as a scientist should I die before that time."—London Answers.

WELLSVILLE

FOOTBALL TEAMS

Two Organizations Formed in the High School And Prepared to Do Battle.

Interest in foot ball has now attained its height throughout the public schools of this city and a team has been organized among the boys of nearly every class in the schools where the lads are old enough. Foot ball has always been a favored game among the school boys of this city, and this year is by no means an exception to the rule. The following two teams were organized in the Wellsville high school yesterday and will play a game some time next week:

Second High School—Ralph Fairman, Joseph Andrews, Edward Herwig, Monroe Hague, William Forner, Charles Ferguson, John Wilcoxen, William Allman, David Rose and Walter McQueen. It will be noticed that this team is short two players.

The aggregation which is to do battle with this team is composed of Michael Duty, Harvey Adams, Roy Kerr, Vance Pugh, Tom Cheetel Keck William Turner, Richard Haugh, William Rounds, George Weisch and Paul Sechrist.

The two teams will line up for practice this evening and also on Saturday afternoon. The game will occur about the middle of next week.

WRIGHT OUT OF JAIL

Charge of Interfering With Officer Withdrawn, But May Be Renewed.

Wesley Wright, the stepfather of George Rutledge, who assaulted Chief of Police Henry Thorn last Saturday night, was yesterday released from the village jail at Irondale, Mayor Fogo, of this city, having withdrawn the charge against him.

Wright was arrested on the Sunday afternoon following the night his stepson was arrested and was charged with interfering and obstructing an officer in the discharge of his duty. He attempted to keep Officer Thorn from arresting his son and at the time Thorn went to Wright's home after Rutledge, it is said, he declared that he would blow the officer's brains out.

Wright's trial was set for this morning at Irondale, as he had previously pleaded not guilty, but on account of the sudden death of Mrs. Thorn, the chief being unable to go to Irondale. Mayor Fogo withdrew the charge against Wright and he was released from custody. Wright will probably be prosecuted again later.

THREAT OF INJUNCTION

Against the Street Railway Causes It to Run Through Cars in Wellsville.

L. W. Healy, manager of the East Liverpool railway, held a private consultation with City Solicitor Boyd and Mayor Fogo yesterday afternoon in the city solicitor's office. Mr. Boyd informed Mr. Healy that he had been instructed by the city council to take out an injunction against the street railway company if it did not agree and not only agree but act, in the matter of running cars to the extreme end of the line, and also put down the street paving torn up.

Mr. Healy said at the time that the company would agree to the city's demands and would start at once to run all cars to the extreme end of the line. The work was started this morning and if kept up all will be satisfactory.

REPORT OF LABOR DAY

Submitted to Trades Council Shows the Celebration Was a Complete Success.

The regular meeting of Trades and Labor Council was held last evening in Potters' hall. Outside of routine business, the special committee on Labor day gave in a complete report which was very satisfactory and which proved that efforts toward celebrating Labor day in a fitting manner and without going into debt were not in vain.

The report shows that the celebration was a grand success, financially speaking, and so much so that the council has about decided to have another celebration next year of a similar kind. This report should have been given in at the last meeting of the council, but at that time was not in a complete condition.

A DAMAGE SUIT

May Result From a Change of Grade on Liverpool Street.

Unless the city council soon makes a few improvements upon the Kampman property located on Liverpool street, in the way of filling in the lot and raising the house, it is likely to have a damage suit on its hands. Henry Kampman, who owns the property, sent a communication to council which was read at the last meeting, and stated just what he wanted the city to do upon his property, and unless they agree to his demands he warned them that he would put in a claim for damages.

It seems that by the changing of the grade on Liverpool street Mr. Kampman's property has been left very low. Every time that there is a heavy rain his cellar becomes flooded, thereby causing a damp air through the entire dwelling.

Council disposed of this matter temporarily by leaving it in the hands of a special committee composed of Councilmen Brennan, McCormick and Aughinbaugh. They are to investigate Mr. Kampman's claims and report at the next regular meeting of council.

A Fine Entertainment.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Presbyterian church held a delightful entertainment last evening in the parlors of the church which was attended by a large crowd of people. A very interesting literary program was given and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present. Following the program light refreshments were served, after which a social session was enjoyed. The affair was very successful. The ladies cleared a neat sum on the refreshments.

Oil Magnates in Town.

A party of five oil magnates from Pittsburg arrived in this city this morning and in company with 'Squire A. G. McKenzie and J. Lawson drove out to the Lawson oil field in Jefferson county. Their intentions are to drill a new well in that field today It is expected that part or all of the 1,000 acre tract of land leased to the Lawson family and others will be released by Pittsburg capitalists.

Runaways Taken Home.

The parents of the two lads, Caleb Webb and Samuel Layton, from New Castle, arrived in this city yesterday and took the boys back to New Castle. The parents stated that the boys left New Castle last Monday. They paid the costs of the boys' keeping in the city jail.

Mrs. Elinda Waugh.

Mrs. Elinda Waugh, age 52 years and wife of Engineer Waugh, of the Carroll-Porter Boiler works, Wellsville, died this morning at her home on Commerce street of paralysis. Her husband, four daughters and one son survive.

SOUTH SIDE

But an Informal Caucus Was Held And Important Matters Discussed.

On account of the absence of the recorder, J. S. D. Mercer, who was confined to his home by illness, and the mayor, who was delayed by the train from Pittsburg, which was 45 minutes late, the session of Chester council was not called to order, but Solicitor O. S. Marshall, who is always punctual, had arrived from New Cumberland, and the councilmen were present.

When the councilmen started through the darkness toward Carolina avenue they met Mayor Shrader. It was concluded not to return for the meeting, as a bystander suggested that it was bad luck to turn back. An informal caucus was held. Some discussion took place with reference to the disposition of dirt taken from the excavation on Carolina avenue. A number of other matters were talked over.

A special meeting may be held Monday evening. Bids will be offered on the $20,000 bond issue Saturday. While the paving improvement will cost about $32,000 a portion of the money will be raised by assessments.

It is understood that there will be a number of moneyed men in Chester tomorrow to bid on the bonds. Mr. Marshall and Mr. Boyd have assurances that there will be bidders present from Wheeling, Marietta and other towns, while local capitalists will stand waiting and willing to shoulder the burden.

JUDGE'S WIFE ILL

Miners' Case From New Cumberland Was Not Heard at Wheeling.

The case of the Marquet Coal company against the miners in and about New Cumberland was to have been heard yesterday at Wheeling in the United States circuit court. Judge Jackson, who has been very ill at his home in Parkersburg, had left a sick bed to open court and soon after the federal court was opened yesterday in Wheeling received a telegram announcing the dangerous illness of his wife.

Mrs. Jackson's death is expected and the judge promptly adjourned court to return to Parkersburg. The Hancock county case has been attracting much attention.

Fats vs. Leans.

On Thursday afternoon, September 24, a game of base ball will be played at Porter park, between the fats and the leans of New Cumberland. Dr. Cramer will be manager for the leans and A. S. Cooper manager for the fats. George Smith will play shortstop for the fats and George L. Bambrick and Dr. Fink will lend further skill and assistance to the fats. Dr. Anderson will be umpire.

To Attend a Wedding.

Mrs. Samuel Bloom and sons, Masters Sol and Simon, are about to leave for Cleveland, where they will spend a week. Mrs. Bloom's brother, Lee Harburger, and Miss Sarah Gugenheimer will be married in Cleveland next Tuesday evening. It will be one of the swell society events of that city.

Chester K. G. E.

A lodge of the Knights of the Golden Eagle will be installed in Chester on Friday evening, September 26. There are 65 names in the hands of the state officials at Huntington, W. Va., and it is probable that all of them will be made full-fledged members.

OIL NOTES.

The baller of the machinery stuck in a hole at a depth of 600 feet on the Alexander Stewart farm yesterday which is causing no end of trouble in putting down the well to the required distance of 1,000 feet.

Lawrence Baxter, of Chester, has about the only farm in the oil district near Fairview that has not been leased. Operators are offering heavy bonuses in that section for oil property. Mr. Baxter's land is in the heart of the producing territory.

Luther Carson, a prominent magnate of the Carson oil district, was in Chester yesterday holding a business consultation with E. A. Freshwater.

Feared Fiend Would Be Lynched.

Pierce, Neb., Sept. 19.—Gottlieb Niegenfind, the wounded homicide who killed his wife and father-in-law, was taken from Winside to Blair, Neb., for safe keeping. It had been reported to the officers that a mob was on the way from here to lynch him. The mob was imaginary, but the sheriff took no chances. District Judge Boyd has given orders that Niegenfind be returned to Pierce for trial on Sept. 29.

CAN REACH THE POLE.

Peary Said, if Rich, He Would Persist Until He Was Successful.

MADE IMPORTANT DISCOVERIES.

They Were of Scientific Value, but He Did Not Reach the Coveted Goal—Brought Back Things Abandoned by Greeley Expedition.

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 19.—The Peary Arctic club's relief steamer Windward, with Lieutenant Robert E. Peary on board, arrived at North Sydney at 8:15 yesterday morning from Greenland.

Lieutenant Peary did not succeed in reaching the Pole, but he announced that he made important discoveries. When Peary stepped from the Windward to the wharf no one would have supposed that he had braved the rigors of a winter in the Polar regions. His face was bronzed, but he looked the picture of health.

He says he feels certain that the pole can be reached, and furthermore that if he were a man of independent means he would persevere until he succeeded.

The most northerly point reached was 84 degrees 17 minutes in latitude, northwest of Cape Hecla. Lieutenant Peary says that the pole can be reached from Franz Josef Land and from Grant Land, in latitude 83 degrees, if the winter qaurters are established as far north as possible. He says that he would just as soon winter at Cape Hecla as at Sabine or Etah.

Mrs. Peary and her daughter, who had gone with the Windward to meet him, looked well, although the former is just recovering from an illness.

Dr. Diedrick was on board and quite well. As far as can be learned, the difference between him and Lieutenant Peary has not been patched up. Dr. Diedrick declined to say anything further at present than that the difficulty between him and Lieutenant Peary has not been settled.

Lieutenant Peary said:

"Our expedition did not reach the north pole, but we made most important scientific discoveries. We are all well and glad to get back to civilization."

He recovered and brought back the instruments and library abandoned by the Greeley expedition. He also brought numerous and rare specimens of natural history.

COMING TOUR OF PRESIDENT.

To Be In Cincinnati, Saturday, and Be Hanna's Guest, Sunday, Oct, 5, at Cleveland.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Secretary Cortelyou yesterday made public an outline of the president's tour to the northwest, Sept. 19 to Oct. 7. It was in part:

"The first public stop scheduled is at Cincinnati at 10 a. m., Saturday, the 20th. Upon arrival there the president and party are to be escorted to the St. Nicholas hotel, where an informal luncheon will be given by the general committee. In the afternoon a visit will be made to the fall festival grounds to view the exposition and later the president will be taken to Music hall. In the evening the local committee will entertain the president and party and others at dinner at the St. Nicholas hotel, and after the dinner the president will deliver an address at Music hall."

Detroit will be reached the next morning. Sunday will be spent quietly. The president will attend encampments of two different organizations of veterans of the Spanish war in Detroit and Indianapolis.

Places in Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois are to be visited, including a visit to the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis. The itinerary then says, in part, referring to the arrival in Cleveland, Oct. 5:

"The president and party will leave Chicago during the night and arrive at Cleveland, O., 9:30 the following evening, Saturday, passing during the day through Buchanan, Niles, Dowagiac, Decatur, Lawton, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Jackson, Mich., and Toledo and Sandusky, O. No public program has been arranged for Cleveland, as it is the president's intention simply to spend Sunday there as the guest of Senator Hanna, leaving during Sunday night for the east.

"On Monday, Oct. 6, two hours will be spent at Columbus, where the president and party will be taken for a drive, and the president will deliver an address from the state house. The train will reach Washington Tuesday morning, Oct. 7, at 8:30 o'clock.

"The president will be accompanied during a part of the trip by Secretaries Shaw and Wilson."

Woman's Body Found In Canal.

New York, Sept. 19.—The nude body of a young woman was found in the Morris canal, near Jersey City, yesterday. A long hitching strap, to which was attached a 20-pound iron weight, was around the woman's waist. A wound, apparently a stab wound, about six inches long, was found in the abdomen. Detectives are at work on the case.

COLOMBIA PROTESTS.

CLAIMS GUARDS NOT NEEDED ON PANAMA TRAINS.

McLean Reports Stopping of Trains by Colombian Soldiers—Will Continue to Guard.

Colon, Colombia, Sept. 19.—United States bluejackets, with a small quick-firing gun from the cruiser Cincinnati, continue to accompany each passenger and freight train across the isthmus, notwithstanding the protests against such measures which the Colombian government has lodged with Oscar Malmros, the United States consul here.

There is no definite news of the whereabouts of the insurgent General Herrera, nor signs that insurgent forces are approaching the isthmus.

General Ortiz is in command of the government troops which reached here Wednesday on the steamer La Plata.

Won't Fight With Nicaragua.

Panama, Sept. 19.—The report which has been current lately that Colombia intended to declare war upon Nicaragua, because of the help President Zelaya is alleged to have given the Colombian revolutionists, is discredited and contradicted by Colombian officials stationed in Panama.

Referring to the alleged attitude of Nicaragua with regard to Colombia's internal strife, government officials here said yesterday to the representative of the Associated Press that they considered President Zelaya's reported interference in Colombia's revolution as a dangerous policy for him to pursue, but that they did not blame Nicaragua for the faults of its president, whose conduct, they declared, was disapproved by all sensible persons in his country.

"It is believed," said one of the officials, "that the Nicaragua canal syndicate has had much to do with the help General Herrera has received from Nicaragua, the syndicate's idea being, of course, that the prolongation of the state of war in Colombia would make impossible the completion of the Panama canal."

American Commander Reports.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Secretary of the Navy Moody received the following dispatch yesterday from Commander McLean, of the Cincinnati:

"Colon (blank date),

"Train for Panama went through with Cincinnati's guard of riflemen and rapid-fire gun. Freight train coming toward Colon stopped by soldiers at sides of track, continuously pointing loaded muskets at engineer and train hands, demanding opening of locked box cars for inspection; conductor no key; could not. Went to find some responsible officer; also sent man to flag following passenger train; menace removed; freight came in with passenger train. Will vigorously protect life, liberty, American and other peaceable employes and maintain unobstructed traffic. Have instructed Ranger assist this duty."

PENNYPACKER VISITS BROWN.

He and Penrose Were Guests Last Night—To Go to Pittsburg, Today.

New Castle, Pa., Sept. 19.—Samuel W. Pennypacker, Republican candidate for governor; Senator Boise Penrose and their party arrived here last evening at 7:45 from Erie, and were the guests over night of William M. Brown, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

Local Republicans called last night to meet Judge Pennypacker and Senator Penrose. This morning a public reception was to be held by the visitors. The party was to leave here at 12:25 o'clock over the Pittsburg and Lake Erie, arriving at Pittsburg before 2 o'clock.

NEGRO FIEND ESCAPED.

Finally Shot by Mob and Died—Body Strung Up.

Marshfield, Ore., Sept. 19.—Alonzo Tucker, a negro, who assaulted Mrs. Dennis, near Libby, Wednesday, was lynched yesterday. A body of coal miners, heavily armed, marched into town Wednesday evening. The marshal, who had Tucker in custody, attempted to take him from the jail just as the miners entered, and a rush was made for the negro.

He managed to give his custodian the slip, and jumped under the wharf into the mud flats and eluded both officers and mob until yesterday. At one time there was talk of lynching the officers who allowed Tucker to escape. Finally Tucker was located and shot in the leg. He died of the wound and the mob strug up his body.

Anachronistic.

"Unhand me!" shrieked the heroine of the mediæval drama.

For the hero in tendering his escort had seized her elbow after the modern State street style.

Tart Reply.

"My child," reproved the mother of vinegar, "why don't you work?"

"Well," replied the vinegar sourly, "I have no desire to be bottled up during my salad days."—Judge.

IMPACTED EAR WAX.

Where It Comes From and How It Should Be Treated.

The normal secretion of the orifice of the ear is the product of glands situated in the outer half of the canal only. This secretion—the cerumen, or ear wax—is slowly poured from the gland ducts as a thin, yellowish liquid. As it quickly loses a large amount of its watery elements by evaporation and becomes admixed with dust it forms a thin layer, waxlike in color and consistency, which normally covers only the outer portion of the canal, that in which the glands are located.

This layer of material probably has its chief function, in common with the few small hairs in the same location, in protecting the vibratory membrane—the drum—from the contact of dust.

It is interesting to observe that the exit of this layer of wax is accomplished by nature chiefly with the aid of the motion communicated to the ear canal by the movement of the jaw in chewing and talking, a motion readily felt by touching the orifice with the finger tip during these processes. The constant increase of the secretion is therefore provided with a corresponding loss, which takes place almost as imperceptibly as the constant loss of the superficial layer of the skin from the surface of the body.

This explanation serves to make clear why the use of ear spoons, pins or hairpins is unnecessary. The use of such objects is not only superfluous, but it is often the cause of the very condition which those who use them would prevent.

Even too vigorous washing with a twisted cloth or sponge, for example, may result in pushing the wax back into the canal until a mass sufficient to block the entire opening is accumulated.

The first intimation of the presence of impacted wax is often the sudden occurrence of a considerable degree of deafness. This is most likely to happen on a damp day or just after or during a bath. A slight amount of moisture causes the mass to swell so that the narrow chink previously existing between the mass and the canal is closed. If it is not now removed, the mass may shrink and the hearing power be temporarily restored, only to be lost again when conditions arise causing an increase in the size of the mass.

Firm, gentle syringing with warm water from a piston ear syringe is usually regarded as the safest and best method of removing the mass, the handling of which had better be intrusted to a physician or trained nurse, if possible.—Youth's Companion.

THE COOKBOOK.

In making any sauce put the flour and butter in together, and your sauce will not be lumpy.

A heavy salad is always out of place in an elaborate dinner. Mayonnaise is permissible, but French dressing is better.

If corned beef is very red, which means it is very salt, put it to cook in cold water. This draws out a portion of the salt.

When croquette mixtures are too wet to mold and shape, put in more chopped meat or fish or in a desperate case finely pounded breadcrumbs.

In making custard for lemon pies it is better to partly bake the crust before adding the mixture so that it may not be absorbed by the paste.

Gingerbread is improved by adding to it, when mixing, a cupful of chopped prunes. Use the juice of the prunes instead of water and mix the dough a little stiffer.

Fried breakfast bacon is much improved if cooked in some of the bacon fat saved from the previous day. There should be just enough for the bacon to float in, and it must be hot before the rashers are added. Cook three minutes.

"Stonewall" Jackson's Baptism.

Robert E. Lee and Thomas Jonathan ("Stonewall") Jackson were once stationed at Fort Hamilton, New York harbor, the former while it was being built. Jackson was baptized at old St. John's church at Fort Hamilton, and the records contain the following entry: "On Sunday, 29th of April, 1849, I baptized Thomas Jonathan Jackson, major in the United States army; sponsors, Colonels Taylor and Dimmick, also of the army." The baptismal font used for this ceremony is still preserved.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No Excuse.

A member of a volunteer fire brigade did not appear on the scene of the conflagration until after the fire was under control. He was severely taken to account by the chief for thus neglecting his duty.

"I could not help it," replied the fireman. "I live a long way from the fire."

"That's no excuse," snapped the chief. "You must move nearer the next fire."—London Answers.

Two Aspects.

Pay Your Debts.

"No, sir," declared Gazzan as he warmed up to his subject, "you'll never be happy so long as you are in debt. Pay your debts, Swayback; pay your debts."

"But I have no money," said Swayback.

"Then borrow it."—Detroit Free Press.

Fertile Cuba.

In Cuba cabbages frequently weigh as much as twenty pounds. All vegetables do well. Radishes may be eaten from fourteen to eighteen days after sowing, lettuce in five weeks after sowing, while corn produces three crops per year. Sweet potatoes are perpetual. The natives dig up the tubers, cut them off and plant the old vines, which produce a new crop in three months. All sorts of fruit, horticultural and greenhouse plants and bulbous stock are also grown.

Things That May Happen When the Panama Canal Is Dug.

"George, dear, don't sit there asleep with the flies biting you."

"It's me the flies are biting, my love. If I don't object to it and the flies don't object to it, why should you?"

"But I want to talk to you about this Panama canal, George. It's like other canals, isn't it?"

"Yes, my dear; only it's wider and deeper and shorter."

"But it's just a ditch, isn't it?"

"Yes, my dear, it's just a glorified ditch."

"And what will they do with the dirt they shovel out of it, George?"

"They will dig a hole and bury it, my love."

"There, now, you're stringing me. How long is it going to take to dig it, dear?"

"Oh, a half dozen years."

"My, but that seems a long while to wait if you are in a hurry to get through! And I suppose that they'll break a bottle or something the day it's done, and then somebody will pull a string or something and let the waters of the Pacific flow into the Atlantic. That's fine, isn't it?"

"It's really grand, my love."

"And I was thinking of another thing, George. You know what a fisherman papa is and how he loves to fish for tuna, but hates to go away across to California to find them. Do you think the tuna will swim through the canal so papa can catch them down in Florida?"

"Why not, my love? I have no doubt that all sorts of things from the Pacific side will float through—Chinese scows and whales and seals and walruses and polar bears and"—

"Stop, George! You're a hateful thing!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Insinuation.

It was a warm Sunday morning in church. Fans were fluttering, hymnals flopping, handkerchiefs mopping streaming faces, and the minister thought his audience a little lax in attention. Finally he led up to a rebuke for its lack of consideration for sacred and important things. Said he:

"People are prone to attend to the unimportant things of life."

And he gave a few examples to illustrate his ideas. Presently he made his pertinent application.

"Now," said he, "you are attentive to your own comfort this morning to the sinful neglect of the holy word. Take no thought for the heat," he said dramatically, "for you may be dead tomorrow."—Detroit Free Press.

An Extremist.

"Is Mr. Fusse much afraid of microbes?"

"Well I should say. He washes the antiseptic gauze gloves he wears in an antiseptic fluid before he even handles the sterilized glass that contains the boiled and filtered mineral water he intends to drink!"—Baltimore Herald.

TRADING WAS APATHETIC.

Except Spotty Assortment of Stocks, Thursday—Undertone of Strength Maintained.

New York, Sept. 19.—The stock market maintained its undertone of strength yesterday, but the trading was extremely apathetic outside a spotty assortment of stocks whose show of strength helped to sustain the general list. The money market was quieter, but rates were still stiff. Loans were left undisturbed, however, and no pressure of liquidation was forced. The level of prices therefore was not disturbed, except as the sympathetic influence of the strong stocks helped to harden the market. The Gould group was the most conspicuous. The stocks of independent steel companies were strong as a rule, because of the reports of the extraordinary pressure of orders for all grades of iron and steel products and a degree of activity in production which is limited only by the available supply of material. The freezing weather in the northwest was ignored until the break in the corn and wheat market, which helped to stiffen stocks.

The money outlook continued the principal topic of discussion in the financial district. There was no radical change in the situation yesterday. An additional engagement of half a million dollars Australian gold was announced to arrive several weeks hence. The banks continued to lose to the sub-treasury, notwithstanding the disbursements by that institution on account of October government interest, the customs collections and the deposits for transfer to the interior serving to more than offset the interest payments. The market closed dull and steady.

The bond market was dull and about steady. Total sales, par value, $2,290,000.

U. S. refunding 2s advanced ¾, the 3s ¼ and the old 4s ⅛ per cent. The new 4s declined ¼ on the last call.

MET WITH DEFEAT FOR THIRD TIME

Jamestown Made Many Errors and an Insufficient Number of Hits.

PITCHING OF KID BARKER

Was Altogether Too Fast for the Visitors — Jamestown's Twirler Did Well, But Had Only Very Discouraging Support—Score, 5 to 2.

Before an unusually large crowd the local base ball team made it three straight from Jamestown yesterday afternoon in West End park. The game could have been faster, but it was swift enough—a little too swift for the visitors.

To an insufficient number of hits and an oversupply of errors is credited Jamestown's defeat. That new pitcher that they imported should be signed as a regular for next year. He can outclass their other twirlers and give them cards and spades. The support that he received, though, was enough to dishearten him and cause him to leave the field in disgust. He was a steady fellow, however, and allowed nothing to interfere with his good work. It was six of one and a half dozen of the other between himself and Kid Barker. The latter had some the best of it in strikeouts, but he was hit almost as freely.

Gibson, Reark and Rising went out in less time than it takes to tell it in the first inning. Freck, Campbell and Lytle did also. In the second four men faced the pitcher on the local side, but not a run nor a hit was scored. Barker certainly was pitching them some in this inning. He made the only three men up beat nothing but the wind. Four men managed to face him in the next, but there was nothing doing. One of them landed for three bases, but that was the farthest point he reached. The locals went out in a way similar to the first inning.

Campbell, starting the fourth with a single, made things look a little brighter for the visitors. He died at second and the other four up made no showing. Reark, first at it for the locals, got a two-bagger. Rising went out from third. Reilly stepped forward and belted the ball for two long bases. Reark scored. Barker was out. Davis walked. Heckathorn was out and Reilly died.

Great strides the visitors made in the fifth. Russell walked. Peiper reached first on Reilly's error. Weihrauch singled and scored Russell. Freck got a hit and Peiper went out on a brave attempt to reach third. Campbell and Freck went out on a double play. A goose egg was all that the locals could score, nothwithstanding that Emmerling got a pretty hit.

The way that Barker pulled out of a hole in the sixth was a lovely sight to see. Lytle hit for two bases. McKinley went out. Kane singled and pushed Lytle to third. Kane advanced a base and everything looked very favorable for a couple of runs. But they did not get them. The next two men went out. The locals here practically won the game. Rising hit and was followed by Reilly, who did likewise. Barker walked. And Davis reached first on a fielder's choice. Rising tried to make it in, but was intercepted. Reilly and Barker each scored on Kane's error of Heckathorn's easy one. Heckathorn was thrown out at second. Webb fanned.

In one, two, three order the visitors went down during the remainder of the game, and the locals let them off with the addition of two, one in the seventh and another one in the eighth.

Rising and Reilly made sensational catches. They are fast numbers and such plays are frequent occurrences with them.

THE RELIEF OF CROSS EYES

is a branch of the business which most opticians ignore. But there is a logical reason for this neglect on their part. Cross eyes are caused from muscular imbalance, and muscular imbalance is something the great majority of opticians do not understand. Since coming here I have straightened over a dozen pairs of crossed eyes and have not failed in a single case. I do it with glasses, too, and without pain or trouble.

AMERICAN FRIARS.

Augustinians Will Send Them to Replace Spanish, In Philippines.

MAY THUS SOLVE PROBLEM.

Two of the Distinguished Men of the Order Selected From About a Dozen Volunteers—Others Are to Follow at Intervals.

Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—An important step toward the solution of the troubles in the Philippine islands, caused by the presence of the Spanish friars there, was taken yesterday at Villa Nova college, when the Most Rev. Thomas Rodriquez, O. S. A., of Rome, prior general of the Augustinian order throughout the world, announced that Rev. Daniel J. O. O'Mahony, of Andover, Mass., and Rev. J. E. McErlaine, of Villa Nova, had been ordered to the Philippines as pioneers in the movement of American priests to those islands to succeed the Spaniards.

The two priests will leave for Manila within the next two weeks, and will be followed in a short time, it is believed, by several other American Augustinians. Both clergymen chosen are distinguished and able members of the order. They were selected from among about a dozen volunteers who offered their services to the prior general in case he needed American Augustinians for the Philippines. Many of the Spanish friars in the Philippines belong to the order.

FOR LOSSES IN CHINA.

State Department Sends Money to American Missions Board.

Boston, Sept. 19.—The officers of the American board of foreign missions announced yesterday the receipt of $57,933 through the state department at Washington. The amount is 25 per cent of the award made to the board by the commission now in session in China for losses on mission property in the Boxer outrage of 1900. This money is said to come very opportunely to reimburse the treasury for sums already expended in rebuilding in North China and also to meet other urgent calls of the same sort.

The total award very nearly equals the amount of the claim presented by the board two years since, the changes and reduction being merely nominal. The award for the personal losses of missionaries has not yet been made, but will soon be forwarded from Pekin to Washington.

Spoke From Experience.

A man who tries to uphold all his statements with the prop of personal experience is pretty sure, sooner or later, to find himself in difficulties.

"What kind of posts should you say I'd better have for my piazza?" asked a summer resident of the oracle of Bushville. "Cedar?"

"No," was the instant reply; "not 'less you want to pay for poor stuff. Git pine. Pine will last you a hundred years."

"Are you sure?" asked the summer resident doubtfully.

"Sure!" echoed the oracle. "I never state a thing without I can prove it. I've tried 'em both. Tried 'em twice on my south porch, I tell you!"

Ways of the Statesmen.

Many years ago, when England was engaged in foreign complications, the first lord of the admiralty sent Admiral Codrington a dispatch which was most peaceful as far as it appeared before the public. He told him not to take his ships into action and so forth, but in a corner he wrote this short private note, "Go it, Ned!" And Codrington went to Navarino and smashed up the Turkish fleet.

Same Old Story.

"Wonder why the grizzly bear isn't exhibiting himself today?" said the African lion gently.

"He's laid up. The tortoise bit him," replied the lioness.

"Well, that's what he gets for fooling with a shell game."—Colorado Springs Gazette.

HOME AFFAIRS.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature and of Matters About Town.

Barbers' Meeting—The barbers' local held a short session last evening, but only matters of a routine nature were considered.

Soon to Marry—Frank Stoub and Miss Blanche Hulse, of this city, are soon to be married and will go to housekeeping at once.

To Entertain Tonight—Miss Margaret Thomas will entertain a number of her young girl friends at her home on Seventh street, this evening.

Visited a Sick Brother—At the close of the meeting of the Red Men last evening members of the order visited the home of John Brannon, a member of the order who has been ill for several weeks.

Car Became Useless—The safety appliances on the Calcutta hill street car became useless at a late hour last night, due, it is said, to the bad condition of the car, and it was necessary to send to the barn for assistance.

Will Entertain Pupils—Mrs. Dr. J. T. Elliott will this evening entertain the members of her Sunday school class. The class contains about 15 girls, who are looking forward with great anticipation to a jovial evening.

Eyes Operated Upon—At the Alliance hospital yesterday morning Dr. G. L. King successfully operated upon Robert J. Boyce, of East Liverpool, for the removal of a cataract of the left eye. Mr. Boyce is 76 years of age, but stood the operation well.

College Centennial—Attorney John J. Kerr is in receipt of an invitation from the faculty of the Washington & Jefferson college of Pennsylvania to attend the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the college. Mr. Kerr is a graduate of the college class of '77. He will likely attend the anniversary, which is to be held on October 14, 15 and 16, and anticipates an enjoyable time.

Pleasant Surprise Party—A very pleasant surprise party was tendeded Harry Albright at his home on Avondale street last evening, previous to his departure for school, at Mt. Union college, next Monday. The young people amused themselves with phonograph recitations and several piano solos by Miss Lucy Bucher, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

FINELY ENTERTAINED

VERY SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL AT THE Y. M. C. A. HALL.

Pleasing Program Presented—Similar Entertainment Planned for Next Month.

The first social and entertainment of the season given last evening by the Y. M. C. A. and the Ladies' auxiliary in the rooms of the association was highly enjoyed by over 150 young people.

Many words of praise were uttered today for those who had the affair in charge, and it is the hope of all that were present that the social committee will see fit to have similar demonstrations very often.

The following program was carried out and each participant received merited applause: Stereopticon views of the east, the Holy Land, included, by Dr. Charles Birkett, assisted by Secretary Wright; vocal solo, "The Holy City," by M. C. Williams, state secretary of the association located at Cleveland; selection by Ormes orchestra; piano solo, Charles Usler; solo, Miss Jones; selection by orchestra; solo, Mr. Blount; selection by orchestra.

After the program a delicious repast, consisting of cake, coffee and fruit, was enjoyed. A social session followed for an hour or more, after which the members of the Ladies' auxiliary held a short conference and decided to present another home talent entertainment the latter part of next month. Col. A. V. Newton, of Worcester, Mass., will have charge and has suggested that "A Mock Trial, or Who Stole the Rooster?" be played.

Daily the assortments become greater and selection easier. Fastidious folks, economical folks, dressy folks, will admit, must admit that Erlanger's certainly is a progressive store, that this season's stocks surpass last seasons, as did last season's any of its predecessors.

BOYS' SCHOOL CLOTHING

Take our word for it, that not alone are varieties the greatest here, but that prices are noticeably lower, or qualities noticeably better. Suits for a dollar and suits for ten dollars. Nothing too good for our trade. Just make up your mind you won't spend a penny for boys' attire until the Erlanger stock has been examined, and save yourself repentance at leisure.

GILLIAND TALKS OF HIS DISCHARGE

He Has Found Another Place, But Is Sorry That He Lost the Old One.

FOLLOWED HIS CONSCIENCE

In Trying to Convert His Fellow Workmen—Says a Revolution Is Necessary for the Moral Reform of the Shop Workers of This City.

Glenn Gilliand, the young man, late of Meigs county, who was discharged on Monday from the Brunt Porcelain works because he prayed too loud and long when, as the man states under whom he worked, his time should have been consumed in fulfilling the duties incident to his position, in an interview with a New Review reporter last evening made the following statement:

"The story concerning me published in your paper surprised me very much. I did not think that my former employer would treat me so fairly. He gave the particulars completely. It is possible that the people in general of this city scorned me when they read the articles. Nevertheless I am willing to bear the contempt and I think that I will prosper in the end if I continue doing as my heart dictates. The men among whom I labored struck me as being sorely in need of the prayers that I uttered in their behalf. They all seemed to absolutely disregard religion, and I really could not conscientiously work with them and refrain from doing all within my power to point out to them the course and the only course which leads to eternal glory and happiness.

"I am sorry that I was discharged. Not because the work at that plant was particularly pleasing or fascinating, but because I am no longer able to place before the employes the path which they should follow. Among the workshops of this city a revolution must take place. In the shops are employed almost as many girls and women as men. Parents certainly are not in favor of their children being subjected to the vile tongues that now predominate in the shops. The young daughter thrown into the shops to help in the support of a family is brought in contact with the profanity and vulgar epithets which are allowed to flow at the will of indecent men. Nothing can start a girl on the road to ruins so fast as her intimacy with such men.

"The course that I followed was never before adopted by me. I did it simply because I felt it my duty to do so. I live on the promise that the righteous will prosper. Whatever I do when my heart and religion are at the back of it I know that I will not suffer. I am now working at the Williams' cooper shop on Second street. They hired me there on the morning following the day I was discharged. It gives me pleasure to work at the cooper shop. The men employed there are on a higher level. They do not need any advice from me.

"Since my experience of the last few weeks I have entirely changed the plans that I laid for a course in college to prepare myself for the ministry. In three weeks I am going to apply to the Free Methodist conference for a charge, and if given an appointment I will endeavor to carry out the principles of Christ, and thereby lead the erring ones to a life of eternal joy."

NEW INFIRMARY

Jefferson County Commissioners Decide to Have One—Present Building Overtaxed.

Steubenville, Sept. 19.—Jefferson county must have a new infirmary. That question has been decided by the county commissioners, and it only remains for the people to ratify the decision of the commissioners by a vote at the polls. As the erection of new infirmary buildings means a saving of expenses every year there is little or no doubt but that the taxpayers will quickly and willingly vote for the appropriation to erect new buildings.

Just wht the new buildings will cost has not yet been determined. The commissioners have had no plans prepared or estimates made, but it is safe to say that the cost will be anywhere from $75,000 to $100,000, and there is reason for this. The present old rattletrap infirmary buildings are crowded full and contrary to law the directors are caring for a number of cases on the outside of the infirmary. The population of the county is increasing rapidly, and many of the new citizens are foreigners working in mines where most of the infirmary cases are received from. At the present time there are over eighty-five inmates in the infirmary and if a half dozen more were sent out there the superintendent would have no place to put them.

ENGLAND ALSO PROTESTS.

Germany Takes Ground That United States Acted Within Rights, as to Roumania.

Berlin, Sept. 19.—The German foreign office has received a note from the British government inviting some action on the part of the signatories of the treaty of Berlin of 1878 regarding Roumania's treatment of Jews. The British note is shorter than that of the United States on the same subject, but it pursues the same end. It is assumed here that Great Britain knew of the United States' step beforehand and acted in support thereof. The United States action is regarded as being quite within her rights, in seeking the assistance of the signatories in preventing an influx of indigent immigrants, which is recognized as a substantial grievance. These two notes will result in an interchange of views between the powers as to what action is feasible. In the meantime it is expected that Roumania will take cognizance of the United States' protest and defend her case upon her own initiative before the signatories.

The foregoing represents the views of the German government, but the press, knowing nothing of the British note, seems to consider the United States' note action as simply chivalrous and as not likely to result in practical measures. The Vossische geitung says, in part, that while thinking Germany will do nothing it still believes that the action of the United States cannot fail to have a strong moral effect.

INJUNCTION AGAINST FIGHT.

Granted by Louisville Judge, Yesterday—Club Manager to Ask Dissolution, Today.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 19.—Judge Field, in the Jefferson circuit court last night, granted the injunction prayed for by State's Attorney General Pratt to prevent the contest between Terry McGovern and "Young" Corbett, scheduled for next Monday night. The attorneys for the Southern Athletic club will apply to the court of appeals today for a disolution of the injunction, and a decision in this matttr is expected by noon. A disolution of the injunction by the appellate court would mean a victory for the promoters of the contest.

Concerning Judge Field's decision, Manager Robert C. Gray, of the Southern Athletic club, said last night:

"At 11 o'clock tomorrow morning my attorneys will apply to a judge of the court of appeal for a dissolution of the injunction. The defense claims Judge Field has no jurisdiction against an alleged criminal offense. I am absolutely confident that the contest will take place."

SOME TRI-STATE EVENTS.

At the Pennsylvania Medical society meeting at Allentown these officers were elected: President, William M. Welch, Philadelphia; vice presidents, H. H. Herbst, Allentown; G. F. Bell, Lycoming; G. W. McNeal, Pittsburg; S. P. Heilman, Lebanon.

Members of the One Hundredth and Eleventh regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, in reunion at Erie, Pa., elected officers as follows: President, Captain George Selkregg, of North East; vice president, W. J. Alexander, of Warren; secretary, Captain John L. Wells, of Erie; treasurer, A. W. Merrick, of Corry; historian, the Rev. J. R. Boyle, of Philadelphia.

Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, superintendent of public instruction of Pennsylvania, has designated Friday, Oct. 17, as Autumn Arbor day to be observed by the schools.

A black bear, which has been preying on the farmers of Sand Ridge, near Philippi, W. Va., has reappeared at Valley Furnace, where he attacked a little girl who was picking elderberries. The girl's father arrived in time to rescue her, but she was considerably scratched by the animal's claws.

At Wheeling, W. Va., Joshua T. Jackson, convicted of criminally assaulting Etta Montgomery, aged 12, was sentenced to the penitentiary for seven years.

The new $200,000 court house for Wetzel county, W. Va., has been accepted and the next session of the circuit court will be held in it.

At Bucyrus, O., because the county commissioners granted a franchise to the Logan Natural Gas company, Charles Gallinger, prosecuting attorney, has resigned. Gallinger wanted the gas company to be shut out until it gave the county free gas for the court house and jail.

Louis D. Desilets, a salesman at Bucyrus, O., has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Assets nearly $5,000.

At Ashtabula, O., A. L. Haskell was shooting at a mark, when his shotgun exploded, a greater part of the charge entering his head, penetrating the brain. He is paralyzed, unconscious and will not recover.

At Washington C. H., O., because of the apparent purpose to elect Dr. A. H. Norcross, of Grace M. E. church, as presiding elder of the Columbus district, the congregation has started a zealous movement to secure his return to his present station.

AGAINST SALARIES FOR COUNCILMEN

Ohio Senate Agrees to This As Regards Villiages in the State.

Upper House Puts It in the Code Without a Dissenting Vote—Legislature Has Adjourned to Go to Cincinnati.

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—The legislature adjourned yesterday until next Tuesday, to attend the fall festival at Cincinnati, Friday. The members and families will be the guests of the Fall Festival association. The house committee has adopted a plan for public improvements by providing that material is to be purchased through competitive bidding, while the city will employ the labor. Assessments for public improvement will be made on market value of benefited property, value to be fixed by committee appointed by the mayor. Interest on bonds fixed at 6 per cent as maximum, while premium from sale of bonds is to be applied to the sinking fund.

When the senate met yesterday morning the Chamberlain amendment was agreed to without a dissenting vote. It simply preserves the Beal law, which would have been repealed had the Nash code gone through as drafted. The fear of the saloon people which restored the workhouse law was not well founded, and when they saw the mistake they withdrew from the opposition to the Chamberlain amendment.

The senate yesterday began consideration of the village code. After long and spirited discussion an amendment by Mr. Harris to allow members of village councils small salaries was voted down. Men who have resided in a village one year, instead of five, were made eligible to election to executive offices therein. Deposit of village funds in private banks having paid capital of not less than $10,000 was authorized.

PATTISON ADDRESSED GRANGERS

Also Spoke at Huntingdon, Pa. Other Members of Party Also Made Speeches.

Huntingdon, Pa., Sept. 19.—The Democratic gubernatorial campaigners spent some time at Centre Hall yesterday and were greeted by the Grangers, who were holding their annual picnic there. The Pattison party was met at Coburn upon its arrival from Harrisburg by a committee, headed by County Chairman J. J. Bower, and escorted to the picnic grounds. Candidates Pattison and Guthrie shook hands for nearly two hours and then they were taken to the Auditorium, where a great and enthusiastic meeting was held. Ex-Governor Pattison and Mr. Guthrie spoke. Senator Herbst, of Berks county, made a hit with a short address in Pennsylvania Dutch, and Representative Mayne, of Lehigh, did the same. Major Moses Veale also spoke briefly, and State Chairman Creasy, for whom the crowd clamored, spoke.

At Tyrone a reception committee from Huntingdon boarded the special car in which the campaigners are now being moved about, and acted as escort to Huntingdon.

A great crowd surrounded the station, and after a hurried supper there was a parade to the court house, where the meeting was very largely attended. Mr. Pattison, Mr. Guthrie, Representative Mayne and Major Veale spoke.

BISHOP VISITS STRIKE REGION.

Fallows Said Operators Have Made a Mistake.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 19.—Bishop Fallows, of Chicago, arrived here last night. He visited eight collieries and a washery, en route from Philadelphia, and found none at work. On the same train was John Markle, of the firm of G. B. Markle & Co., who has represented the individual coal interests at all of the conferences of the operators. He said that after conversing with Mr. Markle and the miners he had reached the conclusion that the operators had made a mistake in opposing arbitration of their differences.

President of Miami Inaugurated.

Oxford, O., Sept. 19.—Dr. Guni Potter Benton, late president of the Upper University of Iowa, was inaugurated as president of Miami university yesterday afternoon. Numerous college presidents from Ohio and other states were present. President James B. Angell, of the University of Michigan, delivered the principal address on education. Addresses were also made by Governor Nash, State School Commissioner Bonebrake, President George E. McLain, of Iowa State university, and President O. W. Thompson, of the Ohio State university.

Talisman Emerald Of Oajaca

Precious Stone Revered By Mexican Indians

For years, ever since Mexico was opened to the white man, every traveler to that romantic land has heard of the emerald of Oajaca. Rumor said that it was huge almost beyond belief. Whatever its size, it was certain that the Indians believed in its magic properties. No white man ever saw it, but now an American woman has succeeded, through a sister woman's gratitude, where men found failure.

This emerald of Oajaca has for ages been the object of covetous interest on the part of Spanish viceroys, Mexican presidents and provincial governors. Great dealers in precious stones have sought it, too, but the Indians as the lineal descendants of the Aztecs, to whom the emerald is supposed to have originally belonged, hold it in superstitious reverence and such safe keeping that until recent years little but unconfirmed legend of the stone's existence was known.

A few years ago President Diaz became so interested in the matter that he decided to prove the truth or fallacy of the reports of this emerald's size and value. Without warning he suddenly appeared in the village where it was said the gem was secreted. He summoned the people into the plaza and announced that if they would show him the emerald known to be in their possession he would in return proclaim a public holiday and entertain them with a fiesta at his own expense. He promised as president and by virtue of the same blood in his and their veins that if they would accede to his request he would not attempt to take the emerald from them.

Upon this a prolonged consultation ensued among the Indians, the result of which was that from afar off in the crowd one of them held up at arm's length between his forefinger and thumb the famous emerald, scintillating in the rays of the sun. Diaz was desirous of a closer inspection and, turning to his guards, ordered the man to be brought to him. His actions if not his words were at once considered by the Indians to be suspicious, so they promptly raised a tumult, and, amid shouts of "Viva Porfirio Diaz!" and "Viva la fiesta!" the man and the emerald disappeared, and this was the only glimpse the powerful president was able to obtain of it.

An American woman had better fortune. It happened that her husband was appointed to superintend the medical department of the railroad being built through Oajaca and incidentally saved the life of an Indian woman. In her gratitude this woman begged to be allowed to make some recompense, as the American doctor had refused to accept a fee. But half in jest he replied that if she would show him the Oajaca emerald he would be satisfied. At this the woman seemed greatly disturbed. She at first declared she knew nothing about it, but on being pressed further by the doctor's wife she admitted knowing where it was hidden. Finally she agreed that if the doctor would solemnly promise to absent himself she would obtain the stone and show it to his wife. For some unexplained reason she held so steadfastly to this point that the wife must be alone when the emerald was produced that it was yielded, though much to the doctor's disappointment.

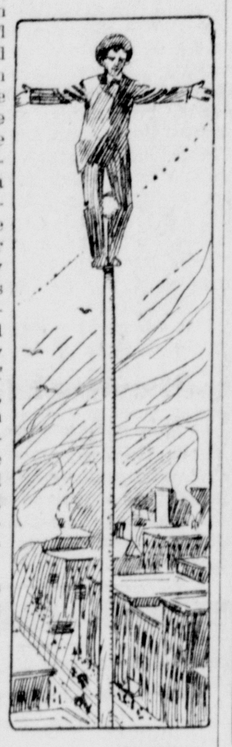

So one morning shortly after the Indian woman appeared at the physician's temporary residence. She made sure that the doctor's wife and herself were alone. Then she produced the emerald from a fold of her clothing. For about a minute only was the doctor's wife permitted to inspect the gem while it was held securely in the Indian woman's fingers. In size, according to the fortunate visitor's account, the stone is as large as a pigeon's egg, crudely polished and of a rich, grass green color. In its depths she noticed a few black spots or flaws, which go far to prove that it is a genuine emerald and not volcanic glass, as has been suggested. The purest emeralds are seldom without flaws, this being one of the tests.

In great haste the Indian woman again secreted the gem and went out but one curious circumstance the doctor and his wife remarked subsequently. During the remainder of their stay in the village, though they met the woman several times, neither by word or sign would she recognize their previous relations. She treated them as absolute strangers. To her mind the risk she had run in showing the talisman of her tribe was full compensation for the service rendered. The general belief is that the stone is not secreted in any place, but is concealed on the person of one of the Indians and passed on as circumstances may require. If such is the case, the woman must have obtained the gem by stealth, and during the time it was in her possession she was doubtless in no little danger of her life.

Daring Pose of a Flagpole Painter

James Raney of San Francisco is the champion steeple climber and flagpole painter on the Pacific coast.

Raney is a thin, wiry man, pale and somewhat weary looking, not at all the sort of person that one would expect to find in possession of the courage and reserve force which he must necessarily have. It is a type which history has made us familiar with, for many men of Raney's build have distinguished themselves by the doing of desperate deeds, and all of them owe their distinction to the cold, clear and undisturbed brain which Raney's trade demands of him.

So little does the terrifying height at which he works trouble him that he voluntarily and cheerfully climbed the flagstaff on the top of the Firemen's Fund building and stood with his feet on the pole just where the rod that holds the ball springs from the main shaft and raised himself to his full height without support, at least 120 feet from the ground, where he was photographed.

"I have painted during the last five years nearly all the high flagpoles in San Francisco," said Raney to a reporter. "The pole which I was photographed on at the Firemen's Fund building was not by any means the highest.

"I remember climbing a pole in Seattle, Wash., that was 160 feet from the ground. That was a flagpole having its foundations in the ground, not placed on the top of a building. That was the highest pole that I have ever climbed. I have been higher than that on buildings many times."

Risked Her Life to Save Two Children

At the congress of life savers which was recently held at Nantes, France, the life saving work of American women received particular attention, inasmuch as they contribute not a little to the life saving service in the United States.

Not only does an association of women known as the Blue Anchor society supply all the life saving stations with clothing for shipwrecked people, but the wives and daughters of the station keepers frequently do heroic work in the rescue of drowning persons. Perhaps no record of life saving is deserving more praise than the recent exploit of Miss Lillian Damon of Boston, who rescued two children from watery graves at Milford, Conn.

When Miss Damon went to Milford a couple of months ago to enjoy a summer outing, she could not swim a stroke, but she soon became an expert and just in time to save the lives of Ruth and Frank Stanley, eleven and nine years old respectively.

The children were playing in a boat on Long Island sound when the boat became unfastened from its moorings and started to drift away with the tide. They screamed and jumped into the water.

Miss Damon, who was fully dressed, plunged into the water from the shore. She swam a hundred feet to where the children were struggling, locked in each other's arms. Grasping the girl by the hair, she soon had the little ones on shore, where they had to be rolled on a barrel before they were revived.

Miss Damon is not yet twenty years old. She is a tall and graceful blond of beautiful face and figure.

MEN IN OLIVE DRAB

NEW UNIFORM PRESCRIBED FOR UNCLE SAM'S FIGHTERS.

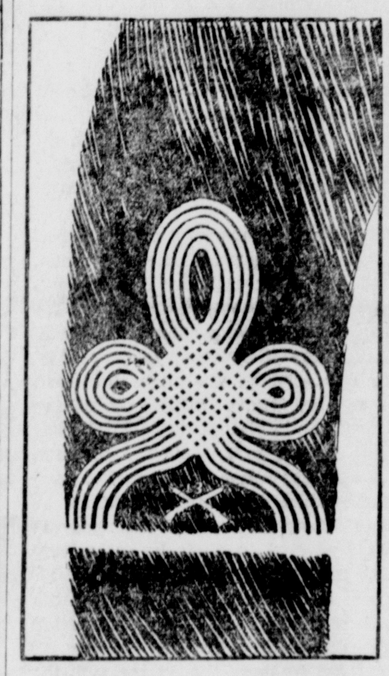

Gold Braid and Profuse Ornamentation Take the Place of Simplicity. Chaplain a Somber Figure—Foreign Medals Tabooed.

Secretary of War Root has ordered that Uncle Sam's fighters, from general of the army to private soldier, shall be arrayed henceforth in habiliments more suggestive of the grandeur and wealth of the nation than the modest uniform heretofore worn.

The prevailing color of the new uniform is to be olive drab for active duty in the field, because this color is less noticeable at a distance.

But it must not be supposed that the "man in blue" is to be entirely eliminated. He will be very much in evidence except when in a campaign. On all dress occasions blue is still to be the color of the uniform; but when doing duty in the field Uncle Sam's soldiers will be the "men in olive drab."

The new uniform is decidedly fetching. The full dress coat is to be a double breasted frock of dark blue cloth, with standing collar of dark blue velvet, the skirt reaching from one-half to three-quarters the distance from the point of the hip to the bend of the knee. The shoulder knots are of gold wire cord. The collar will be ornamented with a band of oak leaves embroidered in gold and extending all the way around. If the officer has not the rank of general, then the collar ornament will consist of two bands of one-half inch gold wire braid, passing all around the collar and parallel with its edge, on a ground of silk or cloth of the collar of the corps, department or arm of the service.

The full dress trousers for general officers will be of dark blue cloth, with two stripes of gold wire braid half an inch wide with a quarter of an inch interval between them mounted upon dark blue velvet and placed along the outside seam of the trousers.

The enlisted men will retain for dress purposes a uniform of dark blue, but the service coat will be of olive drab, the same color as prescribed for officers. In tropical climates white will be worn, and for troops serving in cold climates a special uniform has been adopted. A shoulder strap will be placed on each shoulder, and in the case of officers the collar will be ornamented.

In the new regulations the chaplain's uniform has been simplified. His full dress uniform will consist of a black frock coat with standing collar, one row of nine black silk buttons on the breast. His trousers will be of plain black or blue black cloth, with stripe of lustrous mohair braid along the outside seam. He will wear a black hat, white gloves and blackened shoes.

One thing that the department's order forbids that will cause some dissatisfaction among the men who have them is that no decorations received from a foreign government shall be worn by officers or men while on duty with United States troops.

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

President Roosevelt to Attend Their Encampment at Detroit.

It is expected that 50,000 members of the Society of Spanish War Veterans will attend the annual encampment to be held at Detroit Sept. 22 to 25, inclusive. The programme as partially announced is as follows:

Monday morning, Sept. 22, opening of convention; address by President Roosevelt; afternoon 2 p. m., big parade of all military, semimilitary and civic bodies. The president will head the parade to the reviewing stand, where the parade will be reviewed by the president and invited guests. At 4 p. m., lake ride for the president, national officers of the Spanish war veterans and invited guests. Evening, a banquet in honor of the president and the Spanish war veterans.

Tuesday morning, time taken up with the session of the convention; Tuesday afternoon, boat ride and lunch for invited guests, national officers of Spanish war veterans and delegates.

Wednesday morning, time occupied by the session of the convention; evening, camp fire, entertainment, lunch and general good time at Light Guard armory.

Thursday morning, the closing session of the convention.

President Roosevelt will arrive in Detroit Sunday morning, and after attending church he will lunch with General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. In the afternoon he will be entertained by the committee with a drive to places of interest. That the encampment will be a great success is fully assured.

Detroit's executive committee having the arrangements in charge for entertaining the delegates and visiting comrades is composed of the leading men of that city, among them being Mayor William C. Maybury and General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. General Alger is chairman of the committee on reception. Mayor William C. Maybury is chairman of the executive committee and has the assistance of the leading business men of Detroit, as well as the Spanish war veterans of that city. There are about 1,200 members in Detroit.

NEW SURGEON GENERAL.

Has Seen Much Service In Indian Campaigns.

Colonel Robert Maitland O'Reilly, the new surgeon general of the army, has for a number of years been chief medical officer of the department of California, stationed at San Francisco, until ordered to Washington to relieve Surgeon General William H. Forwood, who retires under the age limit.

Colonel O'Reilly is a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of the medical department of the university of Pennsylvania. He entered the regular army in August, 1862, and did hospital duty during the civil war, much of the time as field surgeon at the front.

In April, 1867, Colonel O'Reilly was appointed an assistant surgeon with the rank of first lieutenant, and accompanied recruits to California and Arizona. The greater part of his service for several years was in the west, where he accompanied the troops on various Indian expeditions. Advanced to the position of post surgeon he has served at the most important army posts throughout the country.

Think What It Means

Dispensia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Impoverished Blood and General Exhaustion.

During the last year thousands of Americans have flocked to Germany, to avail themselves of the wonderful curative powers of the famed

TRAUBENKUR OR GRAPE CURE

The fame of these cures for such diseases is world-wide and the astonishing results have been recognized by physicians the world over. There can be no doubt or no quibbling. The grape cures have restored health to many thousands of Americans. Their absolute worth is no longer questioned, but only a few can afford the time and expense of a visit to the Traubenkur. It has remained for an American Chemical Co., the Lightning Medicine Co., of Rock Island, to combine all the best elements of the Traubenkur in and it has now been placed on general sale throughout America in drug stores at only 50 cents per bottle, so the suffering of all classes have the full benefit of these great curative agents.

Think what it mens to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

LOUIS BONHART of Lawrence, Neb., says: "I have been afflicted with stomach trouble for the past three years. At times it grew so severe and annoying that I was compelled to quit work for two or three days each week, when the pains in my stomach were beyond endurance. I took but teree bottles and am today perfectly well. I used nothing else but Mull's Grape Tonic. To me it is more than worth its weight in gold."

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the results. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

If used with a little chopped ice it will be found a delicious drink.

JOHN BROWN'S HOMES

MOVEMENTS TO PRESERVE THEM AS HISTORIC MEMORIALS.

How Connecticut Is Looking After a Homestead Once Owned by the Antislavery Hero — Adirondack Home Needs Attention.

A movement which might be described as a John Brown revival seems to be well under way. Efforts are being made to preserve as historical monuments the various houses where the pioneer abolitionist lived during his varied career.

In Connecticut there has been organized the John Brown association. Its special object is to maintain the old Brown homestead in West Torrington, Conn. The association is hunting for a caretaker who will occupy the hundred acres of farm rent free and keep off relic hunters. Its members believe that the old house in a good state of preservation will be a far better memorial than the monument to be erected with the $1,000 appropriated for that purpose by the last Connecticut legislature.

The Adirondack homestead of John Brown, near North Elba, N. Y., where he spent his last days and where his ashes lie at rest, is also sadly in need of attention. Visitors have noticed that the historic farm is in worse condition than it has been in years, and they say the state of New York should do something to preserve the place. Summer guests at the various hotels in the vicinity who have been making their annual pilgrimages to the one time home and grave of the antislavery hero have expressed themselves indignantly over the condition in which they find the buildings and especially the house.

The present caretaker of the place is Mr. Reuben Lawrence, and residents of the locality, who have known him for years as a thrifty, industrious man, know that whatever blame for the present condition of the John Brown farm may rightly exist none can attach to him. The rear portion of the house has not been repaired since Brown built it years ago, and now it is scarcely habitable, although Mr. Lawrence's family are obliged to use it for lack of room. The floor timbers were originally supported by huge logs. These have rotted away, allowing the floor to sink and become unsafe. The dropping away of these timbers has also had its effect upon the whole rear portion of the house, causing the roof to sag. In addition the old shingles have started up so that the roof leaks badly. It is asserted that the total repairs needed on all the buildings would not cost over $1,000.

Another matter which should receive prompt attention is the proper marking of the graves of John Brown's two sons, Oliver and Watson, buried beside their father. These graves are now simply marked by plain wooden stakes bearing no inscriptions whatever. The original stone planted above John Brown's grave was some years ago covered with a wooden frame having a glass front. This still stands and has served to protect the stone. This stone is appropriately inscribed, as is also the huge bowlder at the head of all three graves. It was Brown's last wish that his body be laid at rest beside this great stone he had learned to love in early life.

That John Brown thought much of his peaceful little Adirondack home this last wish reveals. It was not the place of his birth. He had lived in many larger places in the more fertile lands of the west. In the milder climates he had spent portions of his life. But it was John Brown the man, not John Brown the reformer, who made that last simple request. Worn out in a fruitless endeavor, deserted by friends, facing death, John Brown's strife sickened heart yearned again for that little green dip in the Adirondack hills, for the soughing of the trees, for the birds, for the sunshine, for the rolling fields and the blue hills beyond, for that home where he had spent fourteen of the pleasantest years of his life. And he asked to be buried beside the great bowlder where he had built that little home many years before.

The request was heeded, and his bones lie beside the great bowlder, and floating in the mountain breezes the stars and stripes high overhead proclaim to the country for miles around that within that little iron railed inclosure is a spot of sacred ground.

A RETROSPECT OF THE TENNIS SEASON.

English Invasion the Year's Principal Feature—Dohertys Are Superb Players.

Greatest of all tennis players are the Doherty brothers of England, and their victorious career at the various tournaments in which they have participated shows them to have mastered the game to a sensational degree. These British brothers, in fact, have contributed largely to the success and picturesqueness of probably the most interesting season in the history of American tennis.

Beginning early in the spring, east, west, north and south the racket wielders evinced active interest in local, state and sectional tournaments, determining to place the game once more in the high position it held before golf, cycling, etc., robbed it of its supremacy. The measure of their success can readily be noted by glancing over the records of the year. Entries have doubled, attendance at matches doubled and expenditure tripled. Surely this is a vindication if any one deems that tennis needs vindicating.

Probably the greatest surprise of the year was the defeat by the Dohertys of Holcombe Ward of Orange, N. J., and Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis in the international and national championship doubles. While it was generally conceded on this side during the summer that the Britons had an admirable chance to carry home the doubles title, few impartial observers who had gone over the situation carefully could see where they could worst the American champions. A comparison of the two doubles teams on a strict form basis gave a very bright aspect to the American side of the question, but after the visitors arrived and showed at Longwood, Mass., that they were playing a game nothing short of superlative the Yankee hearts began to beat with less confidence.

In the international matches at Bay Ridge, New York, the Britons won out simply through superior endurance. They have the art of saving strength down to a science, and, although Ward and Davis took the first set in easy fashion, the visitors never let that fact bother them for a moment. They seldom made an unnecessary move, never making an effort to get a return that appeared out of reach. In this particular they presented a sharp contrast to the Americans, who tried for almost everything that came over the net. Consequently, while the Britishers did not play a spectacular game at all times, they reserved every ounce of energy for the final games. Their victory in the last three sets at Bay Ridge showed the superiority of their studied method.

In few contests on this side did the Dohertys start out in winning form.

S. F. DOHERTY, WHO DEFEATED CHAMPION LARNED AT BAY RIDGE, NEW YORK.

Both in individual matches and doubles the opening games invariably went to the Americans. At Newport, in the national championships, however, they took the doubles championship in straight sets.

A GREAT PEACH CROP

THAT WHICH GREW AROUND NEW YORK IN THE YEAR 1679.

Apparently the Luscious Fruit Was More Abundant on Manhattan Island Than Anything Else Except Bad Barbados Rum.

Books of travel usually contain a vast amount of matter that is unimportant and a good deal that is untrue, besides not a little that is uninteresting, and the old travelers who wrote about their voyages to New York furnished few exceptions to the rule.

Tantalizing, therefore, is the diary of an observer who visited these shores in 1679; who had a reportorial instinct for the important, the true and the interesting; whose journeys covered the entire territory now known as the Greater New York; who wrote fully and graphically of all he saw, and whose observations have all come down to us, with the exception of some thirty pages describing New York city at the time of his visit. Exactly that which would now be most valuable is lost; but, from what remains, we can learn a good deal about the New York of those days.

Jaspar Dankers is the writer whose impressions of New York have thus been lost to the world, and in what has been preserved of his writings the chief thing that forces its attention upon the reader is the magnitude of the peach crop in these parts during the year of his visit. He was a religious enthusiast, the leader of the Labadists, a sect that flourished briefly on three continents toward the close of the seventeenth century, and his voyage companion was a minister of the same sect.

But there is little of this in his diary against a great deal of what they ate and drank, and on occasions when they went to the little church in the fort where the custom house is now the fact is mentioned with some apologies, one service being attended "in order to avoid scandal and for other reasons" and others because "my companion is endeavoring to learn the language."

But on the very day of their arrival in New York, Sept. 23, 1679, we begin to hear of the eatables and drinkables, especially the peaches.

"He first took us to the house of one of his friends, who welcomed him and us and offered us some of the fruit of the country, very fine peaches and full grown apples, which filled our hearts with thankfulness to God. This fruit was exceedingly fair and good and pleasant to the taste, much better than that in Holland or elsewhere, though I believe our long fasting and craving for food made it so agreeable. After taking a glass of madeira we proceeded. As we walked along we saw in different gardens trees full of apples of various kinds and so laden with peaches and other fruit that one might doubt whether there were more leaves or fruit on them. I have never seen in Europe in the best seasons such an overflowing abundance. When we finished our tour and had given our guides several letters to deliver, we returned to his father-in-law's. He regaled us in the evening with milk, which refreshed us much. We had so many peaches set before us that we were timid about eating them, though we experienced no ill effects from them."

And the next day, Sunday, the record opens with this:

"I was surprised on waking to find my comrade had already dressed himself and breakfasted upon peaches."

So it went every day. Toward the end of the week they crossed the ferry (for less than half a cent apiece) to Long Island, where the people made them "very welcome, sharing with us bountifully whatever they had, whether it was milk, cider, fruit or tobacco, and especially, first and most of all, miserable rum, which had been brought from Barbados and which is called by the Dutch 'kill-devil.' These people are very fond of it, and most of them extravagantly so, although it is very dear and has a bad taste."

But on Long Island, as elsewhere, the peaches were as good as the rum was bad.

"It is impossible to tell how many peach trees we passed, all laden with fruit to breaking down and many of them actually broken down. We came to a place surrounded with such trees from which so many had fallen off that the ground could not be discerned and you could not put your foot down without trampling them, and notwithstanding such large quantities had fallen off the trees still were as full as they could bear. The hogs and other animals mostly feed on them."

The peaches in Harlem were as plentiful and still more delicious. When they went up to the north end of Manhattan island, we find this notice:

"Before we left (Harlem) we did not omit supplying ourselves with peaches, which grew in an orchard along the road. The whole ground was covered with them and with apples, lying upon the new grain with which the orchard was planted. The peaches were the most delicious we had yet eaten."

But they need not have taken the precaution mentioned, for even after crossing Spuyten Duyvil they found more peaches than ever.

"We came to a road which was entirely covered with peaches. We asked the boy why they left them lie there and did not let the hogs eat them. He answered: 'We do not know what to do with them, there are so many. The hogs are satiated with them and will not eat any more.' From this we may judge of the quantity of them."—H. H. N. in New York Mail and Express.

CATCHING A THIEF.

An Old Method Utilized by a German Officer In China.

Thirty dollars was stolen at the Officers' club in Tientsin, China, and the members of the club resolved, if possible, to catch the thief.

A German captain volunteered to manage the affair, and the first thing he did was to summon all the native servants of the club. He then said to them:

"Some money has been stolen here, and I am looking for the thief. I shall find him in an hour, not before, since I need that much time in order to get instructions from a celebrated magician in Germany."

An hour later all the servants were again summoned, but this time into a dark room, in the middle of which stood the table on which the money stolen had been laid.

"Each of you, now," said the officer, "must go up to that table and press on it first your right and then your left hand, and when that is done you must raise your two hands over your head and step into the next room."

The servants did so, and as the last one stepped into the adjoining room the officer followed him, and after looking for a few moments at the many uplifted hands he pointed to one man and said, "You are the thief." The Chinaman to whom he pointed nearly fell to the ground with fright and admitted his guilt and promised to make restitution.

Very simple was the method adopted by the officer for discovering the culprit. While the native servants supposed that his spirit was in Germany in communion with the celebrated magician he was carefully smearing the surface of the table in the dark room with fat and oil, which he then blackened by means of soot. The innocent servants naturally pressed their hands on the table, according to his instructions, but the culprit, though superstitious, did not do so.

As a result, while the uplifted hands of all the others were coal black, his were of a natural color, and thus his guilt was clearly proved.—Detroit Free Press.

KILLED THE SPIDER.

Deadly Influence of a Small Magnet on the Insect.

An experiment made by a scientist to test the influence which a magnet will have on a spider is of interest. The magnet employed was a small steel one of the U shape, the legs of which were about two and a half inches long by one-half inch wide and one-sixth of an inch thick, the distance between the poles being about one-quarter of an inch.

Having noticed a small spider actively running along his armchair, he brushed it off upon the carpet, where it began to run, but was somewhat impeded by the roughness of the fabric. He now slid the magnet along the carpet, following after the spider, till the ends of the poles were within a quarter of an inch of it. The animal, without being touched, almost instantly stopped, and on withdrawing the magnet the spider continued on his journey.

The experimenter then placed the magnet within half an inch in front of the spider, and, withdrawing it slowly, the latter followed it in every direction which the magnet took, both in straight and circuitous routes.

Gradually, however, the spider became so strongly magnetized as to be immovable for several minutes, the magnetic influence seeming to lose its further power. On withdrawing the magnet altogether the spider began to recover somewhat.

The scientist ultimately placed a tumbler over the spider and the magnet, covering them both completely, and at the expiration of several minutes the spider, after a struggle to escape from the strong influence which the magnet exercised over it, was dead.—Exchange.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

I.—Ants.

HIGHEST of all the groups of the great division of the animal kingdom known as insects is the order hymenoptera, which name means "membrane winged." These insects are characterized by their thin, delicate wings, their strong, supple bodies, their powerful jaws and, commonly, a formidable sting. Most characteristic of all, however, is their very interesting habit of living together in colonies and acting in such a way as to be of service to one another.

The commonest representatives of this remarkable order are those which we call ants, bees and wasps, there being many different kinds of each. We have all become more or less familiar with the bees, and nearly every boy and girl knows that there are three kinds of bees in one hive—namely, the queen, the worker and the drone. This same fact is true of ants and wasps, there being in each case apparently three sexes. But careful investigation and patient watching of the development of the young have shown that the worker, or neuter, is really an undeveloped queen, or female, and that the conditions governing its development depend upon the wishes of the other insects and are regulated by the kind of food given to the insect or larva.

Now, some of my readers may wish to know why ants are put among the so called "membrane winged" insects when apparently they have no wings at all. The answer to this question might be found by tearing open the nest. Should the reader do so he would find that some of the ants have wings. These are the drones or males, and they are somewhat longer than the workers. They are seldom found outside the nest. He would also find an ant much larger than the drones. This is the queen. She has wings at first and flies with them, but soon bites them off and settles down in the nest.

There are several species of ants common to this country. There is the tiny red ant, not more than a tenth of an inch long, which we so often find in the sugar box. There is a larger, very common reddish brown ant, which digs its nest in our lawns, in the road or even between the cracks in the pavement or cement walk. This ant is about a quarter of an inch long, and we often find it running up and down the bark of our trees and digging its nest at their roots. Then there is a great black ant, nearly an inch long, small numbers of which are sometimes seen in the grass about the foundations of our houses or running in and out of rotten logs in the woods.

One of the most interesting and remarkable features in the life of the ants is the building, or, rather, the digging, of the nest. Men never displayed more skill in digging mines than these little creatures do in constructing their complex works underground. Each one of the colony of hundreds seems to know just what he is expected to do and just where he belongs. There are no bosses nor foremen to quarrel with, no differences in wages, no strikes nor labor unions. Each does his part and minds his own business. What a lesson to man!

The nests vary in structure according to the surroundings and according to the species. The common reddish brown ants already mentioned begin operations generally on a small open patch of ground, surrounded by grass. Seizing in their strong jaws the bits of earth, which to them must be like large stones, they carry them off at one side to a distance of two or three inches. They know better than to put them down immediately around the pit they are digging, where they would be in the way. The removal of these bits of earth soon makes a tiny well or shaft an inch or two in depth for their subterranean works, and the earth removed forms a circular barrier or wall around it. With scores of ants at work the digging of this shaft is a matter of only a few minutes.

At the bottom of the shaft is the main apartment, or "living room," of the nest. It is a spacious hall, irregular in shape, but approaches a circle in outline, and its low ceiling is supported by pillars of earth left for the purpose, just as coal miners leave pillars of coal to support the great layers of slate and shale above them. From this main hall long, narrow tunnels are dug in all directions and to a considerable distance.

In the main hall are congregated all the ants that are not out upon some errand, such as collecting food. The eggs, larvæ (or grubs), and pupæ (cocoons), are piled in a heap at one side of this living room and are carefully tended by the ants. The larvæ are fed, and all are moved about from place to place to secure constancy in temperature and moisture. Sir John Lubbock has observed that ants that are crippled or sick are always tenderly cared for by their more fortunate companions, who even carry them out of the nest on pleasant days for an airing in the warm sun, just as we take our invalids out in their wheeled chairs.

The reason why ants select a grassy spot for their nests is now evident. Were the soil not held together by the fibrous roots of the grass, the roof of the tiny nest might fall in, especially if some great animal clumsily stepped on it, and bury alive its scores of helpless inmates.

Ants often dig nests under stones or boards in order to secure a solid roof, not dreaming that some cruel person may pick up their shelter and leave their little treasures exposed to the mercy of the weather. If in any way we disturb their nest, the ants will immediately begin carrying their eggs, larvæ and pupæ off into long passages where they cannot readily be found.

The author once observed a very remarkable arrangement which a colony of ants had contrived for protecting the opening into their nest without shutting out the light. The nest had evidently been made in the ordinary way, having a low mound of earth, like the crater of a tiny volcano, with the entrance to the nest in the center. Then a curious thing had been done. They had found the transparent wing of some large insect, dragged it to the nest and laid it directly over the entrance, piling dirt and small sticks in its edges to prevent it from blowing away, and had then dug a tunnel out on one side as a new entrance. This kept out the wind and dust, but lighted up the passage into the main room—a veritable skylight!

The food of ants varies with the species, but they will generally eat anything digestible. They often devour large insects or even small dead mammals or birds and are very fond of tender grubs and caterpillars. Many of them live on fruit, and many flowers are visited by ants for the nectar which they contain. Some ants come into our houses and feed upon the sweets in our pantries, as we know to our sorrow. Ants frequently carry food into their homes for future use, as will readily be seen if we sprinkle sugar or crumbs on the ground about the nest and then watch the ants.

It is ofttimes asked, What becomes of the ants during the winter, and how long do they live? In some species of insects nearly all the individuals die during the first cold weather, only a few hardy ones, with the eggs, remaining in sheltered places during the winter. With the ants the drones probably die, they being few in number and their time of usefulness being short. The queen and the workers usually survive, crawling off into some well protected refuge, as the interior of a rotten stump, where they hibernate—that is, remain in a sort of sleep or stupor brought on by the cold—during the winter. The first really warm weather of spring wakes them up, and they soon establish an active nest, where the eggs are hatched.

A most remarkable feature in the life of some ants is in their habit of keeping slaves and "live stock." They do not go and get the slave ants and retain them as captives. If they did, there would be perpetual fighting between captor and captive. They have a much more sensible method. They go and drive another colony away from their nest and take the larvæ, or grubs, bring them back to their own nest and feed them there until they hatch into full grown ants. Then they make slaves of them, requiring them to do all the work for the colony and depending upon them entirely for food. The poor slaves, born in a condition of servitude, probably never know the difference. Perhaps some time a great ant more powerful than his fellows will issue an emancipation proclamation, and war between colonies will ensue as a result of it! Some ants also feed and rear the aphis, a plant louse, for the sake of feeding upon a sweetish, sticky juice called "honey dew" secured from its body. This insect is often called the "ant cow."

Strangest of all is the habit of the agricultural ant of the south, which actually cultivates a kind of grass upon which it feeds. The cultivation consists of keeping the ground clear of all other plants.

PROGRESSIVE NEW ZEALAND

[Special Correspondence.]

Christchurch, New Zealand, Sept. 19.—Once more the government of this most interesting and most progressive of British colonies is demonstrating the fact that it is peculiarly devoted to the interests of the masses, but this time the object is to assist strangers and tourists in the country rather than the New Zealanders themselves.

Under the tutelage of T. E. Donne, secretary of the department of commerce and industries, the government is actively employed in the establishment of a complete tourist agency department, with offices throughout the country. Here travelers can make themselves at home, can write letters, cable to the outside world, receive their mail, leave packages and even be provided with developing rooms for changing and working on photographic plates, a boon that will be greatly appreciated in these days by camera laden tourists.

Of course it is certain that this scheme of the government will indirectly redound to the benefit of the people of the country, for New Zealand will be made more attractive to the tourists, who will make longer visits than under the ordinary conditions of travel and will therefore leave more money in the country. The result will also be that more people will be attracted to the colony than in the past, and the probability is that a number of them will remain here, thus adding to the wealth and population. The feeling is that too little is known in the outer world of the wonders of the country, and this plan is undertaken in the hope that it will attract "all the world and his wife" to visit New Zealand and see for themselves the progress that the colony is making.

It is not generally known that New Zealand has many regulations in its governmental affairs that place it many years ahead of other nations, and all these regulations have the sole object of benefiting the people, not the few. Taxes can be paid in any post-office, and life insurance and accident insurance premiums are payable at the same place. By act of parliament the postmaster or postmistress can marry couples. Postal savings banks are also a popular and important feature of the system. It is said that today there are no less than 212,346 separate depositors in these postal banks out of a population of 883,000 people, with a total of $32,000,000 on deposit. These deposits all receive interest at the rate of 3 per cent.

Government ownership of railways, telephones and telegraphs is an established fact in New Zealand. The government has also instituted, owns and operates life and accident insurance companies and labor bureaus. Here strikes are unknown, labor grievances all being passed on by an arbitration court composed of the judges of the supreme court, one representative of the manufacturers and one representative of the organized labor interests. The leading features of the arbitration law of New Zealand are well worth noting as showing what can be accomplished by simple legal procedure.

The law applies only to industries in which there are trades unions. It does not prevent private conciliation or arbitration. Conciliation is exhausted by the state before it resorts to arbitration. If conciliation is unsuccessful, the disputants must arbitrate. Disobedience of the decision may be punished or not, at the discretion of the court.

The compulsion of the law is threefold—compulsory publicity, compulsory reference to a disinterested arbiter, provided the disputants will not arbitrate voluntarily, and compulsory obedience to the decision. It does not forbid nor prevent disputes, but makes the antagonists fight their battles in court according to a legal code instead of the ordinary "rules of war." There is no "making men work by law" and no "fixing wages by law." The law says only that if they work it must be without strikes or lockouts and that if they cannot agree as to wages the decision must be left to an impartial tribunal.

Another matter of great economic interest is the question of ownership of land. The New Zealand government has no love for large land holders and is doing all it can to have the country divided up into small farms. They especially dislike absentee landlords, and if the owner of property lives outside of the country he has to pay 20 per cent more taxes than resident owners. Large land holders are deemed a social pest, and everything is done to force them to sell out and leave the country. On the other hand, small farmers come in for tender cultivation, and every means is employed to make their life worth living.

The farmer need only bring his poultry to the government depots, and there it will be plucked, dressed, frozen and shipped to England by the federal authorities, who act as agents for the small farmer and sell his produce at a commission of 4 cents per pound. The government lends the small farmer money and helps him to get along when troubles arise. The man whose income is less than $1,500 escapes scot free, paying no taxes. The farmer whose farm is worth only $2,500 is also exempt from taxation. The man who takes a poor piece of property and improves it pays taxes only on what it was worth when he bought it. The rich man, on the other hand, has to pay taxes on his land, on his income on everything.

The public holdings in New Zealand are very large, and the government disposes of them to settlers on very easy terms and in varying methods. There is one way by which the government employs those who are out of work—to clear the lands of timber and rock and sow them in grass. Then they are divided into small farms and are allotted to settlers at a perpetual rental large enough to cover the cost of clearing and at the same time give a fair interest on the value of the land. The size of such holdings is about 100 acres each.

Another interesting feature of the conduct of affairs in New Zealand is that there are no poorhouses, the aged being pensioned by the government after their sixty-fifth year. The law applies to old women as well as to old men. If a man's income at the age of sixty-five is not more than $170 a year, he is given an annual present of $90, and if the income of his wife added to his does not exceed $340 the couple receive $180 yearly. If the man's income is a little more than $170, he is given enough to make it total $300. The law has been in effect since 1898 and requires to support it a tax of more than a dollar a year for every inhabitant of New Zealand.

The colonization of the islands of New Zealand dates from the end of the year 1842, and in spite of the fact that the government possessed no territory in the country on which they might settle few communities can point to a record of such substantial progress. This is the more remarkable owing to the fact that the country has been devastated by two native wars, each of which retarded settlement for years, besides loading the young community with a war debt heavy indeed in proportion to its population.

Since the war of 1863 was finally put an end to in 1868, there has been no trouble of an organized character with the Maoris, who may now be regarded in the light of peaceable and often valuable citizens, with full representation in the colonial representative house of parliament and with several of their principal chiefs sitting in the council or senate of the colony.

The European population of New Zealand numbers fully 750,000, while, according to the last census, there were nearly 45,000 natives, inclusive of nearly 3,000 half castes. The results have so far been, on the whole, remarkably successful, and New Zealand may be looked upon as one of the most progressive of countries and of all the Australasian colonies that in which the wealth is most equally divided among all classes.

The Home of England's Wealth.

The Bank of England generally contains sufficient gold in sixteen pound bars to make 20,000,000 sovereigns. The bank, which stands in three parishes, covers three acres of ground, and, as the current price of land in the vicinity works out at £1,000,000 an acre, it is easy to form an idea of the money value of England's wealth. The ratable value is about £1,000 a week. The bank employs about 1,000 people, pays a quarter of a million a year in wages and £35,000 a year in pensions. There are £25,000,000 worth of notes in circulation which have been handed over the bank's counter.—London Globe.

A MILLION INVOLVED IN PROPERTY CHANGES MADE AT SEBRING

Property of Sebring Pottery Company and Land Company Distributed Among the Stockholders.

If well authenticated rumors be correct, Sebring is about to undergo a revolution of gigantic proportions. The fact that the members who compose the Sebring Pottery company and the Sebring Land company have held daily sessions for several days and have adjusted matters, dissolved and reconstructed, until the identity of these two companies is lost, lends color to the rumors afloat. The fact that they are corroborated by members of these former prosperous companies warrants making the statement that they are true.

According to the terms of the reported agreement the Sebring Pottery company, which embraced the management of the four potteries of Sebring, and the stave mill, will become practically extinct and for the future the Oliver China company will be owned and controlled by George E. Sebring and Fred Sebring. The Sebring pottery will be owned by F. A. Sebring Will Sebring and C. J. Albright, the former owning the controlling interest. The French China company becomes the property of E. H. Sebring and O. H. Sebring, with the former the principal owner. The new China works are the property of F. A. Sebring and the stave mill reverts to O. H. Sebring. This disposes of the potteries and stave mill as the properties of the Sebring Pottery company and they become divided property, separate and distinct in their nature.

The Sebring Land company will cease to be the owner of any property and practically pass out of existence. The land and lots owned by the company have been distributed to the members of the firm composing the company pro rata in accordance with the amount of stock they held in the company. The price of lots which has heretofore been $500 as the minimum price may be reduced by any individual to $250 if he desires, but cannot by the terms of the compact be sold for less.

These changes will work a complete revolution in Sebring in every way. Previous to consummating this deal, however, the sum of $30,000 was deposited in the bank of Sebring by the old company to be used to induce manufacturers to locate in Sebring. In the early spring it is a part of the plan for O. H. Sebring and his son Bert to erect another pottery in size and capacity the same as those heretofore built.

Several of the Sebring brothers, now that they are free to act individually will begin the construction of more houses, and one of these asked the local contractors to submit plans and bids for four new houses to be built at once. Another one is having plans drawn for a large brick block upon Fifteenth street, and a scene of unusual activity prevails at this time The amount involved in these transactions will approximate $1,000,000 in value.

ASKED TO VOTE

LOCALS TO DECIDE AS TO DUFFY'S CANDIDACY.

Each Union to Decide Whether He Shall Run on One or Two Tickets.

Salem, Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Officials of the several unions in this city are in receipt of a circular from the Duffy Labor campaign committee, of which E. J. Creedon, of Massillon, is chairman and F. R. Johnson, of Alliance, secretary. This letter requests that all unions in the Eighteenth district take a vote upon the question of whether Mr. Duffy shall accept the Democratic nomination or whether it is their wish that he remain upon the Labor ticket alone.

The Salem locals will take no action. The head of the campaign committee requests that all unions act upon the matter at once in order that a summing up may take place not later than Monday.

TALK ON FRATERNALISM

By Lecturer Evans a Feature of An Enjoyable P. H. C. Entertainment.

J. M. Evans, supreme lecturer of the Protected Home circle, of Sharon, Pa., gave an interesting lecture at the Opera houselast evening to a large audience. His subject was "Fraternalism," and he handled it in such a manner that those who heard him were most favorably impressed with his talk. A quartet composed of Mr. and Firth and A. W. Scott, with piano accompaniment by Miss Emma Firth sang two delightful selections. LeRoy Orr recited two pieces in a very pleasing manner which were much applauded. Miss Elizabeth Hamil rendered several selections on the piano which were well received.

J. R. Carrothers, deputy organizer of the Maccabees from Steubenville gave a very instructive short talk on fraternity work prior to the address of Mr. Evans.

PICKED UP DAZED

Dr. Bumpus Knocked Down By a Rapidly Moving Grocery Wagon.

Dr. J. F. Bumpus, of Sixth street, was knocked down by a horse attached to the American grocery wagon at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The doctor was crossing Fifth street and states he was positive he had plenty of time to pass over before the wagon could reach him. He says the speed of the horse was not slackened, and that the driver could not have failed to see that he was passing.

The horse struck Dr. Bumpus at a point between the elbow and shoulder and he was hurled with great violence to the paved street. The force of the blow was so great that he was knocked away from the wagon and this caused him to escape being run over. He struck the pavement in such a manner that he rolled almost to the curb, and was picked up by passers-by in a dazed condition.

The driver continued on his way, not even looking back to see what had occured. Dr. Bumpus was badly bruised, and it will be some time before he has entirely recovered.

East Liverpool is noted for its careless drivers, and this is not the first occurrence of the same kind that has been recorded.

COUNTER CLAIM ENTERED

School Board Involved in Litigation Over Heating Company's Work.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—The Peak-Williamson Heating & Ventilating company brought suit in the court of Justice E. L. Lyon, of East Palestine against the board of education of school district No. 8, of Unity township for $113.70 claimed as due for a furnace and plumbing at the school building. The board claimed work was not properly done and entered a counter suit for $195.15 damages. Judgment for $88.30 was given for the company and the board appealed the case to common pleas court.

Surprised the Pastor.

The members and friends of the A. M. E. church surprised the pastor, Rev. J. H. Mason, and wife last evening with a very large donation. About 9 o'clock a large company gathered in front of the parsonage door on Lisbon street singing "There's a Stranger at the Door." Then a cart backed up and unloaded its burden of the necessaries of life. The pastor and wife were agreeably surprised, but a short speech of thankfulness was expressed and the visitors left.

Appointed Administrator.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special.)—J. W. Holloway, of Fairfield township, has been appointed administrator of the estate of Joseph R. Entriken, late of Columbiana. Bond, $2,500.

SPENT THE NIGHT UPON THE ROAD

Attorney Gaston and Florist Brooks Had Eventful Trip From Lisbon.

THEIR HORSE RAN AWAY

And They Were Upset Upon Rocks And Stumps—Mayor Davidson And His Brother Found Them Later And Rendered Assistance.

Attorney W. K. Gaston and John Brooks, florist, had a narrow escape from death last night while en route to this city from the Lisbon fair. They left the county seat about 9 o'clock in a single buggy to which was attached a young horse of a nervous temperament. The roadway was very dark and the gentlemen found it impossible to direc the animal's course.

Near Cannon's Mill the horse became frightened at the rustling of leaves caused by a wandering cow, made a quick jump to one side of the road and started madly toward the city For a short distance the frightened animal kept the road, but shying again it fell hard against a big tree breaking the shafts and throwing the occupants forward into a pile of stones and stumps.

The horse became entangled and was unable to move. Messrs. Gaston and Brooks got out with a few bruises Mayor Davidson and his brother Edward were returning from the fair at about 1 o'clock and discovered Gaston and Brooks in their undesirable plight. The two unfortunates were compelled to walk two miles to a blacksmith shop, where they got a new pair of shafts and repaired other breakage. It was daylight before the men arrived home.

NEW TRUST COMPANY

Organized at Lisbon, of Which Hon. R. W. Tayler Is President.

Columbus, Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Congressman R. W. Tayler is the president of the Columbia company, a trust concern, organized under the laws of Delaware, which was admitted to Ohio yesterday. It is capitalized at $25,000 in shares of $10 each. Lisbon is headquarters in Ohio.

One hundred shares have been subscribed. Mr. Tayler holds 32 shares, George B. Harvey 33 shares, N. B. Billingsley, 32 shares and James W. Clark 3 shares. The stockholders are residents of Lisbon. Harvey is treasurer. The company's property at Lisbon is valued at $1,000.

DEATH CLAIM SETTLED

Administrator of Man Killed at Wellsville Shops Receives $270.00.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special.)—William R. Wilson, as administrator of Martin Wilson, late of Wellsville, has secured $270 from the relief department of the Pennsylvania company as a settlement of the death claim of deceased heirs. Wilson was killed in the Wellsville shops June 2.

PLEDGES OF MONEY MADE

In Most Encouraging Fashion—As a Result of Being Shut Out of Neville Institute, the Church Will Soon Have Its Own Home.

The Free Methodists will commence at once the erection of a chapel in Oakland. This was the announcement made by Rev. J. H. Howard today. This is the outcome of the meetings that have been held in the Klondike section for the past few weeks and of the church people being shut out of the Neville institute school building. A site has been secured, and quite a large amount of money has been pledged for building.

A meeting was held in the Klondike last evening by this little band of church workers, who wear no jewelry or other ornaments on the person, a vote of thanks was tendered the trustees of Neville institute, and its principal, S. L. Fisher. When seen today Rev. Mr. Howard said:

"I regard the trustees and teacher of the institute as gentlemen and we appreciate their kindness in allowing us the use of the school building. I also regret that Mr. Fisher was caused so much extra labor in being compelled to clean the school room, and if I had been aware that the conditions existed as he spoke of, other arrangements could have been made.

"I did not know the room was in the condition he said it was, as I never visited the building until late in the evening. There was then a large congregation present. No doubt it was fully as bad as he described. I think according to the law regarding reciprocity, that I should have been consulted, and could have arranged matters satisfactorily to suit the wishes of the gentleman. But I was not. The doors wer locked against us, and we knew nothing of the matter until we went to the building to hold our meeting. This is all I have to say on this matter, as I consider the incident closed."

As to the building of a chapel in the Klondike section, offers of several sites have been made, and the officials have about concluded to accept a site in Oakland, donated by the Oakland Land company. Other offers for the building sites have been received from D. William Calhoun and Alex. Chafin, and several others, whose names the officials of the church do not care to make known. The sum of $400 in cash is already pledged. The officials will without question take the lot offered in Oakland. A chapel to cost not less than $1,500 will be built, and it is expected it will be completed before the first of the year. Besides the offer of a free site from Alex. Chafin, he will also donate $100 to the church if his offer is accepted. Mr Chafin is of the opinion that one of the needs of Chafinville is a church and he will do all he can to have one built in his addition.

THE WINNING HORSES

Great Interest Manifested in the Races at Lisbon Yesterday.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—The races were well attended yesterday afternoon, and though the purses were small, the interest was great. Three East Liverpool horses were in the speed ring. Dr. McFarland's mare got second money in the 2:30 trot and Frank Dickey's fleet footed nag took third in the same race. Mayor Davidson's Connie Mack, which was entered in the 2:40 pace, could not be controlled, and was unable even to get a place.

Dr. S., owned by G. P. Smith, of East Liverpool, took second money in the trot. Some person said that Mr. Smith's horse was going under an assumed name, that he was really the fast horse, "Major McKinley," owned by George Brunt, of East Liverpool. There was a cry of fraud which the judges took very seriously and came almost to the conclusion of ruling Dr S. off the track.

VOLKSFEST A SUCCESS

The German Residents of the City Enjoyed Themelves at Columbian Park.

The German residents of East Liverpool held a most enjoyable and successful volksfest at Columbian park yesterday afternoon.

The grounds were opened at 2 p. m. and in a short time the park was filled with families who had come out to enjoy themselves. The volksfest is a picnic held according to German customs, and it is a well known fact that when a body of Germans gather pleasure, pure and simple, is the rule and it is carried out.

The day was devoted to singing, music and small games in which the younger members took part. Refreshments were served and those present began leaving for their homes about 10:30 o'clock.

TEAMSTERS' UNION

Arrangements in Progress for the Organization of an A. F. of L. Local.

District Organizer Charles Kontnier, of the American Federation of Labor, has completed arrangements for the organization of a union of the teamsters in this city. The organizer has 23 names on the charter list, and a meeting has been called for tomorrow evening at the Smith Fowler hall, when a temporary organization will be formed.

FLED FROM HIS HOME

Knox Township Man Who Hid in the Bushes Adjudged a Lunatic.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—John Fuhrer, of Knox township has been adjudged insane by the probate court. He was afraid of everyone, thinking they would kill him. He got up at night, ran from the house and hid from his friends for days in blackberry thickets, thinking they were enemies. His face is badly lacerated.

Driller To Run For It.

A well brought in yesterday by J. J. Crawford on the R. A. Warren farm, in the Knoxville field, is of the nature of a wildcat. When the bit touched the sand gas ignited, burning derrick and engine house, and John Wasson, a driller, had a thrilling escape for his life. It cannot yet be told what the well will make, but it shows oil. It is owned by Pittsburg parties.

The Minerva Fair.

The annual exhibition of the Minerva Fair association will be held at Minerva, October 1 and 2. This fair always draws well from Columbiana and neighboring counties. This year a special effort has been put forth to have better exhibits then ever, and the racing will be a most attractive feature.

Kept Marriage a Secret

Friends in this city learned today of the marriage one month ago of Fred M. Busey, of East Liverpool, and Miss Lois Eldeier, of Wellsville. The couple paid a visit to Hanoverton several weeks ago, and were quietly married there. The young couple will reside in East Liverpool.

Licensed to Marry.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—Howard Lowrey, of Pittsburg and Anna B. Clark, of Wellsville, have been licensed to wed.

Frank Stutler, of Hanoverton, and Ada Clair, of New Kensington, secured a license and were married by Rev. J. P. Anderson here yesterday.

Arranging for Encampment—At the meeting of General Lyon post, G. A. R., to be held tonight, final arrangements will be made for the trip to the national encampment at Washington early next month. Post Commander Daniel McLane states a time will be selected for the start to be made and other details attended to. In addition to the regular routine business two candidates will be mustered in. A full attendance is desired.

UP THE HEIGHTS AT EARLY DATE

Cars May Be Running on New Branch by the First of the Year.

WORK STARTS ON MONDAY

And It Will Be Pushed With All the Speed That Is Possible.

THE CONTRACTOR IS READY

It is now almost certain that the Pleasant Heights extension of the East Liverpool street railway will be completed by the first of the year, and that the hopes of the residents of that suburb, after three years of patient waiting, will at last be realized.

Manager L. W. Healy, of the East Liverpool company, had informed members of council and others that the work of constructing the branch would be commenced on September 15, and when no signs of a start were noted on that date, it was thought the plan had been given up. Contractor McFadden, of Pittsburg, was said to have been given the contract several weeks ago, and it is presumed he was responsible for the delay. Mr. Healy was seen yesterday and to a reporter stid:

"Contractor McFadden will begin the construction of the Pleasant Heights road next Monday morning. The road will be pushed with all possible dispatch, and will be finished within a few weeks. If there is any delay it will be the fault of the weather."

There is good reason for the belief tnat the company will finish the task without delay, as it is depending upon the $5,000 guarantee by interested parties to pay for the work.

Of the $5,000 guaranteed by seven or eight individual landholders, $3,750 has been subscribed. Those interested are now calling upon parties in the locality benefited who have not yet contributed to the fund. No trouble is anticipated in raising the remaining $1,250, as there are a large number of property owners in the vicinity of Pleasant Heights who have not yet been assessed, and who will derive much substantial benefit from the construction of the railroad..

REPORTED DYING

Negro Assaulted at New Cumberland Ball Game in a Precarious Condition.

Suffering with concussion of the brain, William Burrell, colored, lies at his home in Toronto with small chance of recovery. His condition is due to a cowardly assault made by Shorty Thompson, a noted character of Black Horse, W. Va., in a melee following a ball game at New Cumberand last Tuesday afternoon, when his skull was broken. The men was also kicked until black and blue.

Sheriff Allison arrested Thompson yesterday and placed him in the county jail. It is very likely that he will have to answer to a charge of murder.

RHEUMATISM IN THE LEG

The Reason Given By Gustavus Craft for Cutting Up at His Home.

Gustavus Craft, the man arrested in the East End Wednesday evening charged with drunkenness and making life at his home very uncomfortable for his spouse, was arraigned before the mayor this morning. He pleaded guilty to being drunk, but said that but for rheumatism in his leg he would never have disturbed his wife. The mayor fined him $5.60.

William Petticord got a similar dose for being found drunk and asleep in the McNicol pottery last night by Officer Woods.

Married at Lisbon.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special.)—Emerson Ewing, an employe at Arter's pad factory, and Miss Emma Hill were married last evening by Rev. J. P. Anderson at the Presbyterian parsonage.

Salem Aeronaut Fined.

Lisbon, September 19.—(Special)—Frank Johnson, an aeronaut of Salem, was fined $20 and costs by Judge Boone for wife beating. He stands committed to the workhouse until his fine and costs are paid.

$100,000 IS AT STAKE IN A WILL CONTEST

Salem, Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Attorney L. P. Metzger has filed a lawsuit in court in which local parties are interested, and in which there is a $100,000 estate at stake.

The plaintiffs in the case are Mrs. Anna Lowry and Clara Wernet vs. Joseph Wernet, Francis Wernet, Mary Hogan, Letitia Sheraw, Jennie Little and Joseph, William A. and Charles Wernet, as executors of the estate of the late William Wernet, of Hanover township.

The plaintiffs will attempt to break the will and have secured most competent lawyers to handle the case. They claim that William Wernet at the time of his sickness and death was at times out of his mind and by undue influence was forced by the defendants to write another will than that, in which he a week before he died, bequeathed part of his property to the plaintiffs.

They further claim that the will was probated on the 13th of March, 1901, was not the will which he had prepared while in a proper state of mind, but rather the one which he was persuaded to sign through undue influence and by fraudulent representations.

Most of the defendants in the case reside in Hanover township. Wernet was one of the wealthiest men in that township.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

SPEAKING OF SHORTAGE.

A statement was made by a prominent kilnman employed in one of the hill potteries today that was most surprising. He said, according to statistics secured from most all the potteries in the city, that there is at present a shortage of from 60 to 75 kilnmen in this city. But what is to be expected when a manufacturer from one of the out-of-town potteries comes to this city and in a few hours secures four kilnmen and takes them away with him? There is no way to stop a manufacturer from another town coming here to secure workmen, as they are not under contract, and the country is a free one. What is to be done? ask the operatives of this city, who have the interests of the city at heart. What is to be done inquires the manufacturer? This is the main question of the hour. It has been the policy of this paper to do as much as possible to impress upon those who desire to roam from one shop to another, that they had best remain in this city, where work is plentiful, and lasting employment is a certainty. In more than one instance this advice has been heeded, but still there is a certain element who will persist in leaving a steady position just so long as they can secure another, no matter whether it is just as good or not, in an outside town. The problem, a shortage of sixty kilnmen alone, is a perplexing one. It is one that the manufacturers will have to wrestle with, and it is one that will soon require the attention of the Brotherhood officials. Especially will the attention of Kilnmen's local No. 9 be called to this condition, for it is a matter that in a measure can be remedied by that local, by advancing some of the pottery apprentices to journeymen, and this will leave room for new apprentices to be put on. In this manner some assistance will be rendered, and the depleted ranks will be somewhat increased. Not only was a representative of the Barberton pottery here yesterday after kilnmen, but a representative of the Thomas China plant at Lisbon. One or two men would have been sufficient in this latter case, and last evening it was stated that the gentleman was successful in his attempt to secure the desired help. This is only another instance where the out-of-town manufacturers try to drain the potteries of this city of their help.

It might be well to ask, does it pay the out-of-town manufacturer to do this sort of thing? While it is admitted that the help is secured nine times out of ten, losses may occur in other ways. The next thing one will hear of is the out-of-town manufacturer coming to this town and offering bonuses to local workmen to leave and take positions in other towns. It is done in other trades, and why not in the pottery trade? There may be a way out of this muddle, and that is for the local manufacturers to send their representatives to Trenton and secure help from there. If the prosperous conditions of the west were only made known in the east the chances are that many eastern pottery workmen would come to this city and obtain employment. There is quite a demand for English pottery workmen in the west, and just as soon as the conditions are made known in Great Britain, many will come to this country, in fact, as many as can secure the required fare. It will not be long until this will be done, it is said.

OVER AT SEBRING.

Henry Smith, of East Palestine, has taken a position on the glost bench at the French China.

George Turner and Samuel Bickford, well known kilnmen, left Monday morning for Canonsburg where they have secured positions. Turner has taken a position at setting out.

Joseph Hott, who went to Sebring from Trenton about three months ago to take a position as kilnman at the Sebring pottery, has returned to Trenton.

William DeBee, of East Palestine, is a new kilnman in the biscuit crew of William Mills at the Sebring pottery.

George Russ, of East Palestine, has commenced work as a kilnman at the French China glost end.

Tim Wherline, who went to Sebring from Wheeling several months ago to secure employment, left rather suddenly a few days ago, and his whereabouts are at present unknown. No cause for his sudden departure is assigned.

Work upon the construction of the pottery is progressing rather slowly, and the first kiln has just been topped out. The second kiln is almost to the shoulder.

Thomas McGinnis, a well known operative, left Sebring a few days ago for East Palestine to seek employment.

William Tritt, for many years affiliated with the Sebring Bros., spent a few days in Sebring this week, making arrangements to remove his family to Crooksville, where he has taken the management of the new Crooksville pottery, now in course of construction.

Five kilnmen, who at one time or another have been employed in this city, have left here for Barberton. Four left yesterday afternoon, and one went to Barberton from New Castle, from the Shenango pottery. Wednesday evening Ambrose Cartwright, formerly of this city, but now vice-president of the Barberton Pottery company, arrived here. He returned home yesterday afternoon. To a representative of this paper Mr. Cartwright said he came here for the purpose of securing five kilnmen, and in this work he was entirely successful. These kilnmen have been promised steady employment. This fact is to be regretted. While Barberton is in need of kilnmen, men are in no greater demand there than in this city. Two of those who went with Mr. Cartwright were Jack Cannon and his brother. Jack was recently employed at Canonsburg.

POTTERY CONTRACTS.

The Bell Pottery company, of Columbus, has closed contracts with the Rarig Engineering company for the structural steel roofs of the kiln sheds. The excavations are well toward completion and the materials used in the construction are arriving at the rate of 15 carloads a day. Already there are 100 carloads on the ground. The survey for Bellwood is about completed. E. F. Bell, president of the company, and John S. Milligan of the board of directors, have decided that, as soon as the buildings of the plant are well under way, to begin the erection of the houses for the workmen. The United States government decided at one time that the site where the plant is being erected is the best place in the country for an armor plate plant, owing to its railroad facilities. Five trunk lines are on the ground and two more are accessible.

THAT BARBERTON ADDITION.

Ambrose Cartwright, vice-president of the Barberton Pottery company, who returned to his home yesterday afternoon, said just before leaving the city that his company would not build a large plant at present for the purpose of manufacturing art ware, but would merely build two kilns this fall.

Others that would be needed would not be built until next spring. Another building will also be erected, an annex to the present plant, measuring 50x80 feet. This additional room, it is thought, will be sufficient to supply the requirements of the company the balance of this year, but that in the spring several other additional kilns and buildings will be erected. Business with this concern at present is said to be quite prosperous.

A PRINTING MACHINE.

A printing machine, the only one of its kind in this city, has been installed in the decorating department of the Brunt pottery in the past few days. It is an English patent, of which over 300 are said to have been in use in the potteries of the old world. The machine was placed in operation yesterday for the first time, and it is said that it has the capacity of keeping five crews at steady work. Some who have seen this machine in operation say that it will be able to keep more than five printers' crews busy. The machine is a simple one, and is easily operated. Most of the decorations made in this manner are used on scheme goods.

NO MEETING ARRANGED.

No arrangements have been made for the holding of the joint meeting of the committees representing the Brotherhood and the manufacturers to talk over the dispute about placing flat ware in the first ring of the biscuit kilns. A prominent member of this committee on the Brotherhood side stated last evening that up to date he had not heard of any meeting being called, and had no idea when a joint session would be held. Meantime, the biscuit kilnmen are wondering when the matter will be finally adjusted.

OVER FROM LISBON.

Kilnshed Foreman James Challis, formerly a member of the local council, and who for sometime was employed as a kilnman at the D. E. McNicol pottery, in this city, was here yesterday in search of kilnmen for the Thomas plant, at Lisbon. He was accompanied by J. N. Reed, another kilnman at the Thomas plant. Mr. Reed has been in Lisbon for several months. The Thomas plant was stopped during the fair this week, but resumed operations this morning as usual.

STRIKE AT SHENANGO.

Information was received in this city yesterday afternoon of a strike of the glost kilnmen at the Shenango pottery at New Castle. The cause is said to be that the firm imported a bench boss from an eastern town who was not a member of the Brotherhood of Operative potters, and the men refused to work with him. Many of the kilnmen at that shop are from this city, and now that a strike is on, some of them may return.

EXPECTED HOME TODAY.

Thomas Robinson, manager of the East Liverpool pottery, who has been spending a short vacation in the west, is expected home this evening, although he may not arrive until tomorrow. During his trip he spent several days at Milwaukee visiting former friends.

A NEW OFFICE MAN.

William Grey, who has been employed as agent of the Adams Express company in this city for many months, and who recently resigned that position, will enter the employ of the Sevres Pottery company very soon. He will take a position as bookkeeper.

MOVED HIS RESIDENCE.

John Sant, the well known clay salesman, who has been residing at Georgetown during the summer with his family, has returned to this city. Mr. Sant states he spent a delightful summer in the small Pennsylvania town.

BACK HOME AGAIN.

George Smith, salesman for the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company who has been in the west for several weeks, has returned home after a very successful trip. Mr. Smith is now looking after the erection of his new residence on Ohio avenue, East End.

MRS. SMITH IMPROVING.

Mrs. George Smith, wife of George Smith, secretary of Kilnmen's local No. 9, who has been very ill at her home on Florence street for many weeks, is recovering rapidly, and her friends are of the opinion that she will be able to be out soon.

BACK TO WORK AGAIN.

William Cuthbert, bench boss on the glost at the Brunt plant, who accidently stepped into a well hole in a kiln a few days ago, severly spraining his foot, has recovered from his injury, and is now able to be at his work.

LAWRENCE IS BACK.

Frederick Lawrence, one of the officials of the East Liverpool Potteries company, who has been spending his two weeks' vacation in the east, has returned to the city.

A Worthy Institution.

The Ohio Valley Business College of our own city, is being appreciated by the people of this vicinity as is evidenced by the largely increased attendance and the recognition given it by the business men of this city and elsewhere who are daily applying to the school for office help. This school has grown on merit alone. It has recently opened a new term with more than eight times the enrollment of only three years ago. Its graduates are being sought after eagerly and it cannot supply the demand. The training given is so arranged that students may enter at any time.

SUCCESSFUL SERVICE

Preparatory to Communion Held at the Second U. P. Church Last Night.

A very successful service was that which was held last evening at the Second U. P. church, preparatory to the regular quarterly communion service which will be held Sunday morning. The service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. D. W. McQuiston, but the sermon was preached by J. A. C. McQuiston. His text was from Hosea 6:3, "And He shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth." The sermon was a most interesting one and was well received.

The services at this church in the future will commence at 7:30 o'clock in stead of 8 o'clock, as has been the custom during the summer. The services will close this evening, although Rev. Mr. McQuiston will remain in the city over Sunday and assist at the communion service Sunday morning.

NON-SUPPORT CASE

Suit Brought at Smith's Ferry by Former East End Woman.

Information was received in the East End this morning that in a case for non-support which was tried before Justice of the Peace John Chapman at Smith's Ferry yesterday afternoon, Howard Trimble, of Georgetown, was bound over to court in the sum of $1,000 on a charge preferred by his wife. He furnished bond and was released from custody.

It is alleged that over a year ago Trimble married a young lady named Calhoun, who, at that time resided in the East End, but that he never made his home with her. Mrs. Trimble then moved to Smith's Ferry, where she has resided for about a year and thereby gained a residence in Pennsylvania. A charge of non-support was preferred by the wife.

Twenty-Five Have Joined Church.

The Free Methodists, who have been holding a series of revival meetings at the Nevi..e institute, have transferred their meeting place to the Home Circle hall on First avenue. It is reported this morning that since these meetings commenced about 50 conversions have been reported, and 25 persons have joined the church. How long the meetings will be continued cannot be determined at this time.

Two Cars Damaged.

On the last trip of the freight car of the East Liverpool railway last evening the car crashed into the rear end of passenger car No. 19 at the Pennsylvania switch, and as a result both cars were damaged. The company, while the freight car is being repaired, will operate the old line car instead of the regular freight car.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

R. C. Howard is ill at his home on Mulberry street, suffering with rheumatism.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Erie street M. E. church met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George W. Orcutt, on Boyce street. Many matters pertaining to church work were considered.

An interesting game of foot ball is expected to be played at Columbian park tomorrow afternoon between the Oakland and East End Athletic club teams. The game will be strenuous as there is much rivalry between the opposing teams. A large number of tickets have been sold for the event.

A meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. N. Swan, on St. George street. About 30 persons were present. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. N. M. Crowe. An interesting talk upon Alaska was given by Mrs. F. D. Kitchel.

WORK OF CONFERENCE

Interesting Addresses And Report at Meeting of the Evangelical Association.

Cambridge, Sept. 19.—At the East Ohio conference Rev. Mr. Coleman was elected assistant seceretary and a committee of five was elected on church federation. Rev. Mr. Robins, of the Akron district, reported over 500 conversions in the past year. Rev. Dr. Smith reported over 700 received on probation in the Canton district. A request will be made to the missionary committee for $500 each for work in Youngstown and Cleveland.

The afternoon session was opened by Rev. W. K. Yingling, who delivered a sermon on missionary work. Rev. B. E Edgell talked for the endowment fund of the superannuated ministers, and Dr. Mitchell made the address of the day in an appeal for the superannuates.

We want to remind you that this store is now ready to sell you the finest suit in the city for 25 per cent. less than others.

RICHARDS IS BRAVE.

Young Railroad Operator, at Ford City, Pa., Killed a Burglar.

HAD BATTLE WITH THE THIEF.

Wounded In the Scalp by a Bullet, but Pluckily Shot the Thief Twice—Latter Got Drop, but on the Wrong Man.

Ford City, Pa., Sept. 19.—Carl Richards, night operator on the Allegheny Valley railroad, at this place, shot and killed a man who attempted to rob the station at 5:10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Richards is about 24 years of age and weighs about 120 pounds.

The burglar is said to be Charles Andrews, who was noted as the lone burglar of Kittanning, and who was released from the Western penitentiary about 18 months ago, after serving two years for attempted burglary at Nealton, at the north end of Kittanning.

About 5 o'clock yesterday morning Richards was attending to his duties at the station, while a freign train had just pulled out. The operator sat down to his instrument, and as he did so a harsh voice said, "Throw up your hands!" Richards, thinking some friend was trying to play a joke on him, turned with a laugh, only to be confronted with a revolver in the hands of a masked man.

Hurled Himself on the Robber.

Instead of complying with the robber's demand, Richards, without an instant hesitation, hurled himself at the intruder and planted a blow in his face, staggering him, and at the same instant seized the man's revolver. The men went to the floor in a death grapple. Superior in strength and weight, the burglar forced Richards to his knee, and, twisting the revolver about, shot him in the side of the head, the bullet traversing the skull bone under the scalp. Bleeding from his wounds, the operator, with superhuman strength again wrested the revolver from the would-be murderer and both sprang to their feet, and fired one bullet into the robber's side and another into his head, the latter killing him instantly.

The robber is above the medium height and well built. He weighed about 175 pounds and was very strong.

Other Officers Chosen For Pennsylvania League of Republican Clubs.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 19.—The convention of the State League of Republican Clubs adjourned at noon yesterday, after a busy closing session. A boat ride yesterday afternoon and a ball last evening closed the convention program, many delegates having already left town. The league officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows, all except the vice presidents being re-elected: President, F. W. Fleitz, Scranton; treasurer, J. H. Shaw, Philadelphia; secretary, John Kelly, Philadelphia; vice presidents, John R. Wiggins, John E. Durbin, John McCleary, William McDonald, Philadelphia; Robert H. Lindsay, Dr. A. J. Barchfield, Pittsburg; William I. Swope, Clearfield; James D. Hay, Erie.

The resolutions, in part, reaffirm devotion and allegiance to the principles of Republicanism as enunciated in the last state and national platform, they pledge earnest support to Judge Pennypacker and the other candidates. They indorse the national administration and the president's foreign policy, they deplore the coal strike and hope for its settlement by arbitration or compromise at an early date, and recommend reciprocity for Cuba.

TWELVE PAGES.

The trusts have nothing to fear from the Democracy. Talk does not harm them, though the Democrats act as if they expected to talk them to death. Yet the Democrats are receiving contributions from the trusts, a fact which is very embarrassing to their leaders. The friendship of the trusts for the Democratic party was seen long ago. The sugar trust, it was said, made a heavy contribution to the Cleveland campaign purse in 1888, as compensation for the favors done it by the gentlemen who framed the Mills tariff bill. Nixon, who was Croker's understudy at the head of Tammany, is at the head of a trust now, while the Republicans' old ally, Senator Jones, of Arkansas, the head of the Democratic national committee, has been a member of a combine for several years. This, in fact, is one of the reasons why he has been beaten in his campaign for renomination.

The western people do not find it necessary to send east this year for money to move the crops. A western banker writes to Secretary Shaw that every bank in the west has plenty of money to invest in any legitimate channel. It does not require extensive investigation to discover the reason why Populist doctrines and cheap money theories are no longer popular in the west. There is plenty of business and ample money with which to do that business. Moreover, every dollar of that money is worth 100 cents.

Jefferson county is growing so fast that it has decided it must have a bigger infirmary. Growth of that sort is nothing to boast of. But in Jefferson as elsewhere, it is not the native population that helps most largely to fill the poor house. A more rigid law to exclude immigrants likely to become public charges would, if enforced, save the taxpayers of almost every county in Ohio a large sum annually.

The Ford City telegraph operator who captured a burglar's revolver, turned it on the burglar and shot him dead is one of the humble heroes, but is as deserving of a medal as some of the more celebrated ones.

The Chinese Boxers are again showing signs of uneasiness. Until China gets a government worthy of the name she will always have trouble.

Chicago is certainly in a bad way, if as report has it, a number of the "prominent citizens" forming the committee appointed to receive and entertain President Roosevelt next month are anarchists.

One estimate of the treasury surplus during the present fiscal year is $30,000,000. The Republican surplus habit is too big a fact to be overcome, even by the abolition of all the war taxes.

Now that the Ohio legislators have decided that ping pong should be banished by law, thousands of people who never took any interest in the game will be curious to learn what it is like.

If Speaker Henderson were a younger man and less prominent in public life there would be less wondering why he should take a course that would cause so much talk.

The belated summer is pleasing to many people, but the rivermen can't see its beauties. The magnificent Ohio is fast becoming a streak of sand.

W. S. Devery's triumphant election as a political leader in New York may be a fine thing for Devery, but it is a mighty poor showing for his constituency.

The use of natural gas is on the increase, according to government statistice. Last year the value of the product consumed was over $27,000,000.

Might as well give it up, Peary. You're lucky to return alive, even if unlucky in pole-hunting.

W. K. McClurg.

W. K. McClurg, the oldest resident of New Cumberland, and a Hancock county pioneer, died at his home Tuesday, after a long illness. He was an ardent Democrat in political belief, and well known and esteemed in the community. A widow, a son and two daughters survive him, the youngest of his children being the wife of Attorney S. G. Smith, of Wheeling. Mr. McClurg was an octogenarian, and his death was due to paralysis.

NO WORK UNTIL SPRING

Decision Reached Regarding the New Building of Salvation Army.

A meeting of the Salvation Army was held at the barracks on Fourth street yesterday afternoon, and the presence of Colonel Holz, of Cleveland, commander of this province, took a prominent part.

An open air meeting was held early in the evening, which was addressed by Col. Holz, and then the assemblage moved to the hall. An interesting meeting was held there, which was again addressed by Col. Holz.

The question of beginning work on the new building to be erected by the Salvation Army at Third and Market streets was discussed, and it was decided not to begin operations until spring.

Books Named From the Bible.

A close acquaintance on the part of authors with the terse and expressive phrases in the Bible is plainly shown in the titles of a host of books. Among the titles taken directly from the Bible, says the Saturday Evening Post, are the following:

"If Sinners Entice Thee," "The Day of Temptation," "The Favor of Princes," "Wayfaring Men," "Weighed and Wanting," "The Wages of Sin," "Black, But Comely," "Dross," "In Dedar's Tents," "The Valley of Decision," "The Unjust Steward," "Sons of the Morning," "Visiting the Sin," "The Quick or the Dead," "The Prodigal," "The Bondwoman," "Tinkling Cymbals," "The Crown of Life," "Unleavened Bread," "A Laodicean," "The Birthright," "The Garden of Eden," "The Story of the Innumerable Company," "The Wings of the Morning," "Until the Day Break," "The Mantle of Elijah," "They That Walked in Darkness," "I Go a-Fishing," "The Tents of Shem," "The Snare of the Flower," "Give Me Thine Heart," "Mine Own People," "The Measure of a Man," "Resurrection," "The Market Place," "From My Youth Up," "His Brother's Keeper," "The Hosts of the Lord" and "On the Face of the Waters."

Shock After Burns.

Shock, which is always present in severe burns, requires the administration of stimulants. The amount of shock or collapse after any bad injury or sudden fright differs with the character of individuals. Some succumb to it much more readily than others. When serious, the temperature drops below normal, the face is pale, pinched and anxious, the pulse slow and feeble, the body bathed in a cold perspiration. Sometimes there is shivering. Sometimes the mind wanders. Place the patient at once in a horizontal position, the head slightly raised. Administer stimulants, alcoholic or aromatic vinegar. If whisky or brandy is used, give from a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of hot water every ten minutes until five or six doses have been taken. Surround the body and legs inside the thighs and under the armpits with hot water bags, hot stones—anything to give warmth—but take care not to burn your patient. If the injury is to the head, follow the same treatment, but omit the alcoholic stimulant.

FOOTBALL TEAMS

Two Organizations Formed in the High School And Prepared to Do Battle.

Interest in foot ball has now attained its height throughout the public schools of this city and a team has been organized among the boys of nearly every class in the schools where the lads are old enough. Foot ball has always been a favored game among the school boys of this city, and this year is by no means an exception to the rule. The following two teams were organized in the Wellsville high school yesterday and will play a game some time next week:

Second High School—Ralph Fairman, Joseph Andrews, Edward Herwig, Monroe Hague, William Forner, Charles Ferguson, John Wilcoxen, William Allman, David Rose and Walter McQueen. It will be noticed that this team is short two players.

The aggregation which is to do battle with this team is composed of Michael Duty, Harvey Adams, Roy Kerr, Vance Pugh, Tom Cheetel Keck William Turner, Richard Haugh, William Rounds, George Welsch and Paul Sechrist.

The two teams will line up for practice this evening and also on Saturday afternoon. The game will occur about the middle of next week.

WRIGHT OUT OF JAIL

Charge of Interfering With Officer Withdrawn, But May Be Renewed.

Wesley Wright, the stepfather of George Rutledge, who assaulted Chief of Police Henry Thorn last Saturday night, was yesterday released from the village jail at Irondale, Mayor Fogo, of this city, having withdrawn the charge against him.

Wright was arrested on the Sunday afternoon following the night his stepson was arrested and was charged with interfering and obstructing an officer in the discharge of his duty. He attempted to keep Officer Thorn from arresting his son and at the time Thorn went to Wright's home after Rutledge, it is said, he declared that he would blow the officer's brains out.

Wright's trial was set for this morning at Irondale, as he had previously pleaded not guilty, but on account of the sudden death of Mrs. Thorn, the chief being unable to go to Irondale Mayor Fogo withdrew the charge against Wright and he was released from custody. Wright will probably be prosecuted again later.

THREAT OF INJUNCTION

Against the Street Railway Causes It to Run Through Cars in Wellsville.

L. W. Healy, manager of the East Liverpool railway, held a private consultation with City Solicitor Boyd and Mayor Fogo yesterday afternoon in the city solicitor's office. Mr. Boyd informed Mr. Healy that he had been instructed by the city council to take out an injunction against the street railway company if it did not agree and not only agree but act, in the matter of running cars to the extreme end of the line, and also pat down the street paving torn up.

Mr. Healy said at the time that the company would agree to the city's demands and would start at once to run all cars to the extreme end of the line. The work was started this morning and if kept up all will be satisfactory.

REPORT OF LABOR DAY

Submitted to Trades Council Shows the Celebration Was a Complete Success.

The regular meeting of Trades and Labor Council was held last evening in Potters' hall. Outside of routine business, the special committee on Labor day gave in a complete report which was very satisfactory and which proved that efforts toward celebrating Labor day in a fitting manner and without going into debt were not in vain.

The report shows that the celebration was a grand success, financially speaking, and so much so that the council has about decided to have another celebration next year of a similar kind. This report should have been given in at the last meeting of the council, but at that time was not in a complete condition.

A DAMAGE SUIT

May Result From a Change of Grade on Liverpool Street.

Unless the city council soon makes a few improvements upon the Kampman property located on Liverpool street, in the way of filling in the lot and raising the house, it is likely to have a damage suit on its hands. Henry Kampman, who owns the property, sent a communication to council which was read at the last meeting, and stated just what he wanted the city to do upon his property, and unless they agree to his demands he warned them that he would put in a claim for damages.

It seems that by the changing of the grade on Liverpool street Mr. Kampman's property has been left very low. Every time that there is a heavy rain his cellar becomes flooded, thereby causing a damp air through the entire dwelling.

Council disposed of this matter temporarily by leaving it in the hands of a special committee composed of Councilmen Brennan, McCormick and Aughinbaugh. They are to investigate Mr. Kampman's claims and report at the next regular meeting of council.

A Fine Entertainment.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Second Presbyterian church held a delightful entertainment last evening in the parlors of the church which was attended by a large crowd of people. A very interesting literary program was given and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present. Following the program light refreshments were served, after which a social session was enjoyed. The affair was very successful. The ladies cleared a neat sum on the refreshments.

Oil Magnates in Town.

A party of five oil magnates from Pittsburg arrived in this city this morning and in company with Squire A. G. McKenzie and J. Lawson drove out to the Lawson oil field in Jefferson county. Their intentions are to drill a new well in that field today It is expected that part or all of the 1,000 acre tract of land leased to the Lawson family and others will be released by Pittsburg capitalists.

Runaways Taken Home.

The parents of the two lads, Caleb Webb and Samuel Layton, from New Castle, arrived in this city yesterday and took the boys back to New Castle. The parents stated that the boys left New Castle last Monday. They paid the costs of the boys' keeping in the city jail.

Mrs. Elinda Waugh.

Mrs. Elinda Waugh, age 52 years and wife of Engineer Waugh, of the Carroll-Porter Boiler works, Wellsville, died this morning at her home on Commerce street of paralysis. Her husband, four daughters and one son survive.

SOUTH SIDE

But an Informal Caucus Was Held And Important Matters Discussed.

On account of the absence of the recorder, J. S. D. Mercer, who was confined to his home by illness, and the mayor, who was delayed by the train from Pittsburg, which was 45 minutes late, the session of Chester council was not called to order, but Solicitor O. S. Marshall, who is always punctual, had arrived from New Cumberland, and the councilmen were present.

When the councilmen started through the darkness toward Carolina avenue they met Mayor Shrader. It was concluded not to return for the meeting, as a bystander suggested that it was bad luck to turn back. An informal caucus was held. Some discussion took place with reference to the disposition of dirt taken from the excavation on Carolina avenue. A number of other matters were talked over.

A special meeting may be held Monday evening. Bids will be offered on the $20,000 bond issue Saturday. While the paving improvement will cost about $32,000 a portion of the money will be raised by assessments.

It is understood that there will be a number of moneyed men in Chester tomorrow to bid on the bonds. Mr. Marshall and Mr. Boyd have assurances that there will be bidders present from Wheeling, Marietta and other towns, while local capitalists will stand waiting and willing to shoulder the burden.

JUDGE'S WIFE ILL

Miners' Case From New Cumberland Was Not Heard at Wheeling.

The case of the Marquet Coal company against the miners in and about New Cumberland was to have been heard yesterday at Wheeling in the United States circuit court. Judge Jackson, who has been very ill at his home in Parkersburg, had left a sick bed to open court and soon after the federal court was opened yesterday in Wheeling received a telegram announcing the dangerous illness of his wife.

Mrs. Jackson's death is expected and the judge promptly adjourned court to return to Parkersburg. The Hancock county case has been attracting much attention.

Fats vs. Leans.

On Thursday afternoon, September 24, a game of base ball will be played at Porter park, between the fats and the leans of New Cumberland. Dr. Cramer will be manager for the leans and A. S. Cooper manager for the fats. George Smith will play shortstop for the fats and George L. Bambrick and Dr. Fink will lend further skill and assistance to the fats. Dr. Anderson will be umpire.

To Attend a Wedding.

Mrs. Samuel Bloom and sons, Masters Sol and Simon, are about to leave for Cleveland, where they will spend a week. Mrs. Bloom's brother, Lee Harburger, and Miss Sarah Gugenheimer will be married in Cleveland next Tuesday evening. It will be one of the swell society events of that city.

Chester K. G. E.

A lodge of the Knights of the Golden Eagle will be installed in Chester on Friday evening, September 26. There are 65 names in the hands of the state officials at Huntington, W. Va., and it is probable that all of them will be made full-fledged members.

OIL NOTES.

The bailer of the machinery stuck in a hole at a depth of 600 feet on the Alexander Stewart farm yesterday which is causing no end of trouble in putting down the well to the required distance of 1,000 feet.

Lawrence Baxter, of Chester, has about the only farm in the oil district near Fairview that has not been leased. Operators are offering heavy bonuses in that section for oil property. Mr. Baxter's land is in the heart of the producing territory.

Luther Carson, a prominent magnate of the Carson oil district, was in Chester yesterday holding a business consultation with E. A. Freshwater.

Feared Fiend Would Be Lynched.

Pierce, Neb., Sept. 19.—Gottlieb Niegenfind, the wounded homicide, who killed his wife and father-in-law, was taken from Winside to Blair, Neb., for safe keeping. It had been reported to the officers that a mob was on the way from here to lynch him. The mob was imaginary, but the sheriff took no chances. District Judge Boyd has given orders that Niegenfind be returned to Pierce for trial on Sept. 29.

CAN REACH THE POLE.

Peary Said, if Rich, He Would Persist Until He Was Successful.

MADE IMPORTANT DISCOVERIES.

They Were of Scientific Value, but He Did Not Reach the Coveted Goal—Brought Back Things Abandoned by Greeley Expedition.

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 19.—The Peary Arctic club's relief steamer Windward, with Lieutenant Robert E. Peary on board, arrived at North Sydney at 8:15 yesterday morning from Greenland.

Lieutenant Peary did not succeed in reaching the Pole, but he announced that he made important discoveries. When Peary stepped from the Windward to the wharf no one would have supposed that he had braved the rigors of a winter in the Polar regions. His face was bronzed, but he looked the picture of health.

He says he feels certain that the pole can be reached, and furthermore that if he were a man of independent means he would persevere until he succeeded.

The most northerly point reached was 84 degrees 17 minutes in latitude, northwest of Cape Hecla. Lieutenant Peary says that the pole can be reached from Franz Josef Land and from Grant Land, in latitude 83 degrees, if the winter qaurters are established as far north as possible. He says that he would just as soon winter at Cape Hecla as at Sabine or Etah.

Mrs. Peary and her daughter, who had gone with the Windward to meet him, looked well, although the former is just recovering from an illness.

Dr. Diedrick was on board and quite well. As far as can be learned, the difference between him and Lieutenant Peary has not been patched up. Dr. Diedrick declined to say anything further at present than that the difficulty between him and Lieutenant Peary has not been settled.

Lieutenant Peary said:

"Our expedition did not reach the north pole, but we made most important scientific discoveries. We are all well and glad to get back to civilization."

He recovered and brought back the instruments and library abandoned by the Greeley expedition. He also brought numerous and rare specimens of natural history.

COMING TOUR OF PRESIDENT.

To Be In Cincinnati, Saturday, and Be Hanna's Guest, Sunday, Oct. 5, at Cleveland.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Secretary Cortelyou yesterday made public an outline of the president's tour to the northwest, Sept. 19 to Oct. 7. It was in part:

"The first public stop scheduled is at Cincinnati at 10 a. m., Saturday, the 20th. Upon arrival there the president and party are to be escorted to the St. Nicholas hotel, where an informal luncheon will be given by the general committee. In the afternoon a visit will be made to the fall festival grounds to view the exposition and later the president will be taken to Music hall. In the evening the local committee will entertain the president and party and others at dinner at the St. Nicholas hotel, and after the dinner the president will deliver an address at Music hall."

Detroit will be reached the next morning. Sunday will be spent quietly. The president will attend encampments of two different organizations of veterans of the Spanish war in Detroit and Indianapolis.

Places in Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois are to be visited, including a visit to the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis. The itinerary then says, in part, referring to the arrival in Cleveland, Oct. 5:

"The president and party will leave Chicago during the night and arrive at Cleveland, O., 9:30 the following evening, Saturday, passing during the day through Buchanan, Niles, Dowagiac, Decatur, Lawton, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Jackson, Mich., and Toledo and Sandusky, O. No public program has been arranged for Cleveland, as it is the president's intention simply to spend Sunday there as the guest of Senator Hanna, leaving during Sunday night for the east.

"On Monday, Oct. 6, two hours will be spent at Columbus, where the president and party will be taken for a drive, and the president will deliver an address from the state house. The train will reach Washington Tuesday morning, Oct. 7, at 8:30 o'clock.

"The president will be accompanied during a part of the trip by Secretaries Shaw and Wilson."

Woman's Body Found In Canal.

New York, Sept. 19.—The nude body of a young woman was found in the Morris canal, near Jersey City, yesterday. A long hitching strap, to which was attached a 20-pound iron weight, was around the woman's waist. A wound, apparently a stab wound, about six inches long, was found in the abdomen. Detectives are at work on the case.

COLOMBIA PROTESTS.

CLAIMS GUARDS NOT NEEDED ON PANAMA TRAINS.

McLean Reports Stopping of Trains by Colombian Soldiers—Will Continue to Guard.

Colon, Colombia, Sept. 19.—United States bluejackets, with a small quick-firing gun from the cruiser Cincinnati, continue to accompany each passenger and freight train across the isthmus, notwithstanding the protests against such measures which the Colombian government has lodged with Oscar Malmros, the United States consul here.

There is no definite news of the whereabouts of the insurgent General Herrera, nor signs that insurgent forces are approaching the isthmus.

General Ortiz is in command of the government troops which reached here Wednesday on the steamer La Plata.

Won't Fight With Nicaragua.

Panama, Sept. 19.—The report which has been current lately that Colombia intended to declare war upon Nicaragua, because of the help President Zelaya is alleged to have given the Colombian revolutionists, is discredited and contradicted by Colombian officials stationed in Panama.

Referring to the alleged attitude of Nicaragua with regard to Colombia's internal strife, government officials here said yesterday to the representative of the Associated Press that they considered President Zelaya's reported interference in Colombia's revolution as a dangerous policy for him to pursue, but that they did not blame Nicaragua for the faults of its president, whose conduct, they declared, was disapproved by all sensible persons in his country.

"It is believed," said one of the officials, "that the Nicaragua canal syndicate has had much to do with the help General Herrera has received from Nicaragua, the syndicate's idea being, of course, that the prolongation of the state of war in Colombia would make impossible the completion of the Panama canal."

American Commander Reports.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Secretary of the Navy Moody received the following dispatch yesterday from Commander McLean, of the Cincinnati:

"Colon (blank date),

"Train for Panama went through with Cincinnati's guard of riflemen and rapid-fire gun. Freight train coming toward Colon stopped by soldiers at sides of track, continuously pointing loaded muskets at engineer and train hands, demanding opening of locked box cars for inspection; conductor no key; could not. Went to find some responsible officer; also sent man to flag following passenger train; menace removed; freight came in with passenger train. Will vigorously protect life, liberty, American and other peaceable employes and maintain unobstructed traffic. Have instructed Ranger assist this duty."

PENNYPACKER VISITS BROWN.

He and Penrose Were Guests Last Night—To Go to Pittsburg, Today.

New Castle, Pa., Sept. 19.—Samuel W. Pennypacker, Republican candidate for governor; Senator Boise Penrose and their party arrived here last evening at 7:45 from Erie, and were the guests over night of William M. Brown, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

Local Republicans called last night to meet Judge Pennypacker and Senator Penrose. This morning a public reception was to be held by the visitors. The party was to leave here at 12:25 o'clock over the Pittsburg and Lake Erie, arriving at Pittsburg before 2 o'clock.

NEGRO FIEND ESCAPED.

Finally Shot by Mob and Died—Body Strung Up.

Marshfield, Ore., Sept. 19.—Alonzo Tucker, a negro, who assaulted Mrs. Dennis, near Libby, Wednesday, was lynched yesterday. A body of coal miners, heavily armed, marched into town Wednesday evening. The marshal, who had Tucker in custody, attempted to take him from the jail just as the miners entered, and a rush was made for the negro.

He managed to give his custodian the slip, and jumped under the wharf into the mud flats and eluded both officers and mob until yesterday. At one time there was talk of lynching the officers who allowed Tucker to escape. Finally Tucker was located and shot in the leg. He died of the wound and the mob strug up his body.

Anachronistic.

"Unhand me!" shricked the heroine of the mediæval drama.

For the hero in tendering his escort had seized her elbow after the modern State street style.

Tart Reply.

"My child," reproved the mother of vinegar, "why don't you work?"

Impossible to forsee an accident. Not impossible to be prepared for it. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Monarch over pain.

IMPACTED EAR WAX.

Where It Comes From and How It Should Be Treated.

The normal secretion of the orifice of the ear is the product of glands situated in the outer half of the canal only. This secretion—the cerumen, or ear wax—is slowly poured from the gland ducts as a thin, yellowish liquid. As it quickly loses a large amount of its watery elements by evaporation and becomes admixed with dust it forms a thin layer, waxlike in color and consistency, which normally covers only the outer portion of the canal, that in which the glands are located.

This layer of material probably has its chief function, in common with the few small hairs in the same location, in protecting the vibratory membrane—the drum—from the contact of dust.

It is interesting to observe that the exit of this layer of wax is accomplished by nature chiefly with the aid of the motion communicated to the ear canal by the movement of the jaw in chewing and talking, a motion readily felt by touching the orifice with the finger tip during these processes. The constant increase of the secretion is therefore provided with a corresponding loss, which takes place almost as imperceptibly as the constant loss of the superficial layer of the skin from the surface of the body.

This explanation serves to make clear why the use of ear spoons, pins or hairpins is unnecessary. The use of such objects is not only superfluous, but it is often the cause of the very condition which those who use them would prevent.

Even too vigorous washing with a twisted cloth or sponge, for example, may result in pushing the wax back into the canal until a mass sufficient to block the entire opening is accumulated.

The first intimation of the presence of impacted wax is often the sudden occurrence of a considerable degree of deafness. This is most likely to happen on a damp day or just after or during a bath. A slight amount of moisture causes the mass to swell so that the narrow chink previously existing between the mass and the canal is closed. If it is not now removed, the mass may shrink and the hearing power be temporarily restored, only to be lost again when conditions arise causing an increase in the size of the mass.

Firm, gentle syringing with warm water from a piston ear syringe is usually regarded as the safest and best method of removing the mass, the handling of which had better be intrusted to a physician or trained nurse, if possible.—Youth's Companion.

THE COOKBOOK.

In making any sauce put the flour and butter in together, and your sauce will not be lumpy.

A heavy salad is always out of place in an elaborate dinner. Mayonnaise is permissible, but French dressing is better.

If corned beef is very red, which means it is very salt, put it to cook in cold water. This draws out a portion of the salt.

When croquette mixtures are too wet to mold and shape, put in more chopped meat or fish or in a desperate case finely pounded breadcrumbs.

In making custard for lemon pies it is better to partly bake the crust before adding the mixture so that it may not be absorbed by the paste.

Gingerbread is improved by adding to it, when mixing, a cupful of chopped prunes. Use the juice of the prunes instead of water and mix the dough a little stiffer.

Fried breakfast bacon is much improved if cooked in some of the bacon fat saved from the previous day. There should be just enough for the bacon to float in, and it must be hot before the rashers are added. Cook three minutes.

"Stonewall" Jackson's Baptism.

Robert E. Lee and Thomas Jonathan ("Stonewall") Jackson were once stationed at Fort Hamilton, New York harbor, the former while it was being built. Jackson was baptized at old St. John's church at Fort Hamilton, and the records contain the following entry: "On Sunday, 29th of April, 1849, I baptized Thomas Jonathan Jackson, major in the United States army; sponsors, Colonels Taylor and Dimmick, also of the army." The baptismal font used for this ceremony is still preserved.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No Excuse.

A member of a volunteer fire brigade did not appear on the scene of the conflagration until after the fire was under control. He was severely taken to account by the chief for thus neglecting his duty.

"I could not help it," replied the fireman. "I live a long way from the fire."

"That's no excuse," snapped the chief. "You must move nearer the next fire."—London Answers.

Two Aspects.

Benham—I believe a woman can love two men at the same time.

Mrs. Benham—If she is a married woman, she has to try to.

Benham—What do you mean?

Mrs. Benham—She has to try to love her husband, and be isn't the same man when they have company that he is when they haven't any.—Brooklyn Life.

Pay Your Debts.

"No, sir," declared Gazzan as he warmed up to his subject, "you'll never be happy so long as you are in debt. Pay your debts, Swayback; pay your debts."

"But I have no money," said Swayback.

"Then borrow it."—Detroit Free Press.

Fertile Cuba.

In Cuba cabbages frequently weigh as much as twenty pounds. All vegetables do well. Radishes may be eaten from fourteen to eighteen days after sowing, lettuce in five weeks after sowing, while corn produces three crops per year. Sweet potatoes are perpetual. The natives dig up the tubers, cut them off and plant the old vines, which produce a new crop in three months. All sorts of fruit, horticultural and greenhouse plants and bulbous stock are also grown.

Dampening His Ardor.

Desperate Suitor—Sir, I have reached that stage where I can no longer live without your daughter.

Heartless Parent—Well, I don't consider suicide a crime, young man, but you mustn't hang around here.—Chicago News.

A Paradox.

Belle—What a lovely bulldog!

Nan—I think he's horrid looking.

Belle—Oh, but bulldogs aren't lovely unless they're horrid looking.—Detroit Free Press.

NICE FOR PAPA.

Things That May Happen When the Panama Canal Is Dug.

"George, dear, don't sit there asleep with the flies biting you."

"It's me the flies are biting, my love. If I don't object to it and the flies don't object to it, why should you?"

"But I want to talk to you about this Panama canal, George. It's like other canals, isn't it?"

"Yes, my dear; only it's wider and deeper and shorter."

"But it's just a ditch, isn't it?"

"Yes, my dear, it's just a glorified ditch."

"And what will they do with the dirt they shovel out of it, George?"

"They will dig a hole and bury it, my love."

"There, now, you're stringing me. How long is it going to take to dig it, dear?"

"Oh, a half dozen years."

"My, but that seems a long while to wait if you are in a hurry to get through! And I suppose that they'll break a bottle or something the day it's done, and then somebody will pull a string or something and let the waters of the Pacific flow into the Atlantic. That's fine, isn't it?"

"It's really grand, my love."

"And I was thinking of another thing, George. You know what a fisherman papa is and how he loves to fish for tuna, but hates to go away across to California to find them. Do you think the tuna will swim through the canal so papa can catch them down in Florida?"

"Why not, my love? I have no doubt that all sorts of things from the Pacific side will float through—Chinese scows and whales and seals and walruses and polar bears and"—

"Stop, George! You're a hateful thing!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Insinuation.

It was a warm Sunday morning in church. Fans were fluttering, hymnals flopping, handkerchiefs mopping streaming faces, and the minister thought his audience a little lax in attention. Finally he led up to a rebuke for its lack of consideration for sacred and important things. Said he:

"People are prone to attend to the unimportant things of life."

And he gave a few examples to illustrate his ideas. Presently he made his pertinent application.

"Now," said he, "you are attentive to your own comfort this morning to the sinful neglect of the holy word. Take no thought for the heat," he said dramatically, "for you may be dead tomorrow."—Detroit Free Press.

An Extremist.

"Is Mr. Fusse much afraid of microbes?"

"Well I should say. He washes the antiseptic gauze gloves he wears in an antiseptic fluid before he even handles the sterilized glass that contains the boiled and filtered mineral water he intends to drink!"—Baltimore Herald.

TRADING WAS APATHETIC.

Except Spotty Assortment of Stocks, Thursday—Undertone of Strength Maintained.

New York, Sept. 19.—The stock market maintained its undertone of strength yesterday, but the trading was extremely apathetic outside a spotty assortment of stocks whose show of strength helped to sustain the general list. The money market was quieter, but rates were still stiff. Loans were left undisturbed, however, and no pressure of liquidation was forced. The level of prices therefore was not disturbed, except as the sympathetic influence of the strong stocks helped to harden the market. The Gould group was the most conspicuous. The stocks of independent steel companies were strong as a rule, because of the reports of the extraordinary pressure of orders for all grades of iron and steel products and a degree of activity in production which is limited only by the available supply of material. The freezing weather in the northwest was ignored until the break in the corn and wheat market, which helped to stiffen stocks.

The money outlook continued the principal topic of discussion in the financial district. There was no radical change in the situation yesterday. An additional engagement of half a million dollars Australian gold was announced to arrive several weeks hence. The banks continued to lose to the sub-treasury, notwithstanding the disbursements by that institution on account of October government interest, the customs collections and the deposits for transfer to the interior serving to more than offset the interest payments. The market closed dull and steady.

The bond market was dull and about steady. Total sales, par value, $2,290,000.

U. S. refunding 2s advanced ¾, the 3s ¼ and the old 4s ⅛ per cent. The new 4s declined ¼ on the last call.

MET WITH DEFEAT FOR THIRD TIME

Jamestown Made Many Errors and an Insufficient Number of Hits.

PITCHING OF KID BARKER

Was Altogether Too Fast for the Visitors — Jamestown's Twirler Did Well, But Had Only Very Discouraging Support—Score, 5 to 2.

Before an unusually large crowd the local base ball team made it three straight from Jamestown yesterday afternoon in West End park. The game could have been faster, but it was swift enough—a little too swift for the visitors.

To an insufficient number of hits and an oversupply of errors is credited Jamestown's defeat. That new pitcher that they imported should be signed as a regular for next year. He can outclass their other twirlers and give them cards and spades. The support that he received, though, was enough to dishearten him and cause him to leave the field in disgust. He was a steady fellow, however, and allowed nothing to interfere with his good work. It was six of one and a half dozen of the other between himself and Kid Barker. The latter had some the best of it in strikeouts, but he was hit almost as freely.

Gibson, Reark and Rising went out in less time than it takes to tell it in the first inning. Freck, Campbell and Lytle did also. In the second four men faced the pitcher on the local side, but not a run nor a hit was scored. Barker certainly was pitching them some in this inning. He made the only three men up beat nothing but the wind. Four men managed to face him in the next, but there was nothing doing. One of them landed for three bases, but that was the farthest point he reached. The locals went out in a way similar to the first inning.

Campbell, starting the fourth with a single, made things look a little brighter for the visitors. He died at second and the other four up made no showing. Reark, first at it for the locals, got a two-bagger. Rising went out from third. Reilly stepped forward and belted the ball for two long bases. Reark scored. Barker was out. Davis walked. Heckathorn was out and Reilly died.

Great strides the visitors made in the fifth. Russell walked. Peiper reached first on Reilly's error. Weihrauch singled and scored Russell. Freck got a hit and Peiper went out on a brave attempt to reach third. Campbell and Freck went out on a double play. A goose egg was all that the locals could score, nothwithstanding that Emmerling got a pretty hit.

The way that Barker pulled out of a hole in the sixth was a lovely sight to see. Lytle hit for two bases. McKinley went out. Kane singled and pushed Lytle to third. Kane advanced a base and everything looked very favorable for a couple of runs. But they did not get them. The next two men went out. The locals here practically won the game. Rising hit and was followed by Reilly, who did likewise. Barker walked. And Davis reached first on a fielder's choice. Rising tried to make it in, but was intercepted. Reilly and Barker each scored on Kane's error of Heckathorn's easy one. Heckathorn was thrown out at second. Webb fanned.

In one, two, three order the visitors went down during the remainder of the game, and the locals let them off with the addition of two, one in the seventh and another one in the eighth.

Rising and Reilly made sensational catches. They are fast numbers and such plays are frequent occurrences with them.

THE RELIEF OF CROSS EYES

is a branch of the business which most opticians ignore. But there is a logical reason for this neglect on their part. Cross eyes are caused from muscular imbalance, and muscular imbalance is something the great majority of opticians do not understand. Since coming here I have straightened over a dozen pairs of crossed eyes and have not failed in a single case. I do it with glasses, too, and without pain or trouble.

Only Exclusive Optician in This City. No. 111 Sixth Street.

P. O. KENNEDY.

To give perfect relief to weak eyes of whatever character an understanding of the muscles is absolutely necessary in a large per centage of cases. Do you know what causes your head to ache when your eyes are at fault? There is some muscle or set of muscles being overworked, and to give perfect relief the optician MUST UNDERSTAND MUSCULAR TROUBLES. I examine your eyes free of charge, and examine them thoroughly, too.

AMERICAN FRIARS.

Augustinians Will Send Them to Replace Spanish, In Philippines.

MAY THUS SOLVE PROBLEM.

Two of the Distinguished Men of the Order Selected From About a Dozen Volunteers—Others Are to Follow at Intervals.

Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—An important step toward the solution of the troubles in the Philippine islands, caused by the presence of the Spanish friars there, was taken yesterday at Villa Nova college, when the Most Rev. Thomas Rodriquez, O. S. A., of Rome, prior general of the Augustinian order throughout the world, announced that Rev. Daniel J. O. O'Mahony, of Andover, Mass., and Rev. J. E. McErlaine, of Villa Nova, had been ordered to the Philippines as pioneers in the movement of American priests to those islands to succeed the Spaniards.

The two priests will leave for Manila within the next two weeks, and will be followed in a short time, it is believed, by several other American Augustinians. Both clergymen chosen are distinguished and able members of the order. They were selected from among about a dozen volunteers who offered their services to the prior general in case he needed American Augustinians for the Philippines. Many of the Spanish friars in the Philippines belong to the order.

FOR LOSSES IN CHINA.

State Department Sends Money to American Missions Board.

Boston, Sept. 19.—The officers of the American board of foreign missions announced yesterday the receipt of $57,933 through the state department at Washington. The amount is 25 per cent of the award made to the board by the commission now in session in China for losses on mission property in the Boxer outrage of 1900. This money is said to come very opportunely to reimburse the treasury for sums already expended in rebuilding in North China and also to meet other urgent calls of the same sort.

The total award very nearly equals the amount of the claim presented by the board two years since, the changes and reduction being merely nominal. The award for the personal losses of missionaries has not yet been made, but will soon be forwarded from Pekin to Washington.

Spoke From Experience.

A man who tries to uphold all his statements with the prop of personal experience is pretty sure, sooner or later, to find himself in difficulties.

"What kind of posts should you say I'd better have for my piazza?" asked a summer resident of the oracle of Bushville. "Cedar?"

"No," was the instant reply; "not 'less you want to pay for poor stuff. Git pine. Pine will last you a hundred years."

"Are you sure?" asked the summer resident doubtfully.

"Sure!" echoed the oracle. "I never state a thing without I can prove it. I've tried 'em both. Tried 'em twice on my south porch, I tell you!"

Ways of the Statesmen.

Many years ago, when England was engaged in foreign complications, the first lord of the admiralty sent Admiral Codrington a dispatch which was most peaceful as far as it appeared before the public. He told him not to take his ships into action and so forth, but in a corner he wrote this short private note, "Go it, Ned!" And Codrington went to Navarino and smashed up the Turkish fleet.

Same Old Story.

"Wonder why the grizzly bear isn't exhibiting himself today?" said the African lion gently.

"He's laid up. The tortoise bit him," replied the lioness.

"Well, that's what he gets for fooling with a shell game."—Colorado Springs Gazette.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature and of Matters About Town.

Barbers' Meeting—The barbers' local held a short session last evening, but only matters of a routine nature were considered.

Soon to Marry—Frank Stoub and Miss Blanche Hulse, of this city, are soon to be married and will go to housekeeping at once.

To Entertain Tonight—Miss Margaret Thomas will entertain a number of her young girl friends at her home on Seventh street, this evening.

Visited a Sick Brother—At the close of the meeting of the Red Men last evening members of the order visited the home of John Brannon, a member of the order who has been ill for several weeks.

Car Became Useless—The safety appliances on the Calcutta hill street car became useless at a late hour last night, due, it is said, to the bad condition of the car, and it was necessary to send to the barn for assistance.

Will Entertain Pupils—Mrs. Dr. J T. Elliott will this evening entertain the members of her Sunday school class. The class contains about 15 girls, who are looking forward with great anticipation to a jovial evening.

Eyes Operated Upon—At the Alliance hospital yesterday morning Dr. G. L. King successfully operated upon Robert J. Boyce, of East Liverpool, for the removal of a cataract of the left eye. Mr. Boyce is 76 years of age, but stood the operation well.

College Centennial—Attorney John J. Kerr is in receipt of an invitation from the faculty of the Washington & Jefferson college of Pennsylvania to attend the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the college. Mr. Kerr is a graduate of the college class of '77. He will likely attend the anniversary, which is to be held on October 14, 15 and 16, and anticipates an enjoyable time.

Pleasant Surprise Party—A very pleasant surprise party was tendeded Harry Albright at his home on Avondale street last evening, previous to his departure for school, at Mt. Union college, next Monday. The young people amused themselves with phonograph recitations and several piano solos by Miss Lucy Bucher, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

FINELY ENTERTAINED

Pleasing Program Presented—Similar Entertainment Planned for Next Month.

The first social and entertainment of the season given last evening by the Y. M. C. A. and the Ladies' auxiliary in the rooms of the association was highly enjoyed by over 150 young people.

Many words of praise were uttered today for those who had the affair in charge, and it is the hope of all that were present that the social committee will see fit to have similar demonstrations very often.

The following program was carried out and each participant received merited applause: Stereopticon views of the east, the Holy Land, included, by Dr. Charles Birkett, assisted by Secretary Wright; vocal solo, "The Holy City," by M. C. Williams, state secretary of the association located at Cleveland; selection by Ormes orchestra; piano solo, Charles Usler; solo, Miss Jones; selection by orchestra; solo, Mr. Blount; selection by orchestra.

After the program a delicious repast, consisting of cake, coffee and fruit, was enjoyed. A social session followed for an hour or more, after which the members of the Ladies' auxiliary held a short conference and decided to present another home talent entertainment the latter part of next month. Col. A. V. Newton, of Worcester, Mass., will have charge and has suggested that "A Mock Trial, or Who Stole the Rooster?" be played.

GILLILAND TALKS OF HIS DISCHARGE

He Has Found Another Place, But Is Sorry That He Lost the Old One.

FOLLOWED HIS CONSCIENCE

In Trying to Convert His Fellow Workmen—Says a Revolution Is Necessary for the Moral Reform of the Shop Workers of This City.

Glenn Gilliland, the young man, late of Meigs county, who was discharged on Monday from the Brunt Porcelain works because he prayed too loud and long when, as the man states under whom he worked, his time should have been consumed in fulfilling the duties incident to his position, in an interview with a New Review reporter last evening made the following statement:

"The story concerning me published in your paper surprised me very much. I did not think that my former employer would treat me so fairly. He gave the particulars completely. It is possible that the people in general of this city scorned me when they read the articles. Nevertheless I am willing to bear the contempt and I think that I will prosper in the end if I continue doing as my heart dictates. The men among whom I labored struck me as being sorely in need of, the prayers that I uttered in their behalf. They all seemed to absolutely disregard religion, and I really could not conscientiously work with them and refrain from doing all within my power to point out to them the course and the only course which leads to eternal glory and happiness.

"I am sorry that I was discharged. Not because the work at that plant was particularly pleasing or fascinating, but because I am no longer able to place before the employes the path which they should follow. Among the workshops of this city a revolution must take place. In the shops are employed almost as many girls and women as men. Parents certainly are not in favor of their children being subjected to the vile tongues that now predominate in the shops. The young daughter thrown into the shops to help in the support of a family is brought in contact with the profanity and vulgar epithets which are allowed to flow at the will of indecent men. Nothing can start a girl on the road to ruins so fast as her intimacy with such men.

"The course that I followed was never before adopted by me. I did it simply because I felt it my duty to do so. I live on the promise that the righteous will prosper. Whatever I do when my heart and religion are at the back of it I know that I will not suffer. I am now working at the Williams' cooper shop on Second street. They hired me there on the morning following the day I was discharged. It gives me pleasure to work at the cooper shop. The men employed there are on a higher level. They do not need any advice from me.

"Since my experience of the last few weeks I have entirely changed the plans that I laid for a course in college to prepare myself for the ministry. In three weeks I am going to apply to the Free Methodist conference for a charge, and if given an appointment I will endeavor to carry out the principles of Christ, and thereby lead the erring ones to a life of eternal joy."

NEW INFIRMARY

Jefferson County Commissioners Decide to Have One—Present Building Overtaxed.

Steubenville, Sept. 19.—Jefferson county must have a new infirmary. That question has been decided by the county commissioners, and it only remains for the people to ratify the decision of the commissioners by a vote at the polls. As the erection of new infirmary buildings means a saving of expenses every year there is little or no doubt but that the taxpayers will quickly and willingly vote for the appropriation to erect new buildings.

Just wht the new buildings will cost has not yet been determined. The commissioners have had no plans prepared or estimates made, but it is safe to say that the cost will be anywhere from $75,000 to $100,000, and there is reason for this. The present old rattletrap infirmary buildings are crowded full and contrary to law the directors are caring for a number of cases on the outside of the infirmary. The population of the county is increasing rapidly, and many of the new citizens are foreigners working in mines where most of the infirmary cases are received from. At the present time there are over eighty-five inmates in the infirmary and if a half dozen more were sent out there the superintendent would have no place to put them.

ENGLAND ALSO PROTESTS.

Germany Takes Ground That United States Acted Within Rights, as to Roumania.

Berlin, Sept. 19.—The German foreign office has received a note from the British government inviting some action on the part of the signatories of the treaty of Berlin of 1878 regarding Roumania's treatment of Jews. The British note is shorter than that of the United States on the same subject, but it pursues the same end. It is assumed here that Great Britain knew of the United States' step beforehand and acted in support thereof. The United States action is regarded as being quite within her rights, in seeking the assistance of the signatories in preventing an influx of indigent immigrants, which is recognized as a substantial grievance. These two notes will result in an interchange of views between the powers as to what action is feasible. In the meantime it is expected that Roumania will take cognizance of the United States' protest and defend her case upon her own initiative before the signatories.

The foregoing represents the views of the German government, but the press, knowing nothing of the British note, seems to consider the United States' note action as simply chivalrous and as not likely to result in practical measures. The Vossische geitung says, in part, that while thinking Germany will do nothing it still believes that the action of the United States cannot fail to have a strong moral effect.

INJUNCTION AGAINST FICHT.

Granted by Louisville Judge, Yesterday—Club Manager to Ask Dissolution, Today.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 19.—Judge Field, in the Jefferson circuit court last night, granted the injunction prayed for by State's Attorney General Pratt to prevent the contest between Terry McGovern and "Young" Corbett, scheduled for next Monday night. The attorneys for the Southern Athletic club will apply to the court of appeals today for a disolution of the injunction, and a decision in this matttr is expected by noon. A disolution of the injunction by the appellate court would mean a victory for the promoters of the contest.

Concerning Judge Field's decision, Manager Robert C. Gray, of the Southern Athletic club, said last night:

"At 11 o'clock tomorrow morning my attorneys will apply to a judge of the court of appeal for a dissolution of the injunction. The defense claims Judge Field has no jurisdiction against an alleged criminal offense. I am absolutely confident that the contest will take place."

SOME TRI-STATE EVENTS.

At the Pennsylvania Medical society meeting at Allentown these officers were elected: President, William M. Welch, Philadelphia; vice presidents, H. H. Herbst, Allentown; G. F. Bell, Lycoming; G. W. McNeal, Pittsburg; S. P. Heilman, Lebanon.

Members of the One Hundredth and Eleventh regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers, in reunion at Erie, Pa., elected officers as follows: President, Captain George Selkregg, of North East; vice president, W. J. Alexander, of Warren; secretary, Captain John L. Wells, of Erie; treasurer, A. W. Merrick, of Corry; historian, the Rev. J. R. Boyle, of Philadelphia.

Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, superintendent of public instruction of Pennsylvania, has designated Friday, Oct. 17, as Autumn Arbor day to be observed by the schools.

A black bear, which has been preying on the farmers of Sand Ridge, near Philippi, W. Va., has reappeared at Valley Furnace, where he attacked a little girl who was picking elderberries. The girl's father arrived in time to rescue her, but she was considerably scratched by the animal's claws.

At Wheeling, W. Va., Joshua T. Jackson, convicted of criminally assaulting Etta Montgomery, aged 12, was sentenced to the penitentiary for seven years.

The new $200,000 court house for Wetzel county, W. Va., has been accepted and the next session of the circuit court will be held in it.

At Bucyrus, O., because the county commissioners granted a franchise to the Logan Natural Gas company, Charles Gallinger, prosecuting attorney, has resigned. Gallinger wanted the gas company to be shut out until it gave the county free gas for the court house and jail.

Louis D. Desilets, a salesman at Bucyrus, O., has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Assets nearly $5,000.

At Ashtabula, O., A. L. Haskell was shooting at a mark, when his shotgun exploded, a greater part of the charge entering his head, penetrating the brain. He is paralyzed, unconscious and will not recover.

At Washington C. H., O., because of the apparent purpose to elect Dr. A. H. Norcross, of Grace M. E. church, as presiding elder of the Columbus district, the congregation has started a zealous movement to secure his return to his present station.

AGAINST SALARIES FOR COUNCILMEN

Ohio Senate Agrees to This As Regards Villiages in the State.

Upper House Puts It in the Code Without a Dissenting Vote—Legislature Has Adjourned to Go to Cincinnati.

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—The legislature adjourned yesterday until next Tuesday, to attend the fall festival at Cincinnati, Friday. The members and families will be the guests of the Fall Festival association. The house committee has adopted a plan for public improvements by providing that material is to be purchased through competitive bidding, while the city will employ the labor. Assessments for public improvement will be made on market value of benefited property, value to be fixed by committee appointed by the mayor. Interest on bonds fixed at 6 per cent as maximum, while premium from sale of bonds is to be applied to the sinking fund.

When the senate met yesterday morning the Chamberlain amendment was agreed to without a dissenting vote. It simply preserves the Beal law, which would have been repealed had the Nash code gone through as drafted. The fear of the saloon people which restored the workhouse law was not well founded, and when they saw the mistake they withdrew from the opposition to the Chamberlain amendment.

The senate yesterday began consideration of the village code. After long and spirited discussion an amendment by Mr. Harris to allow members of village councils small salaries was voted down. Men who have resided in a village one year, instead of five, were made eligible to election to executive offices therein. Deposit of village funds in private banks having paid capital of not less than $10,000 was authorized.

PATTISON ADDRESSED GRANGERS

Also Spoke at Huntingdon, Pa. Other Members of Party Also Made Speeches.

Huntingdon, Pa., Sept. 19.—The Democratic gubernatorial campaigners spent some time at Centre Hall yesterday and were greeted by the Grangers, who were holding their annual picnic there. The Pattison party was met at Coburn upon its arrival from Harrisburg by a committee, headed by County Chairman J. J. Bower, and escorted to the picnic grounds. Candidates Pattison and Guthrie shook hands for nearly two hours and then they were taken to the Auditorium, where a great and enthusiastic meeting was held. Ex-Governor Pattison and Mr. Guthrie spoke. Senator Herbst, of Berks county, made a hit with a short address in Pennsylvania Dutch, and Representative Mayne, of Lehigh, did the same. Major Moses Veale also spoke briefly, and State Chairman Creasy, for whom the crowd clamored, spoke.

At Tyrone a reception committee from Huntingdon boarded the special car in which the campaigners are now being moved about, and acted as escort to Huntingdon.

A great crowd surrounded the station, and after a hurried supper there was a parade to the court house, where the meeting was very largely attended. Mr. Pattison, Mr. Guthrie, Representative Mayne and Major Veale spoke.

BISHOP VISITS STRIKE REGION.

Fallows Said Operators Have Made a Mistake.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 19.—Bishop Fallows, of Chicago, arrived here last night. He visited eight collieries and a washery, en route from Philadelphia, and found none at work. On the same train was John Markle, of the firm of G. B. Markle & Co., who has represented the individual coal interests at all of the conferences of the operators. He said that after conversing with Mr. Markle and the miners he had reached the conclusion that the operators had made a mistake in opposing arbitration of their differences.

President of Miami Inaugurated.

Oxford, O., Sept. 19.—Dr. Guni Potter Benton, late president of the Upper University of Iowa, was inaugurated as president of Miami university yesterday afternoon. Numerous college presidents from Ohio and other states were present. President James B. Angell, of the University of Michigan, delivered the principal address on education. Addresses were also made by Governor Nash, State School Commissioner Bonebrake, President George E. McLain, of Iowa State university, and President O. W. Thompson, of the Ohio State university.

Talisman Emerald Of Oajaca

Precious Stone Revered By Mexican Indians

For years, ever since Mexico was opened to the white man, every traveler to that romantic land has heard of the emerald of Oajaca. Rumor said that it was huge almost beyond belief. Whatever its size, it was certain that the Indians believed in its magic properties. No white man ever saw it, but now an American woman has succeeded, through a sister woman's gratitude, where men found failure.

This emerald of Oajaca has for ages been the object of covetous interest on the part of Spanish viceroys, Mexican presidents and provincial governors. Great dealers in precious stones have sought it, too, but the Indians as the lineal descendants of the Aztecs, to whom the emerald is supposed to have originally belonged, hold it in superstitious reverence and such safe keeping that until recent years little but unconfirmed legend of the stone's existence was known.

A few years ago President Diaz became so interested in the matter that he decided to prove the truth or fallacy of the reports of this emerald's size and value. Without warning he suddenly appeared in the village where it was said the gem was secreted. He summoned the people into the plaza and announced that if they would show him the emerald known to be in their possession he would in return proclaim a public holiday and entertain them with a fiesta at his own expense. He promised as president and by virtue of the same blood in his and their veins that if they would accede to his request he would not attempt to take the emerald from them.

Upon this a prolonged consultation ensued among the Indians, the result of which was that from afar off in the crowd one of them held up at arm's length between his forefinger and thumb the famous emerald, scintillating in the rays of the sun. Diaz was desirous of a closer inspection and, turning to his guards, ordered the man to be brought to him. His actions if not his words were at once considered by the Indians to be suspicious, so they promptly raised a tumult, and, amid shouts of "Viva Porfirio Diaz!" and "Viva la fiesta!" the man and the emerald disappeared, and this was the only glimpse the powerful president was able to obtain of it.

An American woman had better fortune. It happened that her husband was appointed to superintend the medical department of the railroad being built through Oajaca and incidentally saved the life of an Indian woman. In her gratitude this woman begged to be allowed to make some recompense, as the American doctor had refused to accept a fee. But half in jest he replied that if she would show him the Oajaca emerald he would be satisfied. At this the woman seemed greatly disturbed. She at first declared she knew nothing about it, but on being pressed further by the doctor's wife she admitted knowing where it was hidden. Finally she agreed that if the doctor would solemnly promise to absent himself she would obtain the stone and show it to his wife. For some unexplained reason she held so steadfastly to this point that the wife must be alone when the emerald was produced that it was yielded, though much to the doctor's disappointment.

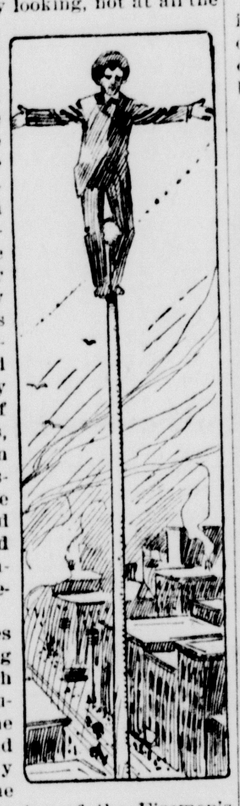

So one morning shortly after the Indian woman appeared at the physician's temporary residence. She made sure that the doctor's wife and herself were alone. Then she produced the emerald from a fold of her clothing. For about a minute only was the doctor's wife permitted to inspect the gem while it was held securely in the Indian woman's fingers. In size, according to the fortunate visitor's account, the stone is as large as a pigeon's egg, crudely polished and of a rich, grass green color. In its depths she noticed a few black spots or flaws, which go far to prove that it is a genuine emerald and not volcanic glass, as has been suggested. The purest emeralds are seldom without flaws, this being one of the tests.

In great haste the Indian woman again secreted the gem and went out but one curious circumstance the doctor and his wife remarked subsequently. During the remainder of their stay in the village, though they met the woman several times, neither by word or sign would she recognize their previous relations. She treated them as absolute strangers. To her mind the risk she had run in showing the talisman of her tribe was full compensation for the service rendered. The general belief is that the stone is not secreted in any place, but is concealed on the person of one of the Indians and passed on as circumstances may require. If such is the case, the woman must have obtained the gem by stealth, and during the time it was in her possession she was doubtless in no little danger of her life.

Daring Pose of a Flagpole Painter

James Raney of San Francisco is the champion steeple climber and flagpole painter on the Pacific coast.

Raney is a thin, wiry man, pale and somewhat weary looking, not at all the sort of person that one would expect to find in possession of the courage and reserve force which he must necessarily have. It is a type which history has made us familiar with, for many men of Raney's build have distinguished themselves by the doing of desperate deeds, and all of them owe their distinction to the cold, clear and undisturbed brain which Raney's trade demands of him.

So little does the terrifying height at which he works trouble him that he voluntarily and cheerfully climbed the flagstaff on the top of the Firemen's Fund building and stood with his feet on the pole just where the rod that holds the ball springs from the main shaft and raised himself to his full height without support, at least 120 feet from the ground, where he was photographed.

"I have painted during the last five years nearly all the high flagpoles in San Francisco," said Raney to a reporter. "The pole which I was photographed on at the Firemen's Fund building was not by any means the highest.

"I remember climbing a pole in Seattle, Wash., that was 160 feet from the ground. That was a flagpole having its foundations in the ground, not placed on the top of a building. That was the highest pole that I have ever climbed. I have been higher than that on buildings many times."

Risked Her Life to Save Two Children

At the congress of life savers which was recently held at Nantes, France, the life saving work of American women received particular attention, inasmuch as they contribute not a little to the life saving service in the United States.

Not only does an association of women known as the Blue Anchor society supply all the life saving stations with clothing for shipwrecked people, but the wives and daughters of the station keepers frequently do heroic work in the rescue of drowning persons. Perhaps no record of life saving is deserving more praise than the recent exploit of Miss Lillian Damon of Boston, who rescued two children from watery graves at Milford, Conn.

When Miss Damon went to Milford a couple of months ago to enjoy a summer outing, she could not swim a stroke, but she soon became an expert and just in time to save the lives of Ruth and Frank Stanley, eleven and nine years old respectively.

The children were playing in a boat on Long Island sound when the boat became unfastened from its moorings and started to drift away with the tide. They screamed and jumped into the water.

Miss Damon, who was fully dressed, plunged into the water from the shore. She swam a hundred feet to where the children were struggling, locked in each other's arms. Grasping the girl by the hair, she soon had the little ones on shore, where they had to be rolled on a barrel before they were revived.

Miss Damon is not yet twenty years old. She is a tall and graceful blond of beautiful face and figure.

MEN IN OLIVE DRAB

NEW UNIFORM PRESCRIBED FOR UNCLE SAM'S FIGHTERS.

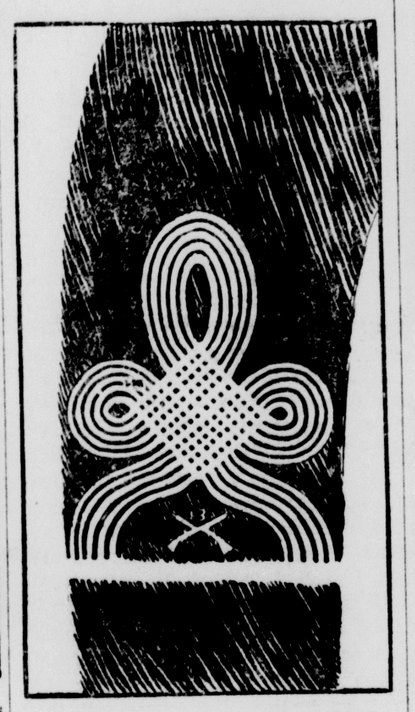

Gold Braid and Profuse Ornamentation Take the Place of Simplicity. Chaplain a Somber Figure — Foreign Medals Tabooed.

Secretary of War Root has ordered that Uncle Sam's fighters, from general of the army to private soldier, shall be arrayed henceforth in habiliments more suggestive of the grandeur and wealth of the nation than the modest uniform heretofore worn.

The prevailing color of the new uniform is to be olive drab for active duty in the field, because this color is less noticeable at a distance.

But it must not be supposed that the "man in blue" is to be entirely eliminated. He will be very much in evidence except when in a campaign. On all dress occasions blue is still to be the color of the uniform, but when doing duty in the field Uncle Sam's soldiers will be the "men in olive drab."

The new uniform is decidedly fetching. The full dress coat is to be a double breasted frock of dark blue cloth, with standing collar of dark blue velvet, the skirt reaching from one-half to three-quarters the distance from the point of the hip to the bend of the knee. The shoulder knots are of gold wire cord. The collar will be ornamented with a band of oak leaves embroidered in gold and extending all the way around. If the officer has not the rank of general, then the collar ornament will consist of two bands of one-half inch gold wire braid, passing all around the collar and parallel with its edge, on a ground of silk or cloth of the collar of the corps, department or arm of the service.

The full dress trousers for general officers will be of dark blue cloth, with two stripes of gold wire braid half an inch wide with a quarter of an inch interval between them mounted upon dark blue velvet and placed along the outside seam of the trousers.

The enlisted men will retain for dress purposes a uniform of dark blue, but the service coat will be of olive drab, the same color as prescribed for officers. In tropical climates white will be worn, and for troops serving in cold climates a special uniform has been adopted. A shoulder strap will be placed on each shoulder, and in the case of officers the collar will be ornamented.

In the new regulations the chaplain's uniform has been simplified. His full dress uniform will consist of a black frock coat with standing collar, one row of nine black silk buttons on the breast. His trousers will be of plain black or blue black cloth, with stripe of lustrous mohair braid along the outside seam. He will wear a black hat, white gloves and blackened shoes.

One thing that the department's order forbids that will cause some dissatisfaction among the men who have them is that no decorations received from a foreign government shall be worn by officers or men while on duty with United States troops.

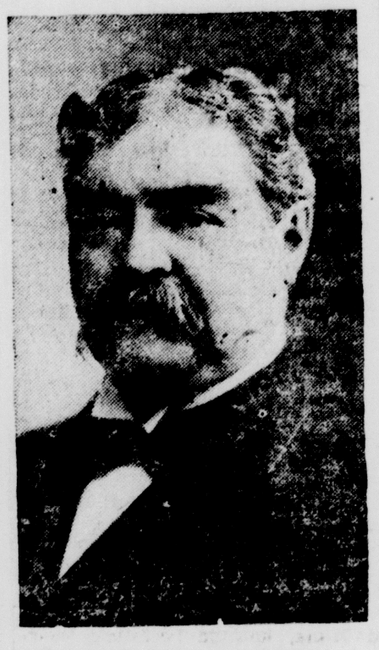

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

President Roosevelt to Attend Their Encampment at Detroit.

It is expected that 50,000 members of the Society of Spanish War Veterans will attend the annual encampment to be held at Detroit Sept. 22 to 25, inclusive. The programme as partially announced is as follows:

Monday morning, Sept. 22, opening of convention; address by President Roosevelt; afternoon 2 p. m., big parade of all military, semimilitary and civic bodies. The president will head the parade to the reviewing stand, where the parade will be reviewed by the president and invited guests. At 4 p. m., lake ride for the president, national officers of the Spanish war veterans and invited guests. Evening, a banquet in honor of the president and the Spanish war veterans.

Tuesday morning, time taken up with the session of the convention; Tuesday afternoon, boat ride and lunch for invited guests, national officers of Spanish war veterans and delegates.

Wednesday morning, time occupied by the session of the convention; evening, camp fire, entertainment, lunch and general good time at Light Guard armory.

Thursday morning, the closing session of the convention.

President Roosevelt will arrive in Detroit Sunday morning, and after attending church he will lunch with General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. In the afternoon he will be entertained by the committee with a drive to places of interest. That the encampment will be a great success is fully assured.

Detroit's executive committee having the arrangements in charge for entertaining the delegates and visiting comrades is composed of the leading men of that city, among them being Mayor William C. Maybury and General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. General Alger is chairman of the committee on reception. Mayor William C. Maybury is chairman of the executive committee and has the assistance of the leading business men of Detroit, as well as the Spanish war veterans of that city. There are about 1,200 members in Detroit.

NEW SURGEON GENERAL.

Has Seen Much Service In Indian Campaigns.

Colonel Robert Maitland O'Reilly, the new surgeon general of the army, has for a number of years been chief medical officer of the department of California, stationed at San Francisco, until ordered to Washington to relieve Surgeon General William H. Forwood, who retires under the age limit.

Colonel O'Reilly is a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of the medical department of the university of Pennsylvania. He entered the regular army in August, 1862, and did hospital duty during the civil war, much of the time as field surgeon at the front.

In April, 1867, Colonel O'Reilly was appointed an assistant surgeon with the rank of first lieutenant, and accompanied recruits to California and Arizona. The greater part of his service for several years was in the west, where he accompanied the troops on various Indian expeditions. Advanced to the position of post surgeon he has served at the most important army posts throughout the country.

Dispensia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Impoverished Blood and General Exhaustion.

During the last year thousands of Americans have flocked to Germany, to avail themselves of the wonderful curative powers of the famed

TRAUBENKUR OR GRAPE CURE

The fame of these cures for such diseases is world-wide and the astonishing results have been recognized by physicians the world over. There can be no doubt or no quibbling. The grape cures have restored health to many thousands of Americans. Their absolute worth is no longer questioned, but only a few can afford the time and expense of a visit to the Traubenkur. It has remained for an American Chemical Co., the Lightning Medicine Co., of Rock Island, to combine all the best elements of the Traubenkur in and it has now been placed on general sale throughout America in drug stores at only 50 cents per bottle, so the suffering of all classes have the full benefit of these great curative agents.

Think what it mens to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

LOUIS BONHART of Lawrence, Neb., says: "I have been afflicted with stomach trouble for the past three years. At times it grew so severe and annoying that I was compelled to quit work for two or three days each week, when the pains in my stomach were beyond endurance. I took but three bottles and am today perfectly well. I used nothing else but Mull's Grape Tonic. To me it is more than worth its weight in gold."

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the results. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

If used with a little chopped ice it will be found a delicious drink.

JOHN BROWN'S HOMES

MOVEMENTS TO PRESERVE THEM AS HISTORIC MEMORIALS.

How Connecticut Is Looking After a Homestead Once Owned by the Antislavery Hero — Adirondack Home Needs Attention.

A movement which might be described as a John Brown revival seems to be well under way. Efforts are being made to preserve as historical monuments the various houses where the pioneer abolitionist lived during his varied career.

In Connecticut there has been organized the John Brown association. Its special object is to maintain the old Brown homestead in West Torrington, Conn. The association is hunting for a caretaker who will occupy the hundred acres of farm rent free and keep off relic hunters. Its members believe that the old house in a good state of preservation will be a far better memorial than the monument to be erected with the $1,000 appropriated for that purpose by the last Connecticut legislature.

The Adirondack homestead of John Brown, near North Elba, N. Y., where he spent his last days and where his ashes lie at rest, is also sadly in need of attention. Visitors have noticed that the historic farm is in worse condition than it has been in years, and they say the state of New York should do something to preserve the place. Summer guests at the various hotels in the vicinity who have been making their annual pilgrimages to the one time home and grave of the antislavery hero have expressed themselves indignantly over the condition in which they find the buildings and especially the house.

The present caretaker of the place is Mr. Reuben Lawrence, and residents of the locality, who have known him for years as a thrifty, industrious man, know that whatever blame for the present condition of the John Brown farm may rightly exist none can attach to him. The rear portion of the house has not been repaired since Brown built it years ago, and now it is scarcely habitable, although Mr. Lawrence's family are obliged to use it for lack of room. The floor timbers were originally supported by huge logs. These have rotted away, allowing the floor to sink and become unsafe. The dropping away of these timbers has also had its effect upon the whole rear portion of the house, causing the roof to sag. In addition the old shingles have started up so that the roof leaks badly. It is asserted that the total repairs needed on all the buildings would not cost over $1,000.

Another matter which should receive prompt attention is the proper marking of the graves of John Brown's two sons, Oliver and Watson, buried beside their father. These graves are now simply marked by plain wooden stakes bearing no inscriptions whatever. The original stone planted above John Brown's grave was some years ago covered with a wooden frame having a glass front. This still stands and has served to protect the stone. This stone is appropriately inscribed, as is also the huge bowlder at the head of all three graves. It was Brown's last wish that his body be laid at rest beside this great stone he had learned to love in early life.

That John Brown thought much of his peaceful little Adirondack home this last wish reveals. It was not the place of his birth. He had lived in many larger places in the more fertile lands of the west. In the milder climates he had spent portions of his life. But it was John Brown the man, not John Brown the reformer, who made that last simple request. Worn out in a fruitless endeavor, deserted by friends, facing death, John Brown's strife sickened heart yearned again for that little green dip in the Adirondack hills, for the soughing of the trees, for the birds, for the sunshine, for the rolling fields and the blue hills beyond, for that home where he had spent fourteen of the pleasantest years of his life. And he asked to be buried beside the great bowlder where he had built that little home many years before.

The request was heeded, and his bones lie beside the great bowlder, and floating in the mountain breezes the stars and stripes high overhead proclaim to the country for miles around that within that little iron railed inclosure is a spot of sacred ground.

A RETROSPECT OF THE TENNIS SEASON.

English Invasion the Year's Principal Feature—Dohertys Are Superb Players.

Greatest of all tennis players are the Doherty brothers of England, and their victorious career at the various tournaments in which they have participated shows them to have mastered the game to a sensational degree. These British brothers, in fact, have contributed largely to the success and picturesqueness of probably the most interesting season in the history of American tennis.

Beginning early in the spring, east, west, north and south the racket wielders evinced active interest in local, state and sectional tournaments, determining to place the game once more in the high position it held before golf, cycling, etc., robbed it of its supremacy. The measure of their success can readily be noted by glancing over the records of the year. Entries have doubled, attendance at matches doubled and expenditure tripled. Surely this is a vindication if any one deems that tennis needs vindicating.

Probably the greatest surprise of the year was the defeat by the Dohertys of Holcombe Ward of Orange, N. J., and Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis in the international and national championship doubles. While it was generally conceded on this side during the summer that the Britons had an admirable chance to carry home the doubles title, few impartial observers who had gone over the situation carefully could see where they could worst the American champions. A comparison of the two doubles teams on a strict form basis gave a very bright aspect to the American side of the question, but after the visitors arrived and showed at Longwood, Mass., that they were playing a game nothing short of superlative the Yankee hearts began to beat with less confidence.

In the international matches at Bay Ridge, New York, the Britons won out simply through superior endurance. They have the art of saving strength down to a science, and, although Ward and Davis took the first set in easy fashion, the visitors never let that fact bother them for a moment. They seldom made an unnecessary move, never making an effort to get a return that appeared out of reach. In this particular they presented a sharp contrast to the Americans, who tried for almost everything that came over the net. Consequently, while the Britishers did not play a spectacular game at all times, they reserved every ounce of energy for the final games. Their victory in the last three sets at Bay Ridge showed the superiority of their studied method.

In few contests on this side did the Dohertys start out in winning form.

S. F. DOHERTY, WHO DEFEATED CHAMPION LAENED AT BAY RIDGE, NEW YORK.

Both in individual matches and doubles the opening games invariably went to the Americans. At Newport, in the national championships, however, they took the doubles championship in straight sets.

A GREAT PEACH CROP

THAT WHICH GREW AROUND NEW YORK IN THE YEAR 1679.

Apparently the Luscious Fruit Was More Abundant on Manhattan Island Than Anything Else Except Bad Barbados Rum.

Books of travel usually contain a vast amount of matter that is unimportant and a good deal that is untrue, besides not a little that is uninteresting, and the old travelers who wrote about their voyages to New York furnished few exceptions to the rule.

Tantalizing, therefore, is the diary of an observer who visited these shores in 1679; who had a reportorial instinct for the important, the true and the interesting; whose journeys covered the entire territory now known as the Greater New York; who wrote fully and graphically of all he saw, and whose observations have all come down to us, with the exception of some thirty pages describing New York city at the time of his visit. Exactly that which would now be most valuable is lost; but, from what remains, we can learn a good deal about the New York of those days.

Jaspar Dankers is the writer whose impressions of New York have thus been lost to the world, and in what has been preserved of his writings the chief thing that forces its attention upon the reader is the magnitude of the peach crop in these parts during the year of his visit. He was a religious enthusiast, the leader of the Labadists, a sect that flourished briefly on three continents toward the close of the seventeenth century, and his voyage companion was a minister of the same sect.

But there is little of this in his diary against a great deal of what they ate and drank, and on occasions when they went to the little church in the fort where the custom house is now the fact is mentioned with some apologies, one service being attended "in order to avoid scandal and for other reasons" and others because "my companion is endeavoring to learn the language."

But on the very day of their arrival in New York, Sept. 23, 1679, we begin to hear of the eatables and drinkables, especially the peaches.

"He first took us to the house of one of his friends, who welcomed him and us and offered us some of the fruit of the country, very fine peaches and full grown apples, which filled our hearts with thankfulness to God. This fruit was exceedingly fair and good and pleasant to the taste, much better than that in Holland or elsewhere, though I believe our long fasting and craving for food made it so agreeable. After taking a glass of madeira we proceeded. As we walked along we saw in different gardens trees full of apples of various kinds and so laden with peaches and other fruit that one might doubt whether there were more leaves or fruit on them. I have never seen in Europe in the best seasons such an overflowing abundance. When we finished our tour and had given our guides several letters to deliver, we returned to his father-in-law's. He regaled us in the evening with milk, which refreshed us much. We had so many peaches set before us that we were timid about eating them, though we experienced no ill effects from them."

And the next day, Sunday, the record opens with this:

"I was surprised on waking to find my comrade had already dressed himself and breakfasted upon peaches."

So it went every day. Toward the end of the week they crossed the ferry (for less than half a cent apiece) to Long Island, where the people made them "very welcome, sharing with us bountifully whatever they had, whether it was milk, cider, fruit or tobacco, and especially, first and most of all, miserable rum, which had been brought from Barbados and which is called by the Dutch 'kill-devil.' These people are very fond of it, and most of them extravagantly so, although it is very dear and has a bad taste."

But on Long Island, as elsewhere, the peaches were as good as the rum was bad.

"It is impossible to tell how many peach trees we passed, all laden with fruit to breaking down and many of them actually broken down. We came to a place surrounded with such trees from which so many had fallen off that the ground could not be discerned and you could not put your foot down without trampling them, and notwithstanding such large quantities had fallen off the trees still were as full as they could bear. The hogs and other animals mostly feed on them."

The peaches in Harlem were as plentiful and still more delicious. When they went up to the north end of Manhattan island, we find this notice:

"Before we left (Harlem) we did not omit supplying ourselves with peaches, which grew in an orchard along the road. The whole ground was covered with them and with apples, lying upon the new grain with which the orchard was planted. The peaches were the most delicious we had yet eaten."

But they need not have taken the precaution mentioned, for even after crossing Spuyten Duyvil they found more peaches than ever.

"We came to a road which was entirely covered with peaches. We asked the boy why they left them lie there and did not let the hogs eat them. He answered: 'We do not know what to do with them, there are so many. The hogs are satiated with them and will not eat any more.' From this we may judge of the quantity of them."—H. H. N. in New York Mail and Express.

CATCHING A THIEF.

An Old Method Utilized by a German Officer in China.

Thirty dollars was stolen at the Officers' club in Tientsin, China, and the members of the club resolved, if possible, to catch the thief.

A German captain volunteered to manage the affair, and the first thing he did was to summon all the native servants of the club. He then said to them:

"Some money has been stolen here, and I am looking for the thief. I shall find him in an hour, not before, since I need that much time in order to get instructions from a celebrated magician in Germany."

An hour later all the servants were again summoned, but this time into a dark room, in the middle of which stood the table on which the money stolen had been laid.

"Each of you, now," said the officer, "must go up to that table and press on it first your right and then your left hand, and when that is done you must raise your two hands over your head and step into the next room."

The servants did so, and as the last one stepped into the adjoining room the officer followed him, and after looking for a few moments at the many uplifted hands he pointed to one man and said, "You are the thief." The Chinaman to whom he pointed nearly fell to the ground with fright and admitted his guilt and promised to make restitution.

Very simple was the method adopted by the officer for discovering the culprit. While the native servants supposed that his spirit was in Germany in communion with the celebrated magician he was carefully smearing the surface of the table in the dark room with fat and oil, which he then blackened by means of soot. The innocent servants naturally pressed their hands on the table, according to his instructions, but the culprit, though superstitious, did not do so.

As a result, while the uplifted hands of all the others were coal black, his were of a natural color, and thus his guilt was clearly proved.—Detroit Free Press.

KILLED THE SPIDER.

Deadly Influence of a Small Magnet on the Insect.

An experiment made by a scientist to test the influence which a magnet will have on a spider is of interest. The magnet employed was a small steel one of the U shape, the legs of which were about two and a half inches long by one-half inch wide and one-sixth of an inch thick, the distance between the poles being about one-quarter of an inch.

Having noticed a small spider actively running along his armchair, he brushed it off upon the carpet, where it began to run, but was somewhat impeded by the roughness of the fabric. He now slid the magnet along the carpet, following after the spider, till the ends of the poles were within a quarter of an inch of it. The animal, without being touched, almost instantly stopped, and on withdrawing the magnet the spider continued on his journey.

The experimenter then placed the magnet within half an inch in front of the spider, and, withdrawing it slowly, the latter followed it in every direction which the magnet took, both in straight and circuitous routes.

Gradually, however, the spider became so strongly magnetized as to be immovable for several minutes, the magnetic influence seeming to lose its further power. On withdrawing the magnet altogether the spider began to recover somewhat.

The scientist ultimately placed a tumbler over the spider and the magnet, covering them both completely, and at the expiration of several minutes the spider, after a struggle to escape from the strong influence which the magnet exercised over it, was dead.—Exchange.

Talisman Emerald Of Oajaca

Precious Stone Revered By Mexican Indians

For years, ever since Mexico was opened to the white man, every traveler to that romantic land has heard of the emerald of Oajaca. Rumor said that it was huge almost beyond belief. Whatever its size, it was certain that the Indians believed in its magic properties. No white man ever saw it, but now an American woman has succeeded, through a sister woman's gratitude, where men found failure.

This emerald of Oajaca has for ages been the object of covetous interest on the part of Spanish viceroys, Mexican presidents and provincial governors. Great dealers in precious stones have sought it, too, but the Indians as the lineal descendants of the Aztecs, to whom the emerald is supposed to have originally belonged, hold it in superstitious reverence and such safe keeping that until recent years little but unconfirmed legend of the stone's existence was known.

A few years ago President Diaz became so interested in the matter that he decided to prove the truth or fallacy of the reports of this emerald's size and value. Without warning he suddenly appeared in the village where it was said the gem was secreted. He summoned the people into the plaza and announced that if they would show him the emerald known to be in their possession he would in return proclaim a public holiday and entertain them with a fiesta at his own expense. He promised as president and by virtue of the same blood in his and their veins that if they would accede to his request he would not attempt to take the emerald from them.

Upon this a prolonged consultation ensued among the Indians, the result of which was that from afar off in the crowd one of them held up at arm's length between his forefinger and thumb the famous emerald, scintillating in the rays of the sun. Diaz was desirous of a closer inspection and, turning to his guards, ordered the man to be brought to him. His actions if not his words were at once considered by the Indians to be suspicious, so they promptly raised a tumult, and, amid shouts of "Viva Porfirio Diaz!" and "Viva la fiesta!" the man and the emerald disappeared, and this was the only glimpse the powerful president was able to obtain of it.

An American woman had better fortune. It happened that her husband was appointed to superintend the medical department of the railroad being built through Oajaca and incidentally saved the life of an Indian woman. In her gratitude this woman begged to be allowed to make some recompense, as the American doctor had refused to accept a fee. But half in jest he replied that if she would show him the Oajaca emerald he would be satisfied. At this the woman seemed greatly disturbed. She at first declared she knew nothing about it, but on being pressed further by the doctor's wife she admitted knowing where it was hidden. Finally she agreed that if the doctor would solemnly promise to absent himself she would obtain the stone and show it to his wife. For some unexplained reason she held so steadfastly to this point that the wife must be alone when the emerald was produced that it was yielded, though much to the doctor's disappointment.

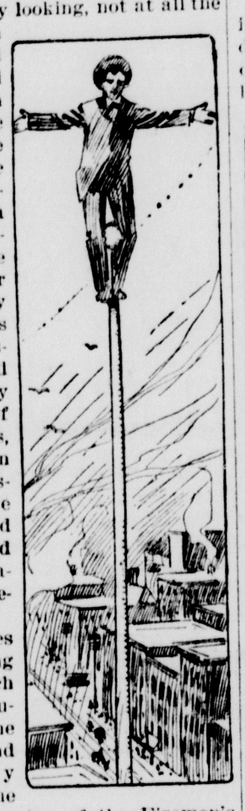

So one morning shortly after the Indian woman appeared at the physician's temporary residence. She made sure that the doctor's wife and herself were alone. Then she produced the emerald from a fold of her clothing. For about a minute only was the doctor's wife permitted to inspect the gem while it was held securely in the Indian woman's fingers. In size, according to the fortunate visitor's account, the stone is as large as a pigeon's egg, crudely polished and of a rich, grass green color. In its depths she noticed a few black spots or flaws, which go far to prove that it is a genuine emerald and not volcanic glass, as has been suggested. The purest emeralds are seldom without flaws, this being one of the tests.

In great haste the Indian woman again secreted the gem and went out but one curious circumstance the doctor and his wife remarked subsequently. During the remainder of their stay in the village, though they met the woman several times, neither by word or sign would she recognize their previous relations. She treated them as absolute strangers. To her mind the risk she had run in showing the talisman of her tribe was full compensation for the service rendered. The general belief is that the stone is not secreted in any place, but is concealed on the person of one of the Indians and passed on as circumstances may require. If such is the case, the woman must have obtained the gem by stealth, and during the time it was in her possession she was doubtless in no little danger of her life.

Daring Pose of a Flagpole Painter

James Raney of San Francisco is the champion steeple climber and flagpole painter on the Pacific coast.

Raney is a thin, wiry man, pale and somewhat weary looking, not at all the sort of person that one would expect to find in possession of the courage and reserve force which he must necessarily have. It is a type which history has made us familiar with, for many men of Raney's build have distinguished themselves by the doing of desperate deeds, and all of them owe their distinction to the cold, clear and undisturbed brain which Raney's trade demands of him.

So little does the terrifying height at which he works trouble him that he voluntarily and cheerfully climbed the flagstaff on the top of the Firemen's Fund building and stood with his feet on the pole just where the rod that holds the ball springs from the main shaft and raised himself to his full height without support, at least 120 feet from the ground, where he was photographed.

"I have painted during the last five years nearly all the high flagpoles in San Francisco," said Raney to a reporter. "The pole which I was photographed on at the Firemen's Fund building was not by any means the highest.

"I remember climbing a pole in Seattle, Wash., that was 160 feet from the ground. That was a flagpole having its foundations in the ground, not placed on the top of a building. That was the highest pole that I have ever climbed. I have been higher than that on buildings many times."

Risked Her Life to Save Two Children

At the congress of life savers which was recently held at Nantes, France, the life saving work of American women received particular attention, inasmuch as they contribute not a little to the life saving service in the United States.

Not only does an association of women known as the Blue Anchor society supply all the life saving stations with clothing for shipwrecked people, but the wives and daughters of the station keepers frequently do heroic work in the rescue of drowning persons. Perhaps no record of life saving is deserving more praise than the recent exploit of Miss Lillian Damon of Boston, who rescued two children from watery graves at Milford, Conn.

When Miss Damon went to Milford a couple of months ago to enjoy a summer outing, she could not swim a stroke, but she soon became an expert and just in time to save the lives of Ruth and Frank Stanley, eleven and nine years old respectively.

The children were playing in a boat on Long Island sound when the boat became unfastened from its moorings and started to drift away with the tide. They screamed and jumped into the water.

Miss Damon, who was fully dressed, plunged into the water from the shore. She swam a hundred feet to where the children were struggling, locked in each other's arms. Grasping the girl by the hair, she soon had the little ones on shore, where they had to be rolled on a barrel before they were revived.

Miss Damon is not yet twenty years old. She is a tall and graceful blond of beautiful face and figure.

MEN IN OLIVE DRAB

NEW UNIFORM PRESCRIBED FOR UNCLE SAM'S FIGHTERS.

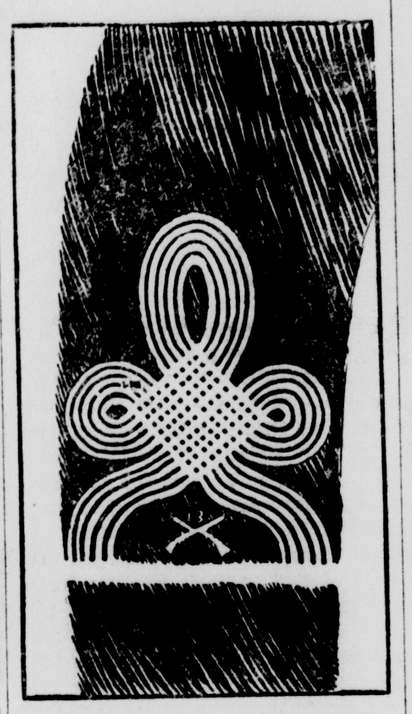

Gold Braid and Profuse Ornamentation Take the Place of Simplicity. Chaplain a Somber Figure—Foreign Medals Tabooed.

Secretary of War Root has ordered that Uncle Sam's fighters, from general of the army to private soldier, shall be arrayed henceforth in habiliments more suggestive of the grandeur and wealth of the nation than the modest uniform heretofore worn.

The prevailing color of the new uniform is to be olive drab for active duty in the field, because this color is less noticeable at a distance.

But it must not be supposed that the "man in blue" is to be entirely eliminated. He will be very much in evidence except when in a campaign. On all dress occasions blue is still to be the color of the uniform, but when doing duty in the field Uncle Sam's soldiers will be the "men in olive drab."

The new uniform is decidedly fetching. The full dress coat is to be a double breasted frock of dark blue cloth, with standing collar of dark blue velvet, the skirt reaching from one-half to three-quarters the distance from the point of the hip to the bend of the knee. The shoulder knots are of gold wire cord. The collar will be ornamented with a band of oak leaves embroidered in gold and extending all the way around. If the officer has not the rank of general, then the collar ornament will consist of two bands of one-half inch gold wire braid, passing all around the collar and parallel with its edge, on a ground of silk or cloth of the collar of the corps, department or arm of the service.

The full dress trousers for general officers will be of dark blue cloth, with two stripes of gold wire braid half an inch wide with a quarter of an inch interval between them mounted upon dark blue velvet and placed along the outside seam of the trousers.

The enlisted men will retain for dress purposes a uniform of dark blue, but the service coat will be of olive drab, the same color as prescribed for officers. In tropical climates white will be worn, and for troops serving in cold climates a special uniform has been adopted. A shoulder strap will be placed on each shoulder, and in the case of officers the collar will be ornamented.

In the new regulations the chaplain's uniform has been simplified. His full dress uniform will consist of a black frock coat with standing collar, one row of nine black silk buttons on the breast. His trousers will be of plain black or blue black cloth, with stripe of lustrous mohair braid along the outside seam. He will wear a black hat, white gloves and blackened shoes.

One thing that the department's order forbids that will cause some dissatisfaction among the men who have them is that no decorations received from a foreign government shall be worn by officers or men while on duty with United States troops.

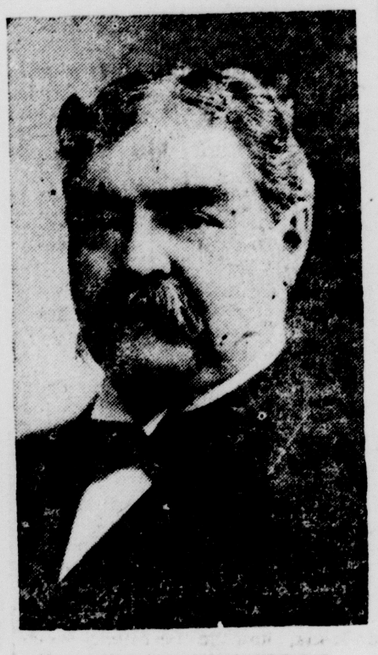

For forty years Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been curing summer complaint, dysentery, diarrhoea, bloody flux, pain in the stomach, and it has never yet failed to do everything claimed for it.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

President Roosevelt to Attend Their Encampment at Detroit.

It is expected that 50,000 members of the Society of Spanish War Veterans will attend the annual encampment to be held at Detroit Sept. 22 to 25, inclusive. The programme as partially announced is as follows:

Monday morning, Sept. 22, opening of convention; address by President Roosevelt; afternoon 2 p. m., big parade of all military, semimilitary and civic bodies. The president will head the parade to the reviewing stand, where the parade will be reviewed by the president and invited guests. At 4 p. m., lake ride for the president, national officers of the Spanish war veterans and invited guests. Evening, a banquet in honor of the president and the Spanish war veterans.

MAYOR MAYBURY OF DETROIT.

Tuesday morning, time taken up with the session of the convention; Tuesday afternoon, boat ride and lunch for invited guests, national officers of Spanish war veterans and delegates.

Wednesday morning, time occupied by the session of the convention; evening, camp fire, entertainment, lunch and general good time at Light Guard armory.

Thursday morning, the closing session of the convention.

President Roosevelt will arrive in Detroit Sunday morning, and after attending church he will lunch with General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. In the afternoon he will be entertained by the committee with a drive to places of interest. That the encampment will be a great success is fully assured.

Detroit's executive committee having the arrangements in charge for entertaining the delegates and visiting comrades is composed of the leading men of that city, among them being Mayor William C. Maybury and General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war. General Alger is chairman of the committee on reception. Mayor William C. Maybury is chairman of the executive committee and has the assistance of the leading business men of Detroit, as well as the Spanish war veterans of that city. There are about 1,200 members in Detroit.

NEW SURGEON GENERAL.

Has Seen Much Service In Indian Campaigns.

Colonel Robert Maitland O'Reilly, the new surgeon general of the army, has for a number of years been chief medical officer of the department of California, stationed at San Francisco, until ordered to Washington to relieve Surgeon General William H. Forwood, who retires under the age limit.

Colonel O'Reilly is a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of the medical department of the university of Pennsylvania. He entered the regular army in August, 1862, and did hospital duty during the civil war, much of the time as field surgeon at the front.

In April, 1867, Colonel O'Reilly was appointed an assistant surgeon with the rank of first lieutenant, and accompanied recruits to California and Arizona. The greater part of his service for several years was in the west, where he accompanied the troops on various Indian expeditions. Advanced to the position of post surgeon he has served at the most important army posts throughout the country.

Think What It Means

Dispensia, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Impoverished Blood and General Exhaustion.

During the last year thousands of Americans have flocked to Germany, to avail themselves of the wonderful curative powers of the famed

TRAUBENKUR OR GRAPE CURE

The fame of these cures for such diseases is world-wide and the astonishing results have been recognized by physicians the world over. There can be no doubt or no quibbling. The grape cures have restored health to many thousands of Americans. Their absolute worth is no longer questioned, but only a few can afford the time and expense of a visit to the Traubenkur. It has remained for an American Chemical Co., the Lightning Medicine Co., of Rock Island, to combine all the best elements of the Traubenkur in and it has now been placed on general sale throughout America in drug stores at only 50 cents per bottle, so the suffering of all classes have the full benefit of these great curative agents.

Think what it mens to you if you are suffering from any of these troubles. It is the most important development in a medical way in America for a decade.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

LOUIS BONHART of Lawrence, Neb., says: "I have been afflicted with stomach trouble for the past three years. At times it grew so severe and annoying that I was compelled to quit work for two or three days each week, when the pains in my stomach were beyond endurance. I took but three bottles and am today perfectly well. I used nothing else but Mull's Grape Tonic. To me it is more than worth its weight in gold."

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, constipation, liver or kidney trouble, or nervous exhaustion you owe it to yourself to give Mull's Grape Tonic a trial. The cost is small, and you will be astounded and gratified at the results. Our faith in it is so absolute that those who buy it and get no benefit may have their money back.

If used with a little chopped ice it will be found a delicious drink.

JOHN BROWN'S HOMES

MOVEMENTS TO PRESERVE THEM AS HISTORIC MEMORIALS.

How Connecticut Is Looking After a Homestead Once Owned by the Antislavery Hero — Adirondack Home Needs Attention.

A movement which might be described as a John Brown revival seems to be well under way. Efforts are being made to preserve as historical monuments the various houses where the pioneer abolitionist lived during his varied career.

In Connecticut there has been organized the John Brown association. Its special object is to maintain the old Brown homestead in West Torrington, Conn. The association is hunting for a caretaker who will occupy the hundred acres of farm rent free and keep off relic hunters. Its members believe that the old house in a good state of preservation will be a far better memorial than the monument to be erected with the $1,000 appropriated for that purpose by the last Connecticut legislature.

The Adirondack homestead of John Brown, near North Elba, N. Y., where he spent his last days and where his ashes lie at rest, is also sadly in need of attention. Visitors have noticed that the historic farm is in worse condition than it has been in years, and they say the state of New York should do something to preserve the place. Summer guests at the various hotels in the vicinity who have been making their annual pilgrimages to the one time home and grave of the antislavery hero have expressed themselves indignantly over the condition in which they find the buildings and especially the house.

The present caretaker of the place is Mr. Reuben Lawrence, and residents of the locality, who have known him for years as a thrifty, industrious man, know that whatever blame for the present condition of the John Brown farm may rightly exist none can attach to him. The rear portion of the house has not been repaired since Brown built it years ago, and now it is scarcely habitable, although Mr. Lawrence's family are obliged to use it for lack of room. The floor timbers were originally supported by huge logs. These have rotted away, allowing the floor to sink and become unsafe. The dropping away of these timbers has also had its effect upon the whole rear portion of the house, causing the roof to sag. In addition the old shingles have started up so that the roof leaks badly. It is asserted that the total repairs needed on all the buildings would not cost over $1,000.

Another matter which should receive prompt attention is the proper marking of the graves of John Brown's two sons, Oliver and Watson, buried beside their father. These graves are now simply marked by plain wooden stakes bearing no inscriptions whatever. The original stone planted above John Brown's grave was some years ago covered with a wooden frame having a glass front. This still stands and has served to protect the stone. This stone is appropriately inscribed, as is also the huge bowlder at the head of all three graves. It was Brown's last wish that his body be laid at rest beside this great stone he had learned to love in early life.

That John Brown thought much of his peaceful little Adirondack home this last wish reveals. It was not the place of his birth. He had lived in many larger places in the more fertile lands of the west. In the milder climates he had spent portions of his life. But it was John Brown the man, not John Brown the reformer, who made that last simple request. Worn out in a fruitless endeavor, deserted by friends, facing death, John Brown's strife sickened heart yearned again for that little green dip in the Adirondack hills, for the soughing of the trees, for the birds, for the sunshine, for the rolling fields and the blue hills beyond, for that home where he had spent fourteen of the pleasantest years of his life. And he asked to be buried beside the great bowlder where he had built that little home many years before.

The request was heeded, and his bones lie beside the great bowlder, and floating in the mountain breezes the stars and stripes high overhead proclaim to the country for miles around that within that little iron railed inclosure is a spot of sacred ground.

A RETROSPECT OF THE TENNIS SEASON.

English Invasion the Year's Principal Feature—Dohertys Are Superb Players.

Greatest of all tennis players are the Doherty brothers of England, and their victorious career at the various tournaments in which they have participated shows them to have mastered the game to a sensational degree. These British brothers, in fact, have contributed largely to the success and picturesqueness of probably the most interesting season in the history of American tennis.

Beginning early in the spring, east, west, north and south the racket wielders evinced active interest in local, state and sectional tournaments, determining to place the game once more in the high position it held before golf, cycling, etc., robbed it of its supremacy. The measure of their success can readily be noted by glancing over the records of the year. Entries have doubled, attendance at matches doubled and expenditure tripled. Surely this is a vindication if any one deems that tennis needs vindicating.

Probably the greatest surprise of the year was the defeat by the Dohertys of Holcombe Ward of Orange, N. J., and Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis in the international and national championship doubles. While it was generally conceded on this side during the summer that the Britons had an admirable chance to carry home the doubles title, few impartial observers who had gone over the situation carefully could see where they could worst the American champions. A comparison of the two doubles teams on a strict form basis gave a very bright aspect to the American side of the question, but after the visitors arrived and showed at Longwood, Mass., that they were playing a game nothing short of superlative the Yankee hearts began to beat with less confidence.

In the international matches at Bay Ridge, New York, the Britons won out simply through superior endurance. They have the art of saving strength down to a science, and, although Ward and Davis took the first set in easy fashion, the visitors never let that fact bother them for a moment. They seldom made an unnecessary move, never making an effort to get a return that appeared out of reach. In this particular they presented a sharp contrast to the Americans, who tried for almost everything that came over the net. Consequently, while the Britishers did not play a spectacular game at all times, they reserved every ounce of energy for the final games. Their victory in the last three sets at Bay Ridge showed the superiority of their studied method.

In few contests on this side did the Dohertys start out in winning form.

R. F. DOHERTY, WHO DEFEATED CHAMPION LARNED AT BAY RIDGE, NEW YORK.

Both in individual matches and doubles the opening games invariably went to the Americans. At Newport, in the national championships, however, they took the doubles championship in straight sets.

A GREAT PEACH CROP

THAT WHICH GREW AROUND NEW YORK IN THE YEAR 1679.

Apparently the Luscious Fruit Was More Abundant on Manhattan Island Than Anything Else Except Bad Barbados Rum.

Books of travel usually contain a vast amount of matter that is unimportant and a good deal that is untrue, besides not a little that is uninteresting, and the old travelers who wrote about their voyages to New York furnished few exceptions to the rule.

Tantalizing, therefore, is the diary of an observer who visited these shores in 1679; who had a reportorial instinct for the important, the true and the interesting; whose journeys covered the entire territory now known as the Greater New York; who wrote fully and graphically of all he saw, and whose observations have all come down to us, with the exception of some thirty pages describing New York city at the time of his visit. Exactly that which would now be most valuable is lost; but, from what remains, we can learn a good deal about the New York of those days.

Jaspar Dankers is the writer whose impressions of New York have thus been lost to the world, and in what has been preserved of his writings the chief thing that forces its attention upon the reader is the magnitude of the peach crop in these parts during the year of his visit. He was a religious enthusiast, the leader of the Labadists, a sect that flourished briefly on three continents toward the close of the seventeenth century, and his voyage companion was a minister of the same sect.

But there is little of this in his diary against a great deal of what they ate and drank, and on occasions when they went to the little church in the fort where the custom house is now the fact is mentioned with some apologies, one service being attended "in order to avoid scandal and for other reasons" and others because "my companion is endeavoring to learn the language."

But on the very day of their arrival in New York, Sept. 23, 1679, we begin to hear of the eatables and drinkables, especially the peaches.

"He first took us to the house of one of his friends, who welcomed him and us and offered us some of the fruit of the country, very fine peaches and full grown apples, which filled our hearts with thankfulness to God. This fruit was exceedingly fair and good and pleasant to the taste, much better than that in Holland or elsewhere, though I believe our long fasting and craving for food made it so agreeable. After taking a glass of madeira we proceeded. As we walked along we saw in different gardens trees full of apples of various kinds and so laden with peaches and other fruit that one might doubt whether there were more leaves or fruit on them. I have never seen in Europe in the best seasons such an overflowing abundance. When we finished our tour and had given our guides several letters to deliver, we returned to his father-in-law's. He regaled us in the evening with milk, which refreshed us much. We had so many peaches set before us that we were timid about eating them, though we experienced no ill effects from them."

And the next day, Sunday, the record opens with this:

"I was surprised on waking to find my comrade had already dressed himself and breakfasted upon peaches."

So it went every day. Toward the end of the week they crossed the ferry (for less than half a cent apiece) to Long Island, where the people made them "very welcome, sharing with us bountifully whatever they had, whether it was milk, cider, fruit or tobacco, and especially, first and most of all, miserable rum, which had been brought from Barbados and which is called by the Dutch 'kill-devil.' These people are very fond of it, and most of them extravagantly so, although it is very dear and has a bad taste."

But on Long Island, as elsewhere, the peaches were as good as the rum was bad.

"It is impossible to tell how many peach trees we passed, all laden with fruit to breaking down and many of them actually broken down. We came to a place surrounded with such trees from which so many had fallen off that the ground could not be discerned and you could not put your foot down without trampling them, and notwithstanding such large quantities had fallen off the trees still were as full as they could bear. The hogs and other animals mostly feed on them."

The peaches in Harlem were as plentiful and still more delicious. When they went up to the north end of Manhattan island, we find this notice:

"Before we left (Harlem) we did not omit supplying ourselves with peaches, which grew in an orchard along the road. The whole ground was covered with them and with apples, lying upon the new grain with which the orchard was planted. The peaches were the most delicious we had yet eaten."

But they need not have taken the precaution mentioned, for even after crossing Spuyten Duyvil they found more peaches than ever.

"We came to a road which was entirely covered with peaches. We asked the boy why they left them lie there and did not let the hogs eat them. He answered: 'We do not know what to do with them, there are so many. The hogs are satiated with them and will not eat any more.' From this we may judge of the quantity of them."—H. H. N. in New York Mail and Express.

CATCHING A THIEF.

An Old Method Utilized by a German Officer in China.

Thirty dollars was stolen at the Officers' club in Tientsin, China, and the members of the club resolved, if possible, to catch the thief.

A German captain volunteered to manage the affair, and the first thing he did was to summon all the native servants of the club. He then said to them:

"Some money has been stolen here, and I am looking for the thief. I shall find him in an hour, not before, since I need that much time in order to get instructions from a celebrated magician in Germany."

An hour later all the servants were again summoned, but this time into a dark room, in the middle of which stood the table on which the money stolen had been laid.

"Each of you, now," said the officer, "must go up to that table and press on it first your right and then your left hand, and when that is done you must raise your two hands over your head and step into the next room."

The servants did so, and as the last one stepped into the adjoining room the officer followed him, and after looking for a few moments at the many uplifted hands he pointed to one man and said, "You are the thief." The Chinaman to whom he pointed nearly fell to the ground with fright and admitted his guilt and promised to make restitution.

Very simple was the method adopted by the officer for discovering the culprit. While the native servants supposed that his spirit was in Germany in communion with the celebrated magician he was carefully smearing the surface of the table in the dark room with fat and oil, which he then blackened by means of soot. The innocent servants naturally pressed their hands on the table, according to his instructions, but the culprit, though superstitious, did not do so.

As a result, while the uplifted hands of all the others were coal black, his were of a natural color, and thus his guilt was clearly proved.—Detroit Free Press.

KILLED THE SPIDER.

Deadly Influence of a Small Magnet on the Insect.

An experiment made by a scientist to test the influence which a magnet will have on a spider is of interest. The magnet employed was a small steel one of the U shape, the legs of which were about two and a half inches long by one-half inch wide and one-sixth of an inch thick, the distance between the poles being about one-quarter of an inch.

Having noticed a small spider actively running along his armchair, he brushed it off upon the carpet, where it began to run, but was somewhat impeded by the roughness of the fabric. He now slid the magnet along the carpet, following after the spider, till the ends of the poles were within a quarter of an inch of it. The animal, without being touched, almost instantly stopped, and on withdrawing the magnet the spider continued on his journey.

The experimenter then placed the magnet within half an inch in front of the spider, and, withdrawing it slowly, the latter followed it in every direction which the magnet took, both in straight and circuitous routes.

Gradually, however, the spider became so strongly magnetized as to be immovable for several minutes, the magnetic influence seeming to lose its further power. On withdrawing the magnet altogether the spider began to recover somewhat.

The scientist ultimately placed a tumbler over the spider and the magnet, covering them both completely, and at the expiration of several minutes the spider, after a struggle to escape from the strong influence which the magnet exercised over it, was dead.—Exchange.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

I.—Ants.

HIGHEST of all the groups of the great division of the animal kingdom known as insects is the order hymenoptera, which name means "membrane winged." These insects are characterized by their thin, delicate wings, their strong, supple bodies, their powerful jaws and, commonly, a formidable sting. Most characteristic of all, however, is their very interesting habit of living together in colonies and acting in such a way as to be of service to one another.

The commonest representatives of this remarkable order are those which we call ants, bees and wasps, there being many different kinds of each. We have all become more or less familiar with the bees, and nearly every boy and girl knows that there are three kinds of bees in one hive—namely, the queen, the worker and the drone. This same fact is true of ants and wasps, there being in each case apparently three sexes. But careful investigation and patient watching of the development of the young have shown that the worker, or neuter, is really an undeveloped queen, or female, and that the conditions governing its development depend upon the wishes of the other insects and are regulated by the kind of food given to the insect or larva.

Now, some of my readers may wish to know why ants are put among the so called "membrane winged" insects when apparently they have no wings at all. The answer to this question might be found by tearing open the nest. Should the reader do so he would find that some of the ants have wings. These are the drones or males, and they are somewhat longer than the workers. They are seldom found outside the nest. He would also find an ant much larger than the drones. This is the queen. She has wings at first and flies with them, but soon bites them off and settles down in the nest.

Diagram of Typical Artificial Ants' Nest.

There are several species of ants common to this country. There is the tiny red ant, not more than a tenth of an inch long, which we so often find in the sugar box. There is a larger, very common reddish brown ant, which digs its nest in our lawns, in the road or even between the cracks in the pavement or cement walk. This ant is about a quarter of an inch long, and we often find it running up and down the bark of our trees and digging its nest at their roots. Then there is a great black ant, nearly an inch long, small numbers of which are sometimes seen in the grass about the foundations of our houses or running in and out of rotten logs in the woods.

One of the most interesting and remarkable features in the life of the ants is the building, or, rather, the digging, of the nest. Men never displayed more skill in digging mines than these little creatures do in constructing their complex works underground. Each one of the colony of hundreds seems to know just what he is expected to do and just where he belongs. There are no bosses nor foremen to quarrel with, no differences in wages, no strikes nor labor unions. Each does his part and minds his own business. What a lesson to man!

The nests vary in structure according to the surroundings and according to the species. The common reddish brown ants already mentioned begin operations generally on a small open patch of ground, surrounded by grass. Seizing in their strong jaws the bits of earth, which to them must be like large stones, they carry them off at one side to a distance of two or three inches. They know better than to put them down immediately around the pit they are digging, where they would be in the way. The removal of these bits of earth soon makes a tiny well or shaft an inch or two in depth for their subterranean works, and the earth removed forms a circular barrier or wall around it. With scores of ants at work the digging of this shaft is a matter of only a few minutes.

At the bottom of the shaft is the main apartment, or "living room," of the nest. It is a spacious hall, irregular in shape, but approaches a circle in outline, and its low ceiling is supported by pillars of earth left for the purpose, just as coal miners leave pillars of coal to support the great layers of slate and shale above them. From this main hall long, narrow tunnels are dug in all directions and to a considerable distance.

In the main hall are congregated all the ants that are not out upon some errand, such as collecting food. The eggs, larvæ (or grubs), and pupæ (cocoons), are piled in a heap at one side of this living room and are carefully tended by the ants. The larvæ are fed, and all are moved about from place to place to secure constancy in temperature and moisture. Sir John Lubbock has observed that ants that are crippled or sick are always tenderly cared for by their more fortunate companions, who even carry them out of the nest on pleasant days for an airing in the warm sun, just as we take our invalids out in their wheeled chairs.

The reason why ants select a grassy spot for their nests is now evident. Were the soil not held together by the fibrous roots of the grass, the roof of the tiny nest might fall in, especially if some great animal clumsily stepped on it, and bury alive its scores of helpless inmates.

Ants often dig nests under stones or boards in order to secure a solid roof, not dreaming that some cruel person may pick up their shelter and leave their little treasures exposed to the mercy of the weather. If in any way we disturb their nest, the ants will immediately begin carrying their eggs, larvæ and pupæ off into long passages where they cannot readily be found.

The author once observed a very remarkable arrangement which a colony of ants had contrived for protecting the opening into their nest without shutting out the light. The nest had evidently been made in the ordinary way, having a low mound of earth, like the crater of a tiny volcano, with the entrance to the nest in the center. Then a curious thing had been done. They had found the transparent wing of some large insect, dragged it to the nest and laid it directly over the entrance, piling dirt and small sticks in its edges to prevent it from blowing away, and had then dug a tunnel out on one side as a new entrance. This kept out the wind and dust, but lighted up the passage into the main room—a veritable skylight!

The food of ants varies with the species, but they will generally eat anything digestible. They often devour large insects or even small dead mammals or birds and are very fond of tender grubs and caterpillars. Many of them live on fruit, and many flowers are visited by ants for the nectar which they contain. Some ants come into our houses and feed upon the sweets in our pantries, as we know to our sorrow. Ants frequently carry food into their homes for future use, as will readily be seen if we sprinkle sugar or crumbs on the ground about the nest and then watch the ants.

It is ofttimes asked, What becomes of the ants during the winter, and how long do they live? In some species of insects nearly all the individuals die during the first cold weather, only a few hardy ones, with the eggs, remaining in sheltered places during the winter. With the ants the drones probably die, they being few in number and their time of usefulness being short. The queen and the workers usually survive, crawling off into some well protected refuge, as the interior of a rotten stump, where they hibernate—that is, remain in a sort of sleep or stupor brought on by the cold during the winter. The first really warm weather of spring wakes them up, and they soon establish an active nest, where the eggs are hatched.

A most remarkable feature in the life of some ants is in their habit of keeping slaves and "live stock." They do not go and get the slave ants and retain them as captives. If they did, there would be perpetual fighting between captor and captive. They have a much more sensible method. They go and drive another colony away from their nest and take the larvæ, or grubs, bring them back to their own nest and feed them there until they hatch into full grown ants. Then they make slaves of them, requiring them to do all the work for the colony and depending upon them entirely for food. The poor slaves, born in a condition of servitude, probably never know the difference. Perhaps some time a great ant more powerful than his fellows will issue an emancipation proclamation, and war between colonies will ensue as a result of it! Some ants also feed and rear the aphis, a plant louse, for the sake of feeding upon a sweetish, sticky juice called "honey dew" secured from its body. This insect is often called the "ant cow."

Strangest of all is the habit of the agricultural ant of the south, which actually cultivates a kind of grass upon which it feeds. The cultivation consists of keeping the ground clear of all other plants.

[Special Correspondence.]

Christchurch, New Zealand, Sept. 19.—Once more the government of this most interesting and most progressive of British colonies is demonstrating the fact that it is peculiarly devoted to the interests of the masses, but this time the object is to assist strangers and tourists in the country rather than the New Zealanders themselves.

Under the tutelage of T. E. Donne, secretary of the department of commerce and industries, the government is actively employed in the establishment of a complete tourist agency department, with offices throughout the country. Here travelers can make themselves at home, can write letters, cable to the outside world, receive their mail, leave packages and even be provided with developing rooms for changing and working on photographic plates, a boon that will be greatly appreciated in these days by camera laden tourists.

Of course it is certain that this scheme of the government will indirectly redound to the benefit of the people of the country, for New Zealand will be made more attractive to the tourists, who will make longer visits than under the ordinary conditions of travel and will therefore leave more money in the country. The result will also be that more people will be attracted to the colony than in the past, and the probability is that a number of them will remain here, thus adding to the wealth and population. The feeling is that too little is known in the outer world of the wonders of the country, and this plan is undertaken in the hope that it will attract "all the world and his wife" to visit New Zealand and see for themselves the progress that the colony is making.

It is not generally known that New Zealand has many regulations in its governmental affairs that place it many years ahead of other nations, and all these regulations have the sole object of benefiting the people, not the few. Taxes can be paid in any postoffice, and life insurance and accident insurance premiums are payable at the same place. By act of parliament the postmaster or postmistress can marry couples. Postal savings banks are also a popular and important feature of the system. It is said that today there are no less than 212,346 separate depositors in these postal banks out of a population of 883,000 people, with a total of $32,000,000 on deposit. These deposits all receive interest at the rate of 3 per cent.

Government ownership of railways, telephones and telegraphs is an established fact in New Zealand. The government has also instituted, owns and operates life and accident insurance companies and labor bureaus. Here strikes are unknown, labor grievances all being passed on by an arbitration court composed of the judges of the supreme court, one representative of the manufacturers and one representative of the organized labor interests. The leading features of the arbitration law of New Zealand are well worth noting as showing what can be accomplished by simple legal procedure.

The law applies only to industries in which there are trades unions. It does not prevent private conciliation or arbitration. Conciliation is exhausted by the state before it resorts to arbitration. If conciliation is unsuccessful, the disputants must arbitrate. Disobedience of the decision may be punished or not, at the discretion of the court.

The compulsion of the law is threefold—compulsory publicity, compulsory reference to a disinterested arbiter, provided the disputants will not arbitrate voluntarily, and compulsory obedience to the decision. It does not forbid nor prevent disputes, but makes the antagonists fight their battles in court according to a legal code instead of the ordinary "rules of war." There is no "making men work by law" and no "fixing wages by law." The law says only that if they work it must be without strikes or lockouts and that if they cannot agree as to wages the decision must be left to an impartial tribunal.

Another matter of great economic interest is the question of ownership of land. The New Zealand government has no love for large land holders and is doing all it can to have the country divided up into small farms. They especially dislike absentee landlords, and if the owner of property lives outside of the country he has to pay 20 per cent more taxes than resident owners. Large land holders are deemed a social pest, and everything is done to force them to sell out and leave the country. On the other hand, small farmers come in for tender cultivation, and every means is employed to make their life worth living.

The farmer need only bring his poultry to the government depots, and there it will be plucked, dressed, frozen and shipped to England by the federal authorities, who act as agents for the small farmer and sell his produce at a commission of 4 cents per pound. The government lends the small farmer money and helps him to get along when troubles arise. The man whose income is less than $1,500 escapes scot free, paying no taxes. The farmer whose farm is worth only $2,500 is also exempt from taxation. The man who takes a poor piece of property and improves it pays taxes only on what it was worth when he bought it. The rich man, on the other hand, has to pay taxes on his land, on his income on everything.

The public holdings in New Zealand are very large, and the government disposes of them to settlers on very easy terms and in varying methods. There is one way by which the government employs those who are out of work—to clear the lands of timber and rock and sow them in grass. Then they are divided into small farms and are allotted to settlers at a perpetual rental large enough to cover the cost of clearing and at the same time give a fair interest on the value of the land. The size of such holdings is about 100 acres each.

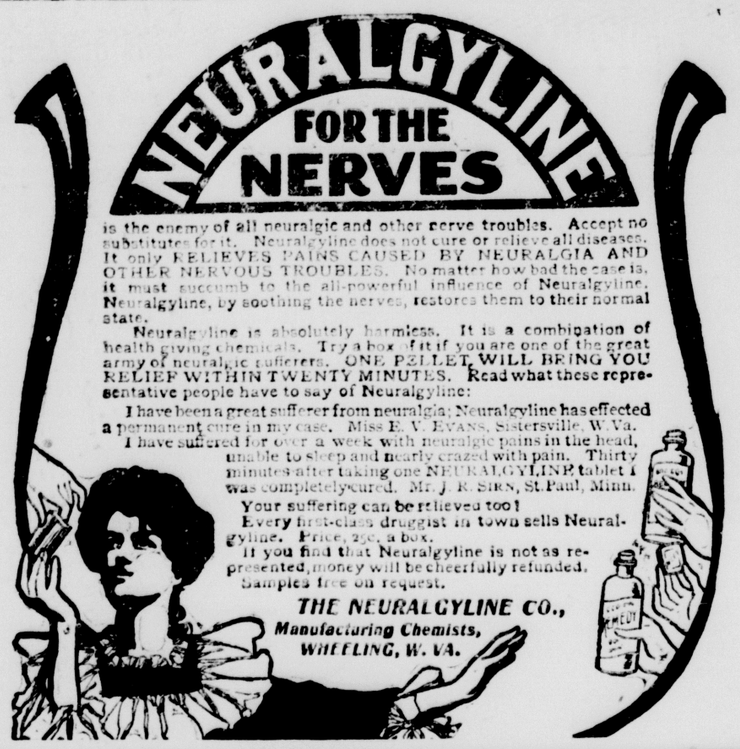

Another interesting feature of the conduct of affairs in New Zealand is that there are no poorhouses, the aged being pensioned by the government after their sixty-fifth year. The law applies to old women as well as to old men. If a man's income at the age of sixty-five is not more than $170 a year, he is given an annual present of $90, and if the income of his wife added to his does not exceed $340 the couple receive $180 yearly. If the man's income is a little more than $170, he is given enough to make it total $300. The law has been in effect since 1898 and requires to support it a tax of more than a dollar a year for every inhabitant of New Zealand.

The colonization of the islands of New Zealand dates from the end of the year 1842, and in spite of the fact that the government possessed no territory in the country on which they might settle few communities can point to a record of such substantial progress. This is the more remarkable owing to the fact that the country has been devastated by two native wars, each of which retarded settlement for years, besides loading the young community with a war debt heavy indeed in proportion to its population.

Since the war of 1863 was finally put an end to in 1868, there has been no trouble of an organized character with the Maoris, who may now be regarded in the light of peaceable and often valuable citizens, with full representation in the colonial representative house of parliament and with several of their principal chiefs sitting in the council or senate of the colony.

The European population of New Zealand numbers fully 750,000, while, according to the last census, there were nearly 45,000 natives, inclusive of nearly 3,000 half castes. The results have so far been, on the whole, remarkably successful, and New Zealand may be looked upon as one of the most progressive of countries and of all the Australasian colonies that in which the wealth is most equally divided among all classes.

The Home of England's Wealth.

The Bank of England generally contains sufficient gold in sixteen pound bars to make 20,000,000 sovereigns. The bank, which stands in three parishes, covers three acres of ground, and, as the current price of land in the vicinity works out at £1,000,000 an acre, it is easy to form an idea of the money value of England's wealth. The ratable value is about £1,600 a week. The bank employs about 1,000 people, pays a quarter of a million a year in wages and £35,000 a year in pensions. There are £25,000,000 worth of notes in circulation which have been handed over the bank's counter.—London Globe.
